Air Deaths Laid to Fight for Plane

Today

Miners' Empty Houses.
A Bishop on Prisons.
Speed Means Victory.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Feb. 24.

THE PULLMAN car in which this is written, bound for California, with a one-day stop at the Grand Canyon, is at this moment passing over the backbone of the North American continent, through the Rocky Mountains Raton Pass, seven thousand feet up.

The air is mild, full of life, sunshine brilliant, powerful in actinic rays. Some day civilized Americans will live on the heights, and fly down to attend to business, as the eagles do. Perhaps, like the eagle, they will usually live to one hundred and older.

A SAD spot comes a little way down the western side of the backbone, where many empty coal miners' houses stand lonely, abandoned. There was a strike, at the wrong time, the mines have not reopened, nobody knows when they will reopen.

Strikes, no matter how just they may seem to strikers, should be carefully considered at a time when operating at a profit is difficult and a walkout may mean for the employer an easy way to discontinue losses.

If his workers must strike in these times, let them strike cautiously and after thinking it over FOR THEMSELVES.

IN DENVER, "back east" of this train, a bishop, the Rt. Rev. Irving P. Johnson, a member of the State Board of Corrections, talks plainly to Colorado about prison conditions:

"There are some men who go to prison because they have no influential friends to keep them out. Our moral laws have been cut to pieces like a jig-saw puzzle, and the pieces have not been put together again."

He makes this suggestion:

"Liberate all the prisoners of Canon City, and put professional politicians in their places for three years. It would be no more injurious to the public."

THE BISHOP'S son, who is a Judge in the Juvenile Court, says:

"The idea that 'broken homes' or divorced parents are to blame for juvenile delinquency is wrong. In numerous cases a 'broken home' might be of advantage."

Judge Johnson says that with boys in his court, bicycle and automobile thefts play an important part. Among girls, eighty per cent are accused of violating the laws of morality.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL, driving his automobile 272 miles an hour on Daytona Beach, back of John D. Rockefeller's winter cottage, proves willing to risk his life showing what machinery can do.

No such speed could be of use on the earth's surface, except possibly in driving a fleet of armored tanks, with a sharp blade across the front, and cutting scythes on either side, like the scythes of old chariot wheels, against marching regiments of infantry or cavalry.

THIS COUNTRY, which has undertaken no experiments on its own account since it successfully built the Panama Canal, might well experiment with improved flying machines.

Lieut. Williams, one of our best fliers, long holder of the American speed record, points out that Italians and British, spending millions, competing for the Schneider cup and reaching a speed above 400 miles an hour, do not make such efforts "for amusement." Says Lieut. Williams:

"Give a fighting pilot fifty miles per hour more speed and he will wipe out a whole fleet of slower planes."

Uncle Sam, satisfied to watch Britons and Italians develop the fastest airships, while France builds the greatest fighting air fleet, may learn that he is making a mistake now.

CHANCELLOR HITLER, German self-made ruler, favors "TOTAL DISARMAMENT" and will go to any length to promote it. He says to other nations:

"Do away altogether with armies and Germany will gladly scrap hers also."

It is a good suggestion, but will not happen.

Hitler continues his attacks on Catholics of the German "Centrist party," suppressing Catholic meetings and publications. It is a curious thing that in Mexico and in Spain men born Catholic are fighting the Catholic church, and Hitler himself is a Catholic.

The antagonism that Hitler's attitude has aroused in Bavaria and other German Catholic centers, will make it hard for him to go as far as he hopes to do.

MR. ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER, predicting that beer will have returned by next Washington's Birthday, prints a paragraph that will please earnest drys:

"On the same day next year your patriot will look at the flag and see twice as many stars. He will say, 'Gotta drink beer for taxshayshun, it's Birdington's wash day.'"

The West will tell Mr. Baer, who is said to be a total abstainer, that some beer drinkers may by mistake say "Birdington's wash day," but will not be made blind by one drink of bootleg whisky, or be "shot up" in some speakeasy.

MISS HELEN YEAGER, 21

GIRL, MAN HELD IN FUR THEFT

Helen Yeager, 21, an attractive blonde who says she is a night club entertainer, today was held with John Bailey, 30, of 3469 Ligonier street, pending an investigation into the theft of a mink coat worth $700 and two evening gowns from the rooming house of Mrs. Sarah Lepack, 249 South Millvale avenue. To elude arrest, police said, the Yeager girl leaped through a window and led officers in a four-block chase early yesterday.

Testimony at the hearing before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today was to the effect that when Mrs. Lepack and Miss Yeager returned early yesterday from a cabaret, Mrs. Lepack discovered the coat and dresses missing. Bailey, it was said, was in the house. Bailey and Miss Yeager left and the latter returned later. As the detectives arrived, it was testified, Miss Yeager attempted to escape.

Miss Yeager denied stealing the coat or dresses. Police said Bailey is under parole from the Federal Court. Although the girl was docketed as Helen Weager, she admitted to Magistrate Rothenberg her name is Yeager.

DEATH NEAR FOR MAYOR CERMAK

Son-in-Law Gives Up Hope; Family Quits Bedside in Tears

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—His strength drained by complications which followed the bullet wound he received from the gun of Giuseppe Zangara, the assassin, Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, today was given little chance to survive.

Physicians labored to bolster up the Mayor's exhausted vitality through inttravenous injections. They were in constant attendance at the bedside.

Dr. Frank Jirka, Cermak's son-in-law, said he had "little chance to live."

Jirka said the Mayor is "critically ill." His pulse is acting very peculiarly, showing he is making a desperate attempt to live, adding:

"Even while sleeping he is talking about the possibility of paying Chicago employes, especially teachers, policemen and firemen."

ROOSEVELT TELEGRAPHS

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, for whom Zangara intended the bullet which struck Cermak, telegraphed his great concern and asked to be advised of the Mayor's condition. Arrangements were made to inform Mr. Roosevelt and James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Dr. Jirka's statement was made after members of the Mayor's family had visited him at the hospital. The family left the room intetars after a brief stay.

State Senator Richey V. Graham, of Illinois, and Mrs. Graham, son-in-law and daughter of Cermak; their daughter, Virginia and Mrs. Jirka, wife of the attending physician, and little Marinalla Jirka, 7-year-old, were those who went into the room, in addition to Mrs. Floyd Kinlay.

Dr. Tice said the family had requested to see the Mayor. Previously, they had been allowed to visit him only a few times.

Mrs. Jirka broke down during a discussion with Dr. Tice just after her arrival at the hospital.

Rock Slide Blocks Sycamore Street

More than 250 tons of slate and rock partly blocked Sycamore street, near the Mt. Washington street car tunnel, today. Huge boulders and broken rock dropped 50 feet from the side of the Mt. Washington cliff yesterday. Smaller slides have occurred at the same place in the last few days.

City laborers, working in continuous shifts, were clearing the street. Several days will be required to complete the task.

Japs Bolt League Meeting

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, Feb. 24.—The government of Japan withdrew its delegation from membership in the League of Nations assembly this afternoon, less than half an hour after that body had formally adopted a committee report condemning Japan's military activities in Manchuria.

Later an international advisory committee, empowered to ask American and Soviet participation, was appointed by the League to aid in restoring peace to the Far East.

The committee consists of the original Sino-Japanese committee of Nineteen, with Holland and Canada added. It will meet tomorrow to formulate invitations designed at securing assistance from the United States and Soviet Russia.

VOTE OF CENSURE

The vote of the assembly censuring Japan was 42 to 1. The sole negative ballot was cast by Japan herself. Siam abstained from voting.

As soon as the vote was announced, Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate, rose to speak.

Tense silence prevailed. All eyes were turned toward the diminutive Japanese delegate, who for months has battled unsuccessfully for international approval of his nation's "course of destiny" in the Far East.

Admitting he was not so much surprised as regretful over the assembly's action in voting to condemn the island empire of the Man Seizes Purse Of Woman Motorist

East End police today sought a man who leaped onto the running board of the automobile of Virginia Wilson, of the Episcopal Church Home, Penn avenue and Fortieth street, and snatched her purse last night. The car was halted by a red light at Homewood and Penn avenues, when the thief jumped onto the running board, snatched the purse and fled, police said. It contained $3 in cash and driver's and owner's cards.

DAVIS FACES LOSS OF SALARY

Pinchot's Delay in Certifying Vote Raises Danger

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Charles F. Pace, financial clerk of the Senate, said today that Senator Davis and all his office help would go off the payroll March 4 unless a certificate of Davis' election arrived before then.

Senate officials, Pace said, had not yet received any official note of Davis' re-election.

Gov. Pinchot said soon after the official count he would certify Davis' election, with an accompanying letter to the Senate regarding his right to his seat.

ELLENBOGEN CASE

Meanwhile, Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the House, said he planned to refer to the comptroller general what he said was a question as to whether Henry Ellenbogen and Michael Muldowney, Representatives-elect from Pittsburgh, would go on the House payroll March 4.

Ellenbogen, a Democrat, will not have been seven years a citizen until June. The Constitution says representatives must be citizens for seven years.

Muldowney, a Republican, is a member of Pittsburgh City Council. Romney said he was not certain whether Muldowney could draw his own pay, clerk hire, and have the franking privilege while being paid as a Councilman.

Pinchot Has 'Nothing To Say' About Davis

MILFORD, Pa., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot asked today when he would send a certificate of Senator Davis' election, replied:

GANG LINKED IN KILLING OF PILOT

Slayer Who Ended Life Believed Aide of Robber Band

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Authorities expressed the belief today that the apparent midair slaying of Lehman Nelson, flying instructor, yesterday by Erin McCall occurred in a fight for possession of the plane which a gang of robbers desired for use in making a getaway after a series of holdups.

Twelve men were brought to the Courthouse here for questioning, or were under surveillance. The hearing was secret.

Officers said they believed that McCall, a student flier, had been used by the robbers to get possession of the plan in preparation for the holdups.

BATTLE IN AIR

The theory was that soon after Nelson and McCall had taken off on a practice flight over San Benito, McCall pointed a pistol at the pilot and during the ensuing fight it was discharged. The ship circled crazily for a time and crashed, with McCall at the controls. The youth ran from the wreckage and then shot and killed himself.

D. S. Purl, District Attorney, who was leading the investigation, said:

"Nelson was an entirely innocent victim of this tragedy. He was pinch-hitting for Bill Williams, a flying instructor, and officers have no evidence that Nelson and McCall ever had spoken to each other before they went up in the plane yesterday afternoon."

WORRIED BY ILLNESS

A roommate of McCall, held in the San Benito jail overnight without charges as a material witness, said McCall had recently contracted a disease and had brooded over it.

The inquiry also sought to determine facts concerning the alleged tampering with a plane at a private airport at Harlingen and an attempt later to steal it.

Investigators were trying to establish definitely how Nelson was killed. His body was cold when witnesses to the crash reached the scene, indicating he had been shot some time before McCall attempted to land the plane and crashed.

Kreuger Aides Face Record Swedish Fine

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The largest fine ever imposed in a Swedish court was entered in the minutes today when Nils Ahlstroem and Erik Sjoestroem, directors of Kreuger & Toll Co., were fined a total of 1,455,000 kronor (approximately $263,355 at current exchange).

The board members were charged with failure to pay receipt stamp duty on a majority of their shares in Boliden gold mine.

Shaw Shocked, Silent Seeing War From Air

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, Feb. 24.—Seated in the luxurious private plane owned by Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang and with this correspondent at his side, George Bernard Shaw flew over the Great Wall of China this afternoon and was shocked into speechlessness by the panorama of war stretched out before his eyes.

High above the ancient architectural masterpiece of masonry which ripples across the Chinese countryside like a snake of stone, Shaw glimpsed marching armies, caravans of war and the machine gun nests which pockmark the Manchurian mountainsides.

When the expedition had returned to the comparative safety of Peiping, the bearded playwright asked:

"What will come of it?"

The most conspicuous feature of the flight made in temperature as low as 30 degrees below zero, was Shaw's silence. The man renowned the world over for his ready wit and sharp tongue sat mute, almost brooding, as the plane roared over Nankou Pass in the Great Wall, only a few miles from Koupei Pass, where the armies of Japan could be seen streaming into Jehol province.

Every few hundred yards a group of Chinese crouched behind machine guns, waiting to pour a hail of lead into the advancing Japanese.

COUNTY VOTES BUS LINE

The County Commissioners, by a vote of two to one, today declared war on the public utilities. First step in their offensive will be an application for a certificate of public convenience for a bus line to carry passengers to and from county parks.

Chairman C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr voted for the bus charter if only "to try and break down the public utilities." Commissioner W. D. Mansfield opposed investing in a project "into which no man with money would venture."

The decision to seek a bus line charter from the Public Service Commission came following rejection of an offer from the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company to carry the passengers this summer if the County Commissioners guaranteed them against loss of money.

If the certificate is granted, the county will either buy or charter buses for the line, probably operating it themselves.

Meanwhile, dismissal of the city's complaint against the present rates of the Pittsburgh Transportation Company, operating Green and Yellow taxicabs, was announced by the Public Service Commission today.

The city protested the company's return to the old rate of 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter, but the company presented records showing it had lost money under the rate of 15 cents for the first one-sixth mile and 10 cents for each two-thirds mile thereafter.

Monaca Club's Bosses Escape Park 'Big Stick'

The "big stick" which District Attorney Andrew T. Park held over the bowed heads of the 11 bartenders, singing waiters and gambling operators of the Monaca Club today was only a noisy stage paddle.

The hired help of the once prosperous booze and gambling joint were already serving their sentences in County Jail—sentences which will end in two months if they pay $100 fines.

And the fear of longer sentences, if they failed to name the real owners of the place, was dissipated.

GRAND JURY QUIZ

The employes all were notified, as they were sentenced yesterday by Judge Samuel H. Gardner, that they would be called before the graund jury next Monday for further testimony.

But it was pointed out that if the court had been asked to delay sentences until after that day the witnesses might have been more

Hoover Will Shun Inaugural Parade

His secretary announced today the President will go immediately to Union Station and entrain for New York soon after the inaugural ceremonies in front of the Capitol are over.

U. S. HOLDS FINK ON MANN ACT

Harry Fink, former private detective for Alderman John J. Verona in the Third Ward, who served a six-months jail sentence on a morality charge was arrested at noon today on a Federal warrant for alleged violation of the Mann act.

Information filed before the United States Commissioner here by a special agent of the United States Bureau of Investigation, charges Fink with "aiding and assisting" in the transportation of two girls from Pittsburgh to Steubenville, O., last February 8.

The girls' names were given as Marie Ondillo and Dorothy Kennedy. Fink's brother, Saul, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Fink, were arrested two weeks ago in Steubenville in connection with the same case, according to Federal authorities.

Fink's bond was set at $2,500.

Death Valley Scotty Can Buy Desert Land

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—So Walter Scott, better known as "Death Valley Scotty," will not be a squatter, the House Public Lands Committee today approved the Arentz bill under which the California desert settler could buy the land on which his show-place house sits.

The bill would permit Scott and his close friend, Albert M. Johnson, Chicago insurance man, to purchase from the government 1,500 acres of the desert for $1.25 an acre.

CROWD AT FIRE DOWNTOWN

Crowds jammed Market street during the lunch hour as flame and smoke belched from the Rand Drug Store, 432 Market street, when a large quantity of spilled alcohol was ignited by a cigaret, said to have been dropped by a customer.

Employes carrying merchandise to an upper floor accidentally knocked over a display of 24 bottles of rubbing alcohol. The bottles were broken.

The alcohol was being mopped up by Charles Green, porter, when a customer is said to have dropped a cigaret.

Clerks attempted to extinguish the flames but were driven to the street as smoke poured from the building. Firemen quickly extinguished the flames.

Walsh Flies to Havana To Wed Cuban Widow

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—United States Senator Thomas J. Walsh, who is to be attorney general in the Roosevelt cabinet, arrived by airplane from Miami this morning and was met at the airport by Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim.

The senator is to be married at the embassy next week to Senora Marie Nieves Truffin, widow of a banker and sugar planter. Senora Truffin's son, Regino, accompanied Mr. Walsh from Miami.

Their honeymoon "will be a trip from Havana back to Washington," Senator Walsh said.

Senora Truffin, a leader in Havana society life, is the widow of Regino Truffin, sugar producer and businessman. He died in 1928. She was the mother-in-law of Clemente Valquez Bello, former president of the Cuban Senate, who was assassinated last September in Havana.

She is an old friend of Senator Walsh, and for several years has kept in close touch with affairs in Havana and Washington.

Senator Walsh's wife, the former Elinor C. McClements, of Chicago, died August 30, 1917. They were married August 15, 1899.

In jail for life—but they committed no crime. Pitiable plight of many wives' vengeance related in the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

ROOSEVELT, FARLEY CONFER ON MAJOR APPOINTMENTS

STUDIES WHEAT PROBLEM WITH CANADIAN

Woodin Meets Chief For Discussion On Finances

Roosevelt reached Hyde Park with Farley shortly after noon, after a motor trip from Albany. He attended the annual dinner of the Legislative Correspondents' Association there last night and remained over with Gov. Lehman.

While talking names with Farley, it was stated by the President-elect he would have no announcements to make before Monday morning at the earliest. It is likely that in addition to the cabinet nominations he will submit to the special session of the Senate in March, many other names of men and women to fill the key positions.

Roosevelt declined today to say whether he would ask the special Senate session to consider the League Court protocol and the St. Lawrence waterways treaty now awaiting ratification.

The President-elect did disclose today that he had talked about wheat in his recent meeting with W. D. Herridge, the Canadian minister, but he said nothing definite had been arranged about a wheat conference.

William H. Woodin, the new Secretary of the Treasury, has been called here by Roosevelt for an early conference.

Roosevelt expects to devote most of his last week before inauguration to preparation of his inaugural address and to packing. He expects to leave here probably on Tuesday and depart from New York for Washington late Thursday.

Roosevelt Begins Drive To Wipe Out Deficit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—The Roosevelt administration will make a desperate effort to wipe out the Treasury deficit by economy instead of additional taxation, Democratic leaders declared today.

The action of the President-elect in announcing his new budget chief before officially naming some of his cabinet members was accepted as additional evidence of the importance the new Chief Executive will lay on cutting costs of government.

Mr. Roosevelt is said to be determined to make good on the Democratic national platform for a 25 per cent cut in Federal expenditures and to begin as soon as he takes office.

In appointing Representative Lewis W. Douglas (Dem.), of Arizona, as Director of the Budget, the President-elect has chosen a House member who made a bold fight for the $150,000,000 economy bill last year despite threats of defeat at the polls.

Penna. Woman Official May Aid Miss Perkins

HARRISBURG, Feb. 24.—Selection of Miss Frances Perkins, of New York, to be Secretary of Labor in the cabinet of President-elect Roosevelt may bring about a change in the deputy secretaryship of labor and industry in the state administration, it was learned today in well-informed circles.

Miss Charlotte E. Carr, at present deputy secretary of labor and industry, is a close friend of the New York woman. Some people at the capitol predict that Miss Carr may be offered a position at Washington in the event Miss Perkins is selected for the incoming cabinet.

Previous to coming to Pennsylvania Miss Carr was associated with Miss Perkins in New York.

Dog's Bark Blamed For Chief's Death

BRIDGEPORT, O., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Police Chief William Gretzinger, 56, died last night. Physicians said he was the victim of a dog's bark.

Gretzinger was called to a residence to investigate a robbery. As he entered the front gate, a watch dog rushed upon him, barking loudly. He collapsed, dying of a heart attack.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TRIES ON GOWN

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today had her last fitting of the gown she will wear to her husband's inauguration as President, and at the same time "Anna Blue," named after her daughter, Anna Roosevelt Dall, was introduced to the world of textiles.

Mrs. Roosevelt's hat, wrap, and purse are of "Anna Blue," which is a dark blue, a trifle lighter than Navy. The gown is of the color that was named for herself, "Eleanor Blue," and is of crystelle velvet.

It is a one-piece gown with a peplum front and rolled neckline with a narrow insert of white mousseline de soie. The sleeves are puffed from the elbow to the wrist. The skirt bottom is 10 inches from the floor.

Mrs. Roosevelt was in her office early today, to open her mail, and later went shopping. She was at home superintending some packing this afternoon, and will pass the week-end in Hyde Park.

HULL SLATING DIPLOMATS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A round of conferences between the newly appointed Roosevelt Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, and prominent members of his party, today gave force to the belief that the important diplomatic posts are now in the process of being filled.

Calling on the future Secretary in his hotel room today were Houston Thompson, of Colorado, a former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission; Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, a Representative from Florida, who has been mentioned as Minister to Denmark; Ewen L. Davis, a Representative from Tennessee and brother of Norman Davis, the Democrat who has been representing President Hoover in disarmament conferences abroad, and Angus McLean, former Governor of North Carolina.

Hull also obtained the view of J. Reuben Clark, Hoover Ambassador to Mexico, on relations with the republic to the south.

CALLS FOR WAR ON DEPRESSION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A campaign against the depression "as we fought the war" was urged upon the Senate Finance Committee today by J. David Stern, editor and publisher of the Philadelphia Record and the Camden, (N.J.) Courier-Post.

Appearing in the committee's survey of economic conditions, Stern called for a gold embargo such as was in effect during the World War, and for an expansion of credit to stabilize the dollar at lower levels.

Stern explained he had a double purpose in recommending the gold embargo:

"First, to place the government in a position to issue such credit as is necessary to win the fight against the depression by distributing purchasing power among consumers.

"Second, to reduce the swollen value of the dollar to its commodity value of 1926, or the average for the years 1921 to 1929, inclusive."

FEDERAL JUDGE IMPEACHED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Federal Judge Harold Louderback, of San Francisco, was impeached by the House this afternoon.

The action came as a surprise, the Judiciary Committee having voted 13 to 5 against impeachment.

However, the committee voted unanimously to censure the judge for many of his official actions in connection with receivership cases.

A committee of House members will be named to prosecute the charges before the Senate, which acts as the court. It requires a two-thirds vote of the Senate to convict a judge and remove him from office.

Two Given Year for Mann Act Violation

Charles Stillwell, 32, and his nephew, Stanley Drummond, 23, of Brighton road, were sentenced to a year and a day in Federal Penitentiary today when they pleaded guilty, before Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court, to violating the Mann act.

They were accused of transporting Agnes Ferich, alias "The Platinum Blonde," and Pauline Pasano, alias "Spanish Jackie," from Pittsburgh to Steubenville, O., on September 8, 1932. Stillwell had been brought here from Portland, Ore., to stand trial.

SENATE INQUIRY SCANS BANK STOCK DEALS

Reveals National City Financed Sales of Own Shares

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Evidence that the National City Bank financed the sale of its own stock to its own stock affiliate, the National City Company, was presented today to the Senate Banking Committee.

After Ferdinand Pecora, the committee counsel, had placed in the record a series of letters recording loans to a brokerage house for bank stock to be delivered to the National City Company, Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, observed:

"It's quite plain from this the bank was directly financing the sale of its own stock."

HUGE SUM INVOLVED

Brookhart estimated that the letters showed $21,800,000 had been so used during the month of October, 1929, and that 46,747 shares were involved.

Hugh P. Baker, president of the National City Company, said he did not know what proportion of all the business that was, adding:

"It facilitated the delivery of the securities."

Pecora shot back:

WHITNEY CALLED

Meanwhile Richard Whitney, president and outspoken defender of the New York Stock Exchange, awaited his turn to testify.

Why he was called before the banking committee was not explained by Chairman Norbeck. He has been under subpena since last year following extended testimony in April.

The committee received information yesterday that the National City Company undertook to control the market in stock of its parent, the National City Bank, and at times was selling short in that stock.

HOPE FOR BEER BILL WANES

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The hope of wets for "beer by March 4" waned today when they found Senate leaders reluctant to order action on the revised House bill legalizing beer and light wines.

With but seven legislative days remaining of the Seventy-second Congress, a survey disclosed that neither Republican nor Democratic leaders would predict passage of the bill. The legislative path to its enactment was cleared in the Senate, but both party leaders regarded its consideration as unlikely.

The attitude of President Hoover toward legalized beer was reported to have swung the pendulum against action on the bill. Both party leaders expected him to veto the bill. So long as he would have to return the bill to Congress, in event he disapproved it, they were ready to face a veto.

Some wets were opposed now to legalizing beer until a majority of the states have acted on the repeal of prohibition. They feared a "let-down" in repeal sentiment throughout the nation if beer and light wines were legalized.

ILL POLA NEGRI.....IF SHE'D PAY TAXES SHE COULD SAIL

TAX BILL HOLDS POLA IN U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(Universal.)—Whether from illness or income tax trouble or a combination of both, Pola Negri twice cancelled European passage and remained at the Hotel Ambassador. Reports were current that an unpaid income tax of about $77,000 on her reported salary of $3,500 a week prevented the Polish screen star's departure. But Miss Negri denied this emphatically last night, saying:

"My income tax difficulties go back two or three years. They have been settled. Everything there has been straightened out.

"I have been and am ill from a severe cold. My temperature is 101.

"I was to have sailed on the Manhattan Wednesday night, but canceled that. Then I tried to sail on the Bremen tonight but my physician forbade it."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(Universal)—Officials of the Internal Revenue Department here said Pola Negri, Polish film star, will be allowed to sail for Europe after settling unpaid income taxes.

MITCHELL ACTS TO GET INSULL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Attorney General Mitchell today initiated a move to strengthen the nation's extradition treaties, plugging loopholes through which he said Samuel Insull and others had evaded return to the United States after moving abroad.

Although revision will take some time, he hoped that if present efforts to return Insull fail, the revision can be made retroactive to accomplish this result.

RESTLESS NIGHT

Dr. Tice's bulletin at 10:30 a. m. said:

"Mayor Cermak had a restless night. The colitis continues to cause discomfort and distress."

"The heart action is only fair and at times is the cause of much anxiety. However, there is a well sustained circulation. The congestion of the lungs has become much less and has practically disappeared.

Dr. Meyer said at 10 a. m. that a degree of lessening was noted in the pulmonary congestion in Mayor Cermak, and that the patient was "sleeping soundly just now." He declared flatly there was no pneumonia condition. He came from the sick room after a lengthy examination of Cermak.

HEART WEAKENING

The evidence of heart failure, the physicians said, was no more than had been expected due to the state of the heart muscle and the long struggle Cermak has waged since he was shot in the abdomen by Giuseppe Zangara, the assassin.

An extended quiet zone in the hospital wing, where Mayor Cermak's room is located, was ordered by Dr. Meyer. Chicago police officers, who have stood guard since the Mayor was shot last week, were stationed at ends of the corridor with orders to preserve quiet.

Intravenous injections of 10 per cent glucose were given the Mayor yesterday and last night to buoy up his strength and provide nourishment and physicians said the patient responded splendidly although the reaction brought a slight rise in temperature.

Cermak's physicians yesterday gave him an "80 to 20" chance to live. The night before, they said, chances were five to one against survival. Cermak collapsed during the first injection of glucose, his doctors said, and his pulse was restored by the use of stimulants. Later injections were made through veins of the arm.

Physicians said Mrs. Joe H. Gill, of Miami, also wounded seriously by the man who shot Cermak, and the three others less seriously hurt were recovering nicely.

BANK SHAKEUP FORECAST IN DETROIT

2 New Institutions May Be Formed to Meet R. F. C. Demands

By PAUL WEBER
International News Service.

DETROIT, Feb. 24.—Michigan's bank situation was more or less shrouded in mystery today, but it appeared that Detroit's banking structure was in process of drastic reorganization, involving the establishment of two new banks.

The state government maintained a "hands-off" policy. No action was taken against the numerous banks which, in one way or another, disobeyed the edict issued Tuesday by Governor William A. Comstock. The proclamation ordered banks to re-open after an eight-day "holiday," but imposed strict limitations upon their activities.

MANDATE IGNORED

Detroit banks yesterday complied with the Governor's order to open for business, but ignored his mandate that all reserve deposits belonging to other banks be released in full. Five percent remained the limit of withdrawals from all accounts in Detroit institutions today.

According to information obtained from bankers here, the First National and Guardian National banks have been granted a $136,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan, provided

1—That the First National raise $10,000,000 new capital, and the Guardian National $3,500,000.

2—That the underwriters or depositors select boards of directors for the two reorganized banks acceptable to the federal authorities.

3—That the executive officers elected by the directors be approved by the federal authorities.

PLANS UNCONFIRMED

The reported "reorganization plan," however, remained totally without official confirmation. No banker or federal official was willing to be quoted as to what was going on.

It was understood that the state government was standing by to give the bankers a chance to meet these conditions and get the Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan. If the loan is granted, bankers indicated, the First National and Guardian National will, in effect, be torn down and re-built into two great "super-solvent" institutions.

Then, according to the plan they can safely release the reserve deposits of the outstate banks. The small institutions throughout the state will re-open and the state's banking system will gradually return to an even keel.

MONACA BOSSES EVADE PERIL

willing to co-operate with the District Attorney.

One of the 11 sentenced, P. J. Haley, made no bones about admitting he ran the club. His story brought smiles, even from Judge Gardner. He said, as most of the others did, that John Bovard, who died in December, owned the joint, that after Bovard died he took it over—just like that!

NOBLE MOTIVES

With the noble motives and courage of Zane Grey's finest hero, Haley, so he testified, ran the club as a debt of honor to Bovard's memory, anxious to pay off the club's debts, then close forever those thick steel doors which the city and county police weren't able to break down.

This man Howard Johnson, who signed the lease for the spot in Oakland was the fictitious name of none other than Bovard, Haley explained. In fact, Haley said he saw Bovard sign this name to the lease in the office of the Oakland Real Estate Company, in which Senator James J. Coyne, is a partner.

If it is the Oakland Real Estate Company which leased the property to "Johnson," then the company, and probably Haley, too, will be named in padlock proceedings which, the Sun-Telegraph yesterday revealed exclusively, will be filed by the state's Deputy Attorney General, John D. Meyer, here next week.

All of which is of little moment today to the 11 gentlemen in County Jail who perhaps are trying to make up their minds whether sauce for the gander shouldn't be sauce for the goose.

Mother Tells How F. R. Stumped Wrong State

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(Universal.)—When Franklin D. Roosevelt was running for state senator in New York he campaigned for four hours in Connecticut before realizing he had gone into another state!

This and many other little-known incidents in the President-elect's career are related by his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, in "My boy, Franklin," told to Isabel Leighton and Gabrielle Forbush in the March number of Good Housekeeping.

His mother good-humoredly reveals that when Roosevelt was assistant Secretary of the Navy, he sent a naval attache to Switzerland. Thus:

The Navy was anxious to obtain an engine that could be made only in Switzerland. An expert had to be sent to act as an inspector during its construction. The only way it could be done legally was to denote him a naval attache. That was what Roosevelt did.

Sailing on a tour of naval bases, Roosevelt's ship had a choice of two channels, one of which showed on the chart only six feet of water. The ship drew 10. When the captain protested at Roosevelt's selection of this shallow channel, Roosevelt said he would take the vessel through himself. His mother goes on:

"Under the captain's horrified gaze, Franklin assumed his place next to the quartermaster and took the ship through without touching anything. What Franklin had remembered and the captain overlooked was 'but it was high tide and that at such times there were 22 feet of water in the Lubec Narrows!'"

North Dakota to Stay In U. S.; Secession Off

BISMARCK, N. D., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—North Dakota will not secede from the Union after all.

Nor will the Flickertail State lead any movement to weld 39 states into a separate nation and leave the "Industrial East" as proposed in State Senator W. E. Martin's resolution in the Legislature.

The time limit for its consideration expired yesterday and members of the State Affairs Committee showed no disposition to disturb the resolution. For weeks it had been considered as good as dead by legislative leaders.

Senator Martin, 83-year-old former cow puncher, was satisfied that it had had the desired effect. He said:

"It woke up those people in the East and that's more than we've been able to do before. We had to do something drastic, and I guess we scared some of those fellows."

When he introduced the proposal last month, it aroused nation-wide comment and brought the aged senator hundreds of letters of praise and criticism.

MYSTERY VEILS BANKER'S DEATH BY KNIFE IN HOTEL

SLEUTHS PRESS SEARCH FOR SOLUTION

Widow, Former Follies Girl, Says Fell Died By Own Hand

International News Service.

SOLO, Java, Feb. 24.—Admitting themselves mystified, Java police continued today to investigate the death of John R. Fell, well-known American sportsman and director of a Paris bank, who was found slain in his hotel room here with a stab wound in his heart.

Authorities confessed themselves unable to state with absolute certainty whether his death was caused by suicide, accident or murder, although his widow, a former Follies girl, asserted he died by his own hand.

BANKER AGITATED

Authorities said they had some reason to believe Fell was upset when the tragedy occurred. He was reported to have declared:

"I shall remain here until I die."

Mrs. Fell remained prostrated and unable to give information to police, although she was the sole witness of her husband's death. She has been given a strong hypodermic injection by her physician.

Examination of Fell's body disclosed the knife penetrated through his clothes and breast bone and severed the muscles of his heart.

KIN DOUBT SUICIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A consular report that the fatal stabbing of John R. Fell, wealthy Philadelphia sportsman, in a hotel in Surakarta, Java, now is believed to have been accidental, promised to receive a more favorable reception from his relatives today than that accorded the earlier theory of suicide.

Members of his family united yesterday in expressing conviction the noted polo player was "not the kind of a man to take his own life," but declined to voice any opinion in the absence of further details.

Fell died on Tuesday in the presence of his wife, the former Martha Ederton, an actress whom he married in January, 1932, and with whom he left France for a tour of the Far East about a month ago.

"It's my fault. I did it."

Authorities at first inclined to the theory of suicide, but the United States consul at Batavia reported last night the death later was regarded as accidental.

TELLS OF TRAGEDY

Mrs. Fell, the third wife of the well-known clubman, was quoted by investigators as saying the tragedy occurred shortly after they had gone to their room to dine in private. They quoted her as saying:

"The table was set and my husband sat down to eat while I went to a washstand. For a moment I had my back to him and when I turned around I saw him rise from the chair and stagger toward the bed. Then I saw the knife.'

She said she pulled the weapon from Fell's breast and summoned aid. She was hysterical for some time after and could not be questioned, authorities said.

Meanwhile, the state department proceeded with what it termed its "usual investigation" in affairs of this kind.

Anthony J. Drexel, uncle of Fell and grandson of the founder of the international banking firm of Drexel & Co., of Philadelphia, associate of J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York, sent word yesterday he had requested the American consul at Batavia to look after the interests of the family.

Reed Acts to Oust G. O. P. Insurgents

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—The Republican party in the Senate will be asked to expel all insurgents who supported Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign, Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, announced today.

Reed said he would offer a motion at the next conference of Republican Senators to bar Senators Johnson (Rep.), of California; Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska; Cutting (Rep.), of New Mexico, and La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, from all participation in party affairs.

BOND GRANTED IN LINDY PLOT

ROANOKE, Va., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Three young defendants charged charged with attempting to extort $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by threats to harm his second son, were bound over to the Federal grand jury meeting on July 3 when their cases were called this morning before United States Commissioner Charles D. Fox.

In continuing the cases Commissioner Fox allowed release of Joe Bryant, 19, and Norman Harvey, 26, who have been held in jail since their arrest after Bryant attempted to cash a $17,000 "planted" check, under bond of $1,000 each. Harvey's wife, Elsie, the third defendant, has been at liberty under $5,000 bond obtained at a time the two men were unable to secure the heavy bonds previously demanded for them.

BOMBINGS ROCK CUBAN CAPITAL

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—A series of terrific bomb explosions rocked Havana today, on the thirty-eighth anniversary of the Cuban independence movement.

The police immediately began a round-up of opposition'sts and so-called terrorists, suspecting a revolutionary attempt against the regime of President Machado.

Reports that a coup was brewing have been widespread for several weeks. Government agents are closely watching the movements of Cuban refugees in Miami and other cities in the United States said to be preparing to land expeditionary forces on Cuban soil.

Kidnapers Balked By Wary Capitalist

SEATTLE, Feb. 24.—(Universal)—Wariness of Nathan Eckstein, Seattle capitalist and civic leader, was believed today to have saved him from a kidnap plot, police announced.

Eckstein received a telephone call that the wholesale crockery of which he is president was on fire. He was urged to rush immediately to the scene. Instead, Eckstein called the night watchman at the warehouse and learned there was no fire.

WANT DEADLINE IN KIDNAPING

DENVER, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Collapse of the police case against three men, whose arrests authorities had described as important steps toward solution of the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II, wealthy broker, dissolved the investigation into a siege of watchful waiting today and surmises of what the grand jury would do.

The release of O. E. Stevens, Colorado Springs resort owner, and two others caved in temporarily the investigation police are conducting independent of Claude K. Boettcher, multimillionaire father of the missing man.

With the resort owner was released his friend, Maynard Eaker, alias Baker, and P. A. Tyson, who was arrested Wednesday when authorities said he attempted to dispose of a sedan similar to the automobile in which young Boettcher was whisked away from his home garage 12 days ago.

Earl Wettengel, District Attorney, who ordered a grand jury inquiry, intimated he would not call members of the family until after midnight Saturday, the deadline the elder Boettcher has set for the release of his son.

Asked what he would do in the event the kidnapers failed to free young Boettcher by that hour, Boettcher said today:

"What I shall do when that time comes, I have not fully determined. Whatever it is, it will be something very definite, I can assure you of that."

FORGERY HINTED IN 4-YEAR-OLD DEATH QUIZ

Certificate Altered, Says Man Who Probed Boy, Girl Slaying

International News Service.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 24.—A yellowing and grimy death certificate in the dusty archives of the State Bureau of Vital Statistics at Trenton today became an all-absorbing exhibit in the four-year-old Wilson-Roberts tragedy.

Attention was focused on it as cries of forgery and falsification arose, following announcement that the document ascribed the death of Horace Roberts, Jr., to a spinal fracture.

Melvin W. Cain, former Coroner of Camden, who filed it, emphatically declared:

"If that is what the certificate actually shows, then it's a forgery. The certificate I made out gives a skull fracture as the cause of death."

Cain, at present an undertaker in Camden, occupied the office of Coroner on June 1, 1929, when Roberts and Ruth M. Wilson were discovered stretched across a bed in the girl's Moorestown home. Roberts died later in a Camden hospital.

The reputed discrepancy, it is expected, will receive official attention from Burlington County Prosecutor Howard Eastwood, who is expected to conclude his examination of witnesses by the first of next week.

Asked if he would interrogate members of the Wilson family, or whether he would present his evidence to the grand jury, Eastwood refused comment.

Girl, Two Boys Fly Planes 'Solo' After Less Than 3 Hours in Air

"THREE MUSKETEERS OF THE AIR"....THEY ALL SOLOED IN THREE HOURS OF STUDY

NEIGHBORS ACT TO SAVE STOCK

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 24.—The proposed sale of livestock on the farm of 76-year-old Mrs. Rhoda Gourley, near Vandergrift, was postponed yesterday, but there were enough of her neighbors on hand to bid on the stock had the sale been held.

The sale was called off, Sheriff William H. Humes said, when the note holder ordered no action be taken toward collecting on the $400 judgment.

Neighboring farmers were outspoken in their declaration that the stock would have been bought in with low bids.

Mrs. Gourley, mother of 11, said the note was given for three horses and two cows purchased from a farmer. The note was finally transferred and when it was due last September, Mrs. Gourley was unable to meet it. She said she offered to continue paying interest, but was refused. The judgment was obtained.

Electric Wire Kills Former Pittsburgher

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Joseph E. Miller, 29, a former Pittsburgher, employed by the Baker Federal Bakery, touched a live wire today and was electrocuted. Efforts of a first aid crew to revive him failed. His parents live in the Homewood district of Pittsburgh.

'Three Musketeers' Now Pride of Airport

Three musketeers of the air—two boys and a girl—who made initial solo flights after less than three hours of instruction, are the pride of Curtiss-Bettis Airport today.

The newest member of the flying musketeers, 16-year-old Robert Pypher, of Lincoln Place, is the youngest student pilot in Pennsylvania and needs only eight more hours in the air in order to get a pilot's license. Pypher, a senior in Taylor Allderdice High School, explained his interest in flying, saying:

"I've been loafing around the port ever since I was a bit of a kid. When I was 14 I won an aviation essay contest and received a free ground school course in flying. My ambition is to become an airplane demonstrator."

Sally Callahan, of 5906 Callowhill street, who learned to fly last month also has her honors to look to. The 22-year-old girl soloed above Curtiss-Bettis field after two hours and five minutes' instruction.

The third flying musketeer, William Welsh, 19, of 1126 Berkshire road, prefers flying to high school sports. The former South Hills High School football star said:

"I love the sound of an airplane motor and I can't wait until I get my own plane."

GIRL IN 'SLAVE' CASE SLAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—A parallel with the gang slaying of Vivian Gordon was seen today by police investigating the murder of Alice Mason, 23, star witness in a white slave investigation three years ago, who was taken for a one way "ride" last night.

The girl's body, a wound at the base of the skull, was hurled from a speeding car on the Lower East Side.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said:

"It looks like another Vivian Gordon case. In each, it looks like the woman knew too much about white slavers and underworld persons."

Miss Mason, who came here from Portland, Me., in 1929 to seek a stage career, was well dressed and wore a diamond engagement ring.

OHIO MAN KILLS OFFICIAL, SELF

BAD ELEPHANTS MAY BE SAVED BY ROMANCE

Hawaii Daisy, Doomed To Die, Gets Proposal Of Tusko, of Seattle

HONOLULU, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Having decided to cure Daisy, Hawaii's only elephant, of loneliness and ennui by killing her, the Hawaiian Humane Society today cast about for means of doing it, finding elephant killing no ordinary task.

Meanwhile the keeper of another lonesome elephant, Tusko, of Seattle, offered to send him to keep Daisy company and save her life.

For many years Daisy has been a member of the Waikiki Zoo, but he became fractious and was chained up.

In a letter to Mayor Fred Wright the humane society characterized Daisy's predicament as "condemned like a galley slave, chained by one foot in heat, sun and rain to a dying keawe tree."

DEATH DECREED

The mayor and board of supervisors assented readily to suggestions that Daisy be put out of her misery.

One suggestion to John Dassel, who as manager of the humane society's animal home will be Daisy's lord high executioner, was to borrow a high-powered army rifle. It was pointed out Daisy might object to poisoning and sufficient chloroform to kill her might use up a good part of the town's supply.

A last suggestion was that Daisy should be taken outside the harbor on a barge and dropped overboard with a ton or so of pig iron around her neck—or trunk.

Meanwhile Daisy is free to anybody who wants her, but not f. o. b. She stands for delivery at the dying keawe tree.

Incidentally, Daisy who is of African extraction, is some times bad tempered and has a habit of throwing things.

ROMANCE LOOMS

SEATTLE, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Honolulu can have Tusko, Seattle's famed "white elephant," as a playmate for lonesome Daisy, merely by paying Tusko's past due board bill.

Barney B. Lustig, president of the City Park Board, informed that Daisy is "dying of loneliness and ennui, made the offer. He said:

"Tusko is in the same fix exactly. He has an affectionate nature, and he's lonesome. This makes him so sad he often tries to slaughter his attendants, probably because they are not young lady elephants, and they grate on his sensitive nerves."

Lustig said Honolulu could have the outlaw "f. o. b. Seattle, but paying his past keep. He said:

"Tusko was lonesome, but we didn't shoot him. We merely chained him, put a concrete and iron fense around him, and fed him his lunch with a 10-foot pitchfork."

Police Capture Bear In Central Park

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Wierd cries mingled with the shriek of the wind in the bare trees of Central Park last night. Policemen on the beat organized a small searching party, flashed lights along the shrubs and boulders.

Behind a rock they found Barney—4-year-old bear. He had strayed from a cage of the park zoo nearby and was suffering from indigestion, lonesomeness or both. He was coaxed back home.

Jury Evidence Lacking In Paul Bern Death

LOS ANGELES, Feb 24.—(AP.)—Definite decision as to any grand jury investigation of the death of Paul Bern, motion picture producer and husband of Jean Harlow, screen star, was held in abeyance today by Foreman W. W. Widenham, of the grand jury.

District Attorney Buron Fitts said:

"Until some concrete evidence to the contrary is produced to challenge the verdict of the inquest that Bern's death was a suicide, no action is contemplated by me."

Widenham revealed that he has interviewed 52 witnesses on information from undisclosed sources. He said he planned to question others, but added that so far nothing to warrant a grand jury investigation has been disclosed by his personal inquiry.

Mrs. Freiderike Marcus, a sister of Bern, said she had not asked any investigation and would take no voluntary part in one. She said:

'Sissy' Lion Executed To End Zoo Terrors

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Zimba, a California-born lion, was killed here because he was a sissy.

He was gassed in a dog and cat hospital at the insistence of his owner, Russell Voelpel, who said the lion found life in a local zoo too terrifying and the food too tough.

Voelpel bought the lion from a Los Angeles lion farm and installed him as a pet in a soft drink parlor at Clinton, Ia. Deciding to move to Independence, Mo., Voelpel brought the lion here recently and gave him to the Swope Park Zoo.

The monkeys, the tiger, the leopard and the elephants set up a furore of jungle noises to greet the new zoo member. Zimba trembled in fright.

Large hunks of meat were tossed to him, but he refused to eat.

Voelpel explained:

"I brought that lion up from babyhood. He's suffering out here. And now you're going to operate on him. I can't stand it."

The proposed operation was for the filling of some bad teeth.

Zimba leaped to the front of the cage yesterday upon seeing Voelpel and licked his master's hand. He gladly entered a transportable cage prepared for him, because he believed he was going back to his master. But Voelpel had no place to keep him. So Zimba died, ironically enough, at a dog and cat hospital. He was 2 years old.

BANKRUPT, MAN FACES CLAIMS OF EX-WIFE

Universal Service.

OWEGO, N. Y., Feb. 24.—His divorced wife and her mother were among the persons who filed claims yesterday at the meeting here of creditors of Mermon Leonard Underhill, voluntary bankrupt.

Underhill, 35, a Yale graduate, lost heavily in the stock mar'et debacle. He is now employed in a Rochester bank.

His petition in bankruptcy filed in the United States District Court in Utica lists his liabilities as $192,700 and his assets at $60,000.

CLAIMS FILED

Mrs. Berthe M. Lent, of San Francisco, his mother-in-law, was represented by counsel at yesterday's hearing before Federal Referee Jackson, of Ithaca. She filed a claim for $51,298. This was in the form of a judgment she obtained for money lent to Underhill on a note. A life insurance policy partially secured it.

Ruth Lent Underhill, the wife, whom Underhill married in San Francisco in 1922, filed claims for $13,378 on personal notes.

They were divorced in 1931, their three children living with the mother in Rochester. Ruth, the oldest, is 10. She has a sister, Jean, 9, and a brother, Hermon, Jr., 7.

MARKET LOSSES

The majority of other claims filed by creditors were from banks which advanced loans to Underhill while he was trying to stem his market losses.

Underhill is a member of a family that dates back to the colonial days in Tioga County. Stephen B. Leonard, one of his forebears, was a member of Congress in 1850.

The creditors have agreed on the appointment of Paul Beecher, cashier of the First National Bank of Oswego, as trustee. A major portion of Underhill's assets are in securities of depreciated market value.

MINERS CLASH; DEPUTY SHOT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Authorities posted extra guards today at the Peerless Coal mine north of here following a battle between deputy sheriffs and members of the Progressive Miners of America last night. One special deputy was wounded and several others suffered injuries.

Three hundred pickets met a crew of working miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, as they left the colliery at the end of their day's work. Fifty special deputies were guarding the shaft.

As the working miners climbed into automobiles the picketers began hurling rocks and in the clash that followed a shot was fired, wounding Ray Cooley, a deputy, in the foot. A score of others were less seriously injured by clubs and stones. The deputies finally drove the picketing miners away.

ASST. U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY ZENO FRITZ WITH THE FRUITS OF A NARCOTIC RAID

ONCE WEALTHY KILLER, 63, FREE

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Overcome with emotion as the gates swung open to freedom, Jacob Goldstein, 63, former wealthy Los Angeles and Columbus (O.) financier and confessed killer, today was released on parole from San Quentin Prison.

He smiled at hundreds of other convicts, who knew him as "Popper Jack," as he "traded in" his prisoner clothes for a new civilian suit, a railroad ticket, and $10 in cash, the State's farewell gift.

Tears clouded his spectacles as he shouted:

"I'm going home boys!

"I'm returning to New York where I got my start in life.

"Although I'm an old man now, I'm going back into business with the spirit of modern youth. Times may be hard, but I'll be able to 'hang on.' I'm sure."

Goldstein, formerly owner of a chain of large stores in eastern states, went to Los Angeles in 1922 and became president of the Rothschild Finance Corporation. He shot to death Frederick A. Sterm, general manager of his firm, following a fight in Los Angeles, July 15, 1927. He claimed Sterm attacked him with a hammer during a business argument.

Hunt Postal Clerk In Fund Shortage

Postoffice inspectors today revealed a search was being made for Carl Uber, 34, a money order clerk for 10 years at Grove City. The inspectors said Uber disappeared February 17, while an inspection was being made at Grove City. They charge Uber's accounts were found to have a $300 to $400 shortage. Information of embezzlement has been made before the United States commissioner at Meadville.

Federal Prosecutor Tells of 10-Year War on Rings

Pittsburgh no longer bears the reputation of being one of the biggest inland centers in the "dope" traffic, and has contributed much toward stamping out its evils.

Commenting on the observance of National Narcotics Education week, Assistant United States Attorney Zeno Fritz, prosecutor of many narcotics cases, said today conditions here are far different than in the days of the celebrated Jin Fuey Moy. Yet law enforcement officers must be ever on the alert, he said, to keep the illicit drugs under control.

ONCE DOPE CENTER

A decade or so ago, the Pittsburgh area played an important part in distribution of "dope." One of the outstanding figures in the traffic was Jin Fuey Moy, who was convicted in 1915 and sent to prison. His case attracted national attention, for it was the first test of the new Harrison anti-narcotics act. Dr. Moy, who returned to Pittsburgh after serving his prison term, is dead.

Rigid enforcement of federal and state laws, education and legislation have brought about the change, Attorney Fritz said.

DEPRESSION AIDS

The depression has contributed in curbing the traffic, since the prices that must be paid for narcotics are prohibitive in many cases, Fritz said.

"The price of morphine has increased from $65 to $125 an ounce since about 1927, and it is obtained now only in adulterated form. In the past year, at least 25 addicts have surrendered to undergo 'cures' because they are unable to pay the price, and must have relief."

Pittsburgh contributed one of the most outstanding foes of the "dope" traffic in the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter. Congressman Porter was largely responsible for bringing about agreements of foreign countries to aid the United States' efforts to control the narcotics traffic.

KEEPS PROMISE TO BREAK JAIL

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Pattie Farren has made good his boast that they haven't built the jail yet that can hold him.

Word was received here today that the self-acclaimed "best safe cracker in the business" has pried his way out of the jail at Everett, Washington.

Pattie, who weighs 200 pounds, stands six feet two inches, and boasted here that he is wanted for "jobs" in 300 communities in 40 states, was returned to Everett with a girl friend, Eva Osborn, 19, to face a charge of holding up two priests.

DOPE TRADE HIT BY CLOSING OF PLANTS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The Bulgarian government has dealt a severe blow at the international narcotic traffic in the suppression of the manufacturing plants which were transferred from Turkey to Bulgaria, according to advices received at the State Department.

As soon as the Bulgarian government became aware of this undesirable addition to the industrial activity of the country an investigation was started with the view of enforcing effective measures to stamp out the production of drugs for the illicit traffic.

The Bulgarian government has made several arrests, including an American, Maurice Levinson, who, it is alleged, was found in possession of a double bottom trunk and other containers fitted for the smuggling of drugs. As there were no drugs in the containers at that time, the action against him was limited to deportation.

Other persons arrested on the charge of violating the narcotics law are Leonoff Goldstein and Maurice Shalon Blitz. The latter was caught attempting to smuggle a large quanity of heroin out of the country. They are awaiting trial.

Meantime, Bulgaria furnished the French government information that resulted in the seizure of 25 kilograms of morphine concealed in Bulgarian cheeses destined for the United States.

Gold Room Session 'Set Afire' By Sprigle's Pipe

County Commissioners meeting in the "gold room" yesterday were interrupted several minutes when paper in a cuspidor became ignited from pipe ashes dumped into the receptacle by Director of Property and Supplies Ray Sprigle. The blaze was quickly extinguished by Sprigle and Director of Parks A. M. Marion, while Commissioner C. M. Barr moved that the windows be opened to ventilate the room.

WATERS WRITES B.E.F. 'SECRETS'

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Refusal to accept arms from sympathetic service men prevented open warfare between the Bonus Expeditionary Forces and the federal troops that would have given the administration a campaign slogan of "Hoover vs Radicalism," former Commander Walter W. Waters contends today in a book giving inside facts on the Washington seige.

Waters tells for the first time how he says service men offered arms, on the day of eviction, from the Baltimore Armory, Brooklyn Navy Yard and Quantico to the bonus veterans. Telling his view of the administration plans he said:

"'Hoover vs Radicalism' was to be one of the points in the coming elections, with the B. E. F. as proof to the point. To drive out the B. E. F., if only they would make some trouble, would be fine play for conservative opinion."

The book, entitled, "The Whole Story of the Bonus Army," will be published March 2. Waters places actual blame for the trouble upon the Commissioners of Washington. He accuses them of "double-crossing" him at a vital moment.

WIDOW PARDONS T. R.'S 'JAILER'

SEATTLE, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—It took him 35 years to do it, but Dr. Ira C. Brown, Seattle school health officer, finally has apologized to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

At a reception for the widow of the former President here Dr. Brown stepped up and said:

"I wonder if you remember me, Mrs. Roosevelt? I've been waiting for 35 years to beg your pardon. I was Maj. Brown, of the Sixth Calalry . . ."

Mrs. Roosevelt, feigning anger, broke in:

"Why! You're the man who quarantined my husband! and was I mad!"

She led Dr. Brown to a seat and they recalled how in August, 1898, Maj. Brown, camp quarantine officer at Montauk Point, N. Y., twice on successive days caught Col. Roosevelt trying to sneak out of quarantine to visit his wife, who was living nearby.

Colombian Gunboats Sunk, Peru Reports

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A Peruvian government bulletin issued today announced that dispatches from Para said the Colombian gunboats, Narino and Pinchincha, had been sunk in a battle on February 14. Peruvian airplanes reconnoitering in the vicinity have not sighted any of the Colombian gunboats previously in that vicinity.

AGE PENSIONS APPEAL SENT

Members of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Security League today wrote the six members of the Senate Committee on Pensions and Gratuities who voted against the old age pension amendment to reconsider when the committee meets again Monday.

The league declared that if the amendment is approved Pennsylvania can save approximately $2,000,000 annually or can care for about 8,500 more persons than at present.

SUNDAY SHOW IN EAST END

Pittsburghers again will have an opportunity to donate food to the poor next Sunday. Another movie benefit show is announced for the Sheridan Square Theater in East Liberty for the needy of Sacred Heart Parish of which the Rev. John J. Coakley is the pastor. The affair is in direct charge of the Rev. E. Francis O'Connell and the Emerson Club, which, incidentally, looks after the welfare activities of the parish—irrespective of what church the beneficiaries attend.

The only requirement for tickets at this Sunday show will be donations of canned goods or standard package groceries and Father O'Connell has set his goal on 10 tons. He says he needs all of that. The show will begin at 2 o'clock and will run continuously until 11 o'clock. Cash will not be accepted for admission — food only.

Manager J. O. Hooley of the Sheridan Square Theater promises a corking big show—well worth all the food any one person can carry.

MORE CHILDREN EXAMINED FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Economic conditions have brought a large increase in the number of children receiving examinations in the dispensaries of the Tuberculosis League, according to the report for 1932.

An increase of 40 per cent in the number of visits by children in 1932 as compared with the previous 12 months is reported by officials of the League. It is believed the increased attention to the health of the children is attributable, at least in part, to the spreading of knowledge on the value of learning about the disease in its early stages.

The total number of patients visiting the dispensaries in 1932 was 18 per cent greater than in 1931, including both children and adults. An even larger number of examinations is expected this year, with January totaling 20 per cent above January, 1932, and the highest figure in the history of the institution.

The educational work of the league has long stressed the importance of protecting the children by an early examination, according to Alice E. Stewart, general superintendent. The league was the first organization of its kind to sponsor and organize a program of tuberculosis prevention to be carried out through the medium of the schools, she stated.

The plan has been widely copied in the United States and other countries, she pointed out.

Readers Favor Wives In Home-maker Role

Jobs Upheld Only When Necessary For Maintenance

A pertinent question in this age of economic independence for women has been raised by Elsie Robinson, Sun-Telegraph feature writer. "Should Wives Hold Jobs?" is the query, and the many letters received indicate that people have pronounced opinions on the subject.

Most replies are agreed that in the final analysis, woman's place is in the home. Some few bored housewives offer the only dissenting answers.

The first prize for the answer, $5, goes to Kay Jacqueline Walker, 1320 Termon avenue, North Side, Pittsburgh, who said:

"Decidedly no. The luxuries thus gained in no sense offset the incompleteness of a home that knows only a part-time mistress. The creation and maintenance of home atmosphere is a full-time job; the substitute artificiality of the 'business' home becomes self-evident as the years advance, fostering a sense of dissatisfaction that spells doom to marital happiness."

The second prize, $3, is awarded Miss Mabel M. Goodwin, of 666 Boggs avenue, Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh, who submitted this letter:

"Yes and no. A decisive answer depends entirely upon the circumstances governing individual cases. If it is necessary to help support an invalid husband or dependent members of a family, let the wife by all means do her share. But if it is simply to put in time, have added luxuries—No!"

The third prize, $1, goes to Miss Olive Fleming, 2369 Freemont place, Pittsburgh, who wrote:

"Yes, when necessity demands, and only then. Whether a woman has children or not, her job is wifehood, and all that the word involves, when she marries. Even in this fast age of freedom and freelancing, there is something indefinable taken from the home atmosphere when the wife 'works.'"

William Barber, 9 Vinceton street, Beltzhoover, Pittsburgh, is given the fourth prize of $1. His reply is:

"Except in the comparatively few cases where conditions necessitates the wife's supporting help, she has no right to hold a job. When a woman marries, her job is to glorify the home, and all opinions to the contrary, she cannot perform this sacred duty well with a job on her mind."

From time to time other questions will be raised by Miss Robinson. Watch for them. Her regular column entitled "Listen World" appears regularly on the editorial page of the Sun-Telegraph.

WINNERS

PROTESTS BAN ON MARCHERS

A. G. Harper, state secretary of the American Civil Liberties Union, today protested against Mayor Eddie McCloskey's refusal to permit next Monday's "hunger March" to pass through Johnstown en route to Harrisburg. The Mayor's action is "contrary to the constitutional rights of these people," Harper said in making public a letter he sent to McCloskey.

Harper's statement in part was:

"There is no excuse for getting hysterical over this latest 'hunger march.' We have had them before and, except where authorities became panic-stricken and resorted to foolish arrests, they went off without any trouble. The Governor and Legislature are treating the matter in the proper manner."

Hunter Jailed Year For Shooting 2 Men

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Henry Glance, of Karthaus, father of eight children, today was serving his sentence of one year in county jail for wounding two men in a Clinton County lumber camp while hunting deer at night last fall.

Glance fired at a light, thinking it was a deer's eye shining in the darkness, he said. The bullet wounded Earl Coudriet and Andrew Gavelock, asleep in the same bunk in the camp. Their hospital and medical bills totaled $851.40. Glance was ordered to pay a fine of that amount.

HEROES OF SEA GET NEW POSTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Capt. Giles C. Stedman, master of the American Merchant and hero of two thrilling sea rescues in the last few years, has been promoted to one of the prized berths of the United States lines, staff captain of the Flagship Leviathan, it was announced today.

He was navigator and chief officer of the Leviathan for several years until he was made master of the American Merchant, his first command. His most recent exploit was the rescue of 22 men from the sinking British freighter, Exeter City, in a gale January 20.

In his new post he ranks second only to Commodore A. B. Randall, master of the Leviathan.

Capt. George Fried, another hero of daring rescues, has been ordered transferred from the new United States liner Manhattan, commissioned last August, to be master of the liner Washington, sister ship of the Manhattan now nearing completion at Camden, N. J.

IF a wife is worth having, she's worth dressing well. Send her in to Harris'—and as little as 14c a day will send her back to you a completely transformed lady—correct in fashion, modern as the moment.

The Petite Young Thing Pictured Above, Has Indulged in a Bit of Jacketeering; and Is She Thrilled

—about her adventures on the Harris Fashion Floors. She found lots of adorable models—far more than ever before—found just what she wanted—made no specified first payment, and says she will trickle in with a small sum on odd week-ends. She had her choice of cash or Extended Charge. In either case the price was the same. But, being a young little person, and earning her money in dribs and drabs, she preferred paying us that way. What an economical little wife SHE'S going to be. And here's what the lady bought . . .

The Tweed Suit $15

—with the military swagger-tied cape — and the suit as trig as anything we've seen this season. The suit modeled is a delight in Grey, but you may choose Navy, Tan or Tweeds. Sizes 14 to 20. Other double-breasted or single-breasted suits also at $15.
SECOND FLOOR

Her Chiffon Stockings . . . 69c

FIRST FLOOR

The Reptilian Shoes . . . 2.95

What smarter walking shoes than these serpentines? And chosen perfectly to go with the suit the young lady is wearing. Note the Cuban (sensible walking) heel now in ascending vogue. Many models at $2.95. FIRST FLOOR

Cash or Extended Charge?

No more modern plan has ever been devised for the purchase of men's, women's and children's apparel than the plan in vogue at Harris'. Regardless of what you buy, in any part of the establishment, the price is the same whether you elect to pay cash or use of popular Extended Charge Plan. You will be surprised at the smartness of the fashions here at most moderate figures — and be delighted with the pleasant way your purchases can be made at this modernized, forward-going fashion store.

SECRET GROUP IN CUBA WARS ON PRESIDENT

(Editor's Note—This is the fourth of a series of stories based upon a first-hand survey of present conditions in Cuba. To avoid possible Cuban censorship, the articles were written and sent from Miami.)

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

MIAMI, Feb. 24.—Popular opposition to the dictatorial regime of President Machado in Cuba has resulted in the organization of a curious society known only as "ABC."

To this group is accredited most of the terroristic activities against the Machado administration, which have included bombings of public buildings, and a dozen assassinations of public officials, the most prominent of whom was Dr. Vasquez Bello, president of the Cuban Senate, and a prime favorite of the President's.

All Havana, now under martial law and drastic censorship, and all Cuba for that matter knows of the "ABC." But who composes it, and the extent of its organization are matters that are in dispute.

The most reliable authority in the island estimates the strength of the "ABC" as upwards of 5,000 persons, both men and women. Some of them, many in fact, are students; some are intellectuals, some labor leaders, and some out-and-out radicals.

DEATH FOR DEATH

It is a secret organization, and even the meaning of the symbols "ABC" is generally unknown. Many explanations can be had about the sidewalk cafes of Havana as to the meaning of the letters. But the most commonly accepted is that each letter stands for a particular group of bitter and implacable enemies to President Machado and his dictatorship.

Thus "A" would represent a group of intellectuals who decide upon the major questions of policy in reprisals against the Machado regime for its unconstitutional acts; "B," an executive group which plans these violent reprisals, and "C," a younger group of radicals and students who actually carry out the violence.

Between the "ABC" and the Machado secret police there is unending warfare. Killing is matched with killing, with the government forces thus far having the best of it so far as numbers are concerned.

The Machado government claims that the organization is anarchistic and nihilistic, and that it is dictated by Communist sympathizers. But a good many responsible authorities in Havana do not concede this. They do concede that there are some radicals in the organization, that some, in fact, may be Communistic, but they contend that the main body of the organization is composed of normally moderate citizens who are intent upon visiting retribution upon the Machado administration for its denial of popular rights.

GIRLS CARRY BOMBS

Be that as it may, the "ABC" is an active and potent force in the Cuban life of today. Some of the sons and daughters of prominent families are reputed to be connected with it.

A captain in the Cuban army, who occupies a position of trust and responsibility in the Machado organization, was authority for the statement that a number of young girls of student age are known to be identified with the organization, although proving it is difficult. These girls are reported to actually carry bombs, on occasion, when their male comrades would be more likely to be suspected. A military fiesta was cancelled in Havana a few weeks ago when reports reached the secret police that three girls would carry the bombs in an "ABC" attack.

It is purely a Cuban affair. Foreigners are not molested. The spots picked out for bombingg are either public buildings, or places where tourists seldom congregate.

A few demonstrations have been made, however, against the American embassy because of the anti-Machado faction's feeling that Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim has been too "friendly" with the Machado administration none of them have amounted to much.

Cruelty to Animals Proves to Be Ball Game

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A purported fight at Tuscaloosa, Ala., recently between a wildcat and a bulldog that caused the American Humane Association to request an investigation today turned out to have been a basketball game.

Here's Gov. B. M. Miller's letter in reply to a request from N. J. Walker, of Albany, N. Y., president of the American Humane Association, for a state investigation:

"Recently there was a basketball game between two high schools in Tuscaloosa. One team called the Bulldogs and the other the Wildcats. Some reporters in writing up the game used the expressions 'The Bulldogs and Wildcats' and referred to the game as a fight."

Mr. Lissfelt

The glee clubs of Pennsylvania College for Women and Carnegie Tech joined forces last night in the auditorium in Woodland road and sang a long program of choral works with quartets by groups from each chorus.

It was rather shocking to hear the poor quality of Tech's performance. Slovenly diction, careless intonation, and certainly no great masterpieces to give these singers their chance marked their program. Worse still was the soloist, Anthony Noce, violinist; it was impudence to play so badly at a public concert.

The Tech quartet, Peeler, Bailey, Horner and Frack, sang some rollicking music with little blending of the four voices. Edward Johe and C. Richard Ginder played accompaniments, and Mr. Noce directed.

Now the singing of the P. C. W. chorus was quite another matter. Their tone is more consistent, their diction is not only polished, but one actually understands most of what they sing. Their quartet—Misses Young, Sekey, Graham and Ray—also outshone the gentlemen rivals.

The Morning Musicale at Hotel Schenley yesterday presented Marguerite Lang, soprano, and Samuel Di Primio, tenor.

Miss Lang has a very beautiful voice and she sings quite intelligently. She must be a good student too for her songs are always well prepared. Sometimes she is somewhat breathy in the lower voice, but somehow the quality of her singing does make its appeal.

Mr. Di Primio is becoming the most popular tenor about town. Yesterday he showed once more his marvelous gifts for operatic singing. With Miss Lang he sang a duet from "Cavaleria Rusticana" which might have been rehearsed more carefully.

Both singers were well received and sang encores. Miss Lefridge again played accompaniments.

'PHONE CHARGE STAYS UNTIL '35

No partiality will be shown to long-time users of the hand-set type of telephone, as a result of the Public Service Commission order suspending the 25 cents extra charge on such 'phones, William Bradford, division manager for the Bell Telephone Company here, said today.

Until February 15, 1935, when the commission's ruling is effective, all subscribers to the "French" type 'phone must continue the extra payments, according to Bradford.

Further comment on the commission's action came from P. C. Staples, operating vice president of the company, at Philadelphia, who said:

"The company is disappointed, as it feels that its handling of the so-called hand-sets was amply sustained by the evidence produced during the investigation. Nevertheless, it will file an amendment to its tariff as ordered by the commission."

The amendment will outline the details of operation of the new ruling. It must be passed on by the commission.

CRIPPLE HUNTED AS U. S. FORGER

John Frisby, 55, a cripple, who until recently resided in a Water street hotel, is being sought by postoffice inspectors, who charge he forged and cashed a $30 postal money order mailed to Luther Willoughby, a fellow-roomer at the Water street establishment.

Frisby, according to the inspectors, sent a letter to Willoughby's sister in Maryland saying her brother was dangerously ill and in need of money to return home. A letter bearing a $30 money order was mailed by the sister to her brother in care of general delivery here. Frisby, it is charged, obtained it by representing himself as Willoughby.

Frisby was described by the inspectors as having an artificial leg, bald-head and weighing about 160 pounds.

CITY OFFICIALS BACK HEARST PROGRAM

The plan of William Randolph Hearst to restore prosperity and assure against future depressions laid before the Senate Finance Committee in Washington today had the following enthusiastic indorsement by Pittsburgh city officials:

Councilman P. J. McArdle:

"Contrary to the general practice, public works programs of large proportions should be carried out during periods of business recession. Such a policy would have the dual beneficial effect of stabilizing business and getting public work done at a more moderate cost. Such a policy, however, also entails a great spirit of co-operation on the part of the public so that too great demands would not be made on public agencies for such public projects during periods of general prosperity as is usually the case. The thought should be developed with a view to having it a fixed policy of all branches of government that spend public money for public works or improvements."

Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer, Department of Public Works:

"I am in favor of such a plan and believe it would do much to restore prosperity to the country. It is far superior to any dole system. A policy of public construction will put money into the proper channels."

Councilman Clifford B. Connelley:

"Large public works projects in this time of depression will, in my opinion, do much to relieve unemployment and assist in bringing back normal business conditions. I have favored such a policy for some time past."

PAULETTA ASKS FOR PARDON

Frank Pauletta, a former Coverdale miner, known as Louis Ross, whose fight to escape a 16-year-old penalty of death sentence imposed against him in West Virginia thrilled the nation, has launched a battle for a pardon. He has been granted a hearing by the West Virginia Board of Pardons in Charleston, W. Va., March 25.

Pauletta, sentenced to die in West Virginia 18 years ago for a murder near Clarksburg, escaped on the eve of the execution and fled into Pennsylvania. A year ago he was captured at Coverdale after thrilling chase in Coverdale mines. Taken back to Clarksburg he was re-sentenced to death and the sentence later commuted to life imprisonment by Gov. W. G. Conley. Italian organizations are financing Pauletta's fight for freedom.

West View Honors Former Fire Chief

Andrew Kelly, former West View fire chief, was given a testimonial dinner last night by West View volunteer firemen. Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, the principal speaker, presented Kelly with a smoking set. Fred S. Wertenbach also spoke. James Nash was toastmaster.

FINANCE EXPERT LAUDS HEARST PROGRAM

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—There was much favorable comment today on William Randolph Hearst's six-point program for restoring prosperity. In a letter to the Senate Finance Committee Mr. Hearst urged an extensive program of public works, a sales tax, government ownership of railroads and reasonable reflation.

Some of the statements follow:

Dr. Marcus Nadler, research director of the Institute of International Finance, and finance professor at New York University:

"The public works program of Mr. Hearst is sound in every respect. It is the most effective available method of relieving unemployment. A government bond issue for this purpose is the only feasible plan.

"I also strongly approve Mr. Hearst's 'reflation' proposal, that is, the issuance of bonds, to be redeemed in times of prosperity, as a substitute for what would undoubtedly be ruinous currency inflation."

S. Stanwood Menken, prominent lawyer, of New York:

"I am heartily in favor of practically all of Mr. Hearst's program, particularly of home market protection.

"It is to be recognized that other nations have taken care of themselves and it is time for America to safeguard American interests. As to the railroad program, I am not sufficiently advised to talk, but it seems to me that some day we will come to the European system of government control to which there is no objection if it can be properly regulated to assure efficient service.

"There is one other point that it seems to me Mr. Hearst might well consider, and that is insuring deposits in banks chartered by the national government. This course if adopted now would reassure confidence, stop hoarding and give added value to the dollar saved by industry. It would be very interesting to have the benefit of Mr. Hearst's views on this subject."

Abram I. Elkus, New York, former ambassador to Turkey:

"While I do not agree entirely with Mr. Hearst in his statement as to the causes of the depression, I do agree with his statement of its effects. I thoroughly agree with his statement as to the fund to be accumulated in good times and to be expended on public improvements in bad times, to keep people employed at all times.

"I thoroughly agree with the recommendation not to levy additional taxes at this time, as the people are unable to pay them. I agree that the farmers must be aided by lending them money on mortgage at low rates of interest which may be increased when times are better."

Untermeyer Agrees On Railroad Problem

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24.—(Universal.) — Enthusiastic indorsement of William Randolph Hearst's six-point program for restoring prosperity to America was voiced here today.

Typical of the indorsements was that of Samuel Untermyer, noted New York attorney:

"That letter again confirms my oft publicly expressed opinion, based upon Mr. Hearst's many previous utterances, that he is the most outstanding, far-seeing, courageous statesman of our day.

"His then highly unpopular opposition to our entry into the World War will long be remembered as the most courageous act of his wonderful career.

"His constructive recommendations on the present crisis are superbly stated and concisely argued.

"By a strange coincidence, I had, before the publication in the Hearst papers a few days ago of editorials on the railroad situation, and before Mr. Hearst's letter, written and dispatched an address that is to be delivered at a luncheon at the University Club on Monday next entitled, 'Hobson's Choice: Government Ownership or Bankruptcy of the Railroads,' taking the same view of the railroad situation.

"Not the least important of Mr. Hearst's outstanding and valuable recommendations is that for the protection of our home markets from further invasion which he has, for weeks, been trying to hammer home. I would go still further and should, if necessary, at least so long as this emergency continues, enclose our markets by a Chinese wall that nothing short of reciprocal tariffs could surmount."

Oscar Lawler, prominent barrister and former Assistant Attorney General of the United States:

"The suggestions in Mr. Hearst's letter to Senator Smoot are timely and constructive. The need for employment relief is imperative. Expansion of useful public works is the most effective means of meeting the emergency. It seems to me there could and should be a more direct and active co-operation between local, state and national agencies to that end.

SUTTON SPEEDS CHINESE ARMY 'ORDERS'

Noted Correspondent Leaves for 'Front' In Jehol

(Editor's Note—Maj. Gen. Frank M. Sutton, the famous "One-Arm" Sutton, brilliant British writer, and one of the world's most picturesque soldiers of fortune, is en route to the Sino-Japanese battlefront in Jehol Province to report on the Far Eastern war for International News Service.

Maj. Gen. Sutton, who earned his nickname when he lost an arm at Gallipoli during the World War, is one of the best-informed military men in the Far East. He held a commission as major general in the Manchurian army of the late Marshal Chang Tso-Lin.

A graduate of Eton and the University of London, a former gold prospector in Siberia and road-builder in South America, Sutton went to China after the World War. To him was given a large share of credit for Chang Tso-Lin's victory over Gen. Wu Pei-Fu and the capture of Peiping in the Chinese revolution of 1924.

Maj. Gen. Sutton's first dispatch, describing his departure from Peiping, follows.)

By MAJ. GEN. F. M. SUTTON
Special War Correspondent of International News Service.

EN ROUTE TO THE JEHOL BATTLEFRONT, Feb. 24.—Bearing impressive documents from Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang ordering all Chinese commanders at the front to "tremble and obey," I got out of Peiping at midnight and started for the Jehol battlefront aboard a huge American motor truck.

Roughly translated into American, his order to "tremble and obey" means snap out of it. He admonished his commanders to co-operate and pass my expedition through the battle lines.

We had to buy the motor truck for the expedition. No Peiping garage would rent us one. The owners were afraid that a misdirected shell might blow it to kingdom come.

SCIENTIST ALONG

In addition to 150 gallons of gasoline, plenty of food, fur clothing and sleeping blankets to cope with the sub-zero gales in the Jehol mountain passes, the expedition consists of Owen Lattimore, a noted Central Asian traveler and authority on the Mongol race, a Chinese boy nick-named "Moses," who has already journeyed from Peiping to India across the Himalayas, and myself.

"Moses" promises to be a valuable adjunct. We are relying on him to prevent anyone from confiscating the caravan.

But in case of emergency, we are all armed with service automatics and have a large flag nailed to the top of the roof, just in case some Japanese airman decides the truck looks like a target for his bombs.

We are shoving out for Chengteh, the capital, which is known in English as Jehol City. But on the way, there will probably be a stop at Chaoyang, at present the center of the hottest fighting.

DETAILS OF CAMPAIGN

I want to get details of the Chinese campaign from Tang Yu-Lin, the Governor of Jehol, whom I knew well in the old days at Mukden. It will be a great adventure to renew my acquaintance with the old-time commanders as well as with the Great Wall, which my trench mortars captured for the Manchurian armies then assaulting Peiping.

Leaving International News Service headquarters in Peiping, we headed out through the ancient Antingmen gate. It was through this gate that Chinese armies have flowed for five centuries to meet barbarian invaders from the North.

The first halt will be made at the sleepy county seat of Miyunhsien for a friendly cup of tea and a word of gossip with the countryfolk. Then through Koupei pass in the Great Wall, which is one of the most important means of entry into Jehol.

From Koupei pass, we face 40 miles of rough mountain roads before we reach Chengteh.

Research Engineer Tells of Study At Meet Here

Chances of lightning striking either a transport airplane or its pilot and passengers are small, E. B. Snyder, research engineer, said in an interview yesterday. Snyder is assisting A. O. Austin at the research labratories in Barberton, O., in an investigation of lightning as applied to the airplane. Snyder spoke at the luncheon of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh at the William Penn Hotel on this subject.

JAPANESE BOLT MEETING OF LEAGUE

East of military aggression, Matsuoka announced he was compelled to withdraw his delegation from the League Assembly.

DELEGATION LEAVES

When he had finished speaking, Matsuoka signalled to the other members of his delegation. The Japanese rose in a body and, with Matsuoka in the lead, stalked out of the assembly room without another word.

While this withdrawal served to demonstrate clearly Japan's firm intention to pursue her preconceived plan of expansion in Manchuria, it spared Japan the necessity of formally resigning from the Leaague of Nations itself and severing all connections with the international organization with which she has been closely concerned since its inception.

Japs Capture Important Town in Offensive

TOKIO, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—With the important town of Kailu under the Manchukuo flag, Japanese troops pressed deep into Jehol province late today, driving toward Chihfeng and Lingyuan, where a major battle is expected.

News of the capture of Kailu, and the subsequent retreat of the Chinese defenders to their second line, caused general rejoicing in the capital. Japanese officials are hopeful that the campaign may be concluded in a few days, but military observers expect stiff resistance.

Capture of Kailu signalized a complete Japanese victory along the 200-mile front extending from Peipaio. Japanese airplanes previously had driven Chinese troops from Chaoyang and other villages along the first line.

The series of Japanese and Manchukuo victories in Jehol during the last 48 hours demonstrated the efficiency of military preparations made within the last few weeks. There are now more Japanese troops on Manchurian soil than at any time since the first outbreak at Mukden in 1931.

U. S. PLANE FIRM BARS JAPS

BALTIMORE, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Three Japanese aviation experts, representing Okura & Co., official contractors to the Imperial Japanese government, have been barred from visiting the airplane plant of the Glenn L. Martin Company, it was learned today.

Officials of the company said the United States government ordered the exclusion of all foreign visitors from the factory.

The Martin company, for years has been engaged in building the "Martin bomber" for the United States government, and recently was given a federal contract for 38 bombing planes, capable of carrying 2,000 pounds of explosives at a speed of 210 miles per hour. The 38 ships are to cost $2,080,590.

The three Japanese representatives are Junichi Miyata, New York representative of the company; Yoshio Ito, its Tokio representative, and Taikichi Hattori, an engineer. The latter carried a small pocket camera.

TAX REFUNDS AGAIN UP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The $28,000,000 for tax refunds which Congress once before approved, but dropped after a presidential veto, was put forward again today in a new deficiency appropriation bill totaling $30,725,000.

It was not the amount of refunds that the President disapproved, but the string to its payment which Congress attached—a requirement that all large tax refunds be passed on by a congressional committee. This was not in the new bill.

The $2,725,000 other than tax refunds in the bill covered such items as:

Nine thousand dollars each to the daughter of the late Representative Robert R. Butler, of Oregon; the widow of the late Representative Godfrey G. Goodwin, of Minnesota, and the daughter of the late Representative Samuel A. Kendall, of Pennsylvania.

There also was included $4,060 to employ seven new messengers needed when the House opens its new office building next month.

OPPOSE CLOSING OF TEACHERS' COLLEGES

Many students will be deprived of college training if four state teachers' colleges are eliminated, as provided in the proposed new school code, heads of Western Pennsylvania institutions said today.

Dr. G. C. L. Reimer, president of Clarion State Teachers' College, said a survey of the teachers' colleges disclosed from 50 to 70 per cent of the students are living at their homes and commuting to classes, rather than being resident students. Many of these will be unable to pursue their studies if the teachers' colleges close, he said.

Dr. Robert M. Steele, president of California State Teachers' College, said the schools touch more closely and more immediately all the children of all the people than any other institutions of higher learning in the state.

Following a public hearing on the code and a joint meeting of representatives of the teachers' colleges and liberal arts colleges in Harrisburg, Dr. C. R. Foster, of Indiana State Teachers' College, said he did not believe the code had "a chance in the world" of being reported from committee for passage by the Legislature.

Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College, who was a member of the committee representing the institutions, said the bill would not pass in its present form, and added:

"Control of the state teachers' colleges should remain as now, in the hands of local boards of trustees, and not any one should be closed. Each has been compelled to turn away students because of the large number of applicants."

STEPS CAUSE DIVORCE SUIT

Her husband told her that if she did not climb 200 steps to do him a favor he would leave her, Rose Brinham, business woman, 432 Main street, testified before Judge John P. Egan in her divorce action against Alden O. Brinham.

As this episode occurred about a month before her baby was born, Mrs. Brinham said, she found it impossible to meet his requirement.

Mrs. Brinham said also she saw her husband in a theater in company with another woman. The Brinhams were married at Wellsburg in 1927 when Mrs. Brinham was 18.

Patrol Bugler?

MARION GIESEY, 13

GIRL VOLUNTEER AS BUGLER

One of the newest members of the Junior Petrol, 13-year-old Marion Giesey, of 117 Biddle avenue, Wilkinsburg, wants to become the official bugler of the organization. In a letter to the Sun-Telegraph, she wrote:

"In tonight's paper I noticed that the 'Mysterious Stranger' had a bugle, so I thought of my own Girl Scout bugle and decided to ask permission to become the official bugler of the Junior Patrol."

Thousands of boys and girls from all parts of Pennsylvania have already sent their pledge cards to the Sun-Telegraph requesting to join the Junior Patrol. If you have not heard of the patrol yet, turn to the comic page and read the comic strip by Quin Hall. Also you will find a pledge card opposite it.

Don't wait to mail your pledge because it will not be long now until separate patrols will be organized in various towns and cities.

SOMERSET, Pa., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Approximately 100 chickens were killed last night as a truck, loaded with live poultry en route from Pittsburgh to the Philadelphia market, turned over on the highway near Jennerstown. Walter W. Walzer, 27, of Pittsburgh, driver of the vehicle, escaped injury.

WABASH TITLE FEE HELD UP

A bill amounting to $2,068 for title search in connection with the proposed purchase of the Wabash Bridge and tunnel by the county, submitted by the Potter Title and Mortgage Guaranty Company, has been held up by the Commissioners, who sought details of the results of the search.

Assistant County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher in October, 1931, authorized the work, but when the purchase was delayed, the search was stopped. H. A. Kenan, vice president of the company, informed the Commissioners there would be no additional charge unless the deal went through and more work was necessary.

E. L. Schmit, head of the County Planning Commission, informed the Commissioners yesterday that a report on the feasibility of using the bridge and tunnel for a traffic artery would be ready within a month.

CITY'S EXPORT TRADE CITED

Pittsburgh's important position in international trade was stressed by J. Rogers Flannery, general chairman of the Twentieth National Foreign Trade Convention, in a radio address over station KQV last night. The convention will be held in Pittsburgh in April. Mr. Flannery said, in part:

"In the tristate area in normal times there are more than 750 firms which manufacture for export. Of these more than one-third are in metropolitan Pittsburgh. The term 'Workshop of the World' is no misnomer for Pittsburgh, and foreign traders will be in a familiar atmosphere when they meet here."

Widow Heiress Only While Staying Unwed

John H. Huber, 1214 Rebecca street, Wilkinsburg, by his will probated yesterday leaves an estate valued at $12,750, providing that his widow, Nannie Huber, is to have the family home and income of the estate so long as she remains unmarried. At her death $1,000 is to go to a son, Harry D. K. Huber, of Point Marion, Pa., and the residue to the three children of his first wife.

The will of A. Katie Schnitzer, Liverpool street, North Side, disposed of an estate valued at $8,000. After special bequests the residue goes to her brothers, Adam J. Schnitzer and George H. Schnitzer, in equal shares.

Leo Made Another Variety of Lion By Club Here

A. T. Weiblinger, president of the organization, gingerly advanced upon Leo in his cage and got close enough to wave the club's banner near him.

Leo roared and snarled his gratitude, or whatever it was. His trainer was also in the cage.

WHEN YOUR STOMACH RUNS AN HOUR SLOW

Most "indigestion" has been found imaginary! The pains and gas and all that misery are real, of course. But nine times in ten they are symptoms only of slow stomach.

Did you know you can regulate your stomach to empty in six hours, as it should? That this is as easy as moving the bowels?

One box of Pape's Diapepsin will test your stomach and correct your digestion time in a couple of days—at a cost of twenty-five cents!

If your stomach is an hour slow, two tablets will remedy the trouble. Then eat anything. Baked beans every noon if you like them, and lobster at midnight suppers. They will digest like crackers and milk in a six-hour stomach!

Pape's Diapepsin is good for you, because it stimulates the gastric flow. Use it freely until the stomach is working right without any help. When it slows down, take diapepsin again for a day or two. This helps coffee drinkers and hard smokers, too.

WOMAN SILENT IN SLAYING

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Funeral services for Mrs. E. E. Frederick, 65, allegedly fatally wounded a week ago by Miss Jane Leslie, 29, of Washington, Pa., were held here today.

Miss Leslie, who lodged at Mrs. Frederick's home, has declined to make a statement since she was placed in the county jail at Bartow following the shooting.

State Attorney J. C. Rogers said Miss Leslie's case would be placed before the grand jury March 6. The girl's mother, Mrs. Edna Leslie, said her daughter had been under psychopathic treatment in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Frederick was a native of Trumbull County, Ohio, and had lived in Avalon, Bellevue, Washington and Bridgeville, Pa., before coming here 15 years ago.

EMMA REDELL

SOVIET HAILS U. S. SOPRANO

MOSCOW, Feb. 24.—(Universal.)—Emma Redell, Baltimore-born soprano and former prima donna of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, just returned from a concert tour in the Ukraine Urals, today was en route to Gorki for another concert.

Miss Redell was hailed in the Ukraine as "America's ambassador of culture to the Soviet," and Moscow newspapers printed glowing accounts of her success.

Before leaving for Gorki, she said:

"I was very much satisfied with the trip. I was accorded a splendid reception in every city I visited.

"The traveling was sometimes hard and uncomfortable, but my audiences always repaid me with appreciation and enthusiasm."

Miss Redell will return to Moscow Sunday. She will give a recital here next week, after which she plans a concert tour of the Caucasus.

Moscow's press took pains to point out that Miss Redell once worked as stenographer and cashier in a music store before she achieved success as a dramatic soprano, and that she worked her way on the ship on which she crossed the Atlantic to study in Vienna.

Bandit Takes Arizona Legislator for 'Ride'

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 24.—(Universal.)—Senator Keen St. Charles, 77, oldest legislator in the Southwest, and the most colorful, startled the State Senate yesterday by going shoeless. He explained he had been "taken for a desert ride" by a bandit who robbed him of his shoes, a new hat and $11.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(Universal.)—A watch in Andrew Ohan's vest pocket saved his life yesterday. An unidentified man fired a shot at Ohan in the latter's shoe shop in the Bronx.

LAWYER URGES BARS TO WINE IMPORTS

The United States should "Buy American" in wines when they are again legalized, and protect the grape growers and wine makers of the United States against imports, Attorney Walter Howard Kelly, of the Commonwealth Building, today declared.

Writing his opinion, he said:

"As soon as Congress acted on prohibition repeal radio speakers and news statements announced that France was jubilant over the probability of selling its wine in the United States.

"In view of the Buy American movement, and especially in view of the attitude of France toward paying her war debts, why should France be permitted to figure on selling her wine products in the United States in any event?

"California and New York and many other states can make good wine. Either a high tariff or a large excise tax on foreign wines would immeasurably aid home consumption, and give the United States additional revenue."

Patriotic Campaign Benefits U. S. Industry

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(Universal.)—As the Hearst newspapers' "Buy American" campaign swung into its eleventh week there was definite and tangible evidence that it is already beginning to make itself felt in the multiplicity of industries which have been hard hit by the unrestricted dumping of foreign goods in American markets.

Almost half a million patriotic men and women have signed pledges binding themselves to purchase only domestic merchandise, and one great purchasing group, the New York Buyers' Association, has pledged itself to buy no more imported merchandise until the economic stringency has been relieved.

At least 1,000 patriotic and civic groups have indorsed the movement and pledged to refuse all imported goods when it is possible to obtain a domestic equivalent.

OFFICIAL BACKING

Congress and a dozen state legislatures have directed their purchasing agencies to adhere to a "Buy American" policy, and the movement has had the unqualified indorsement of the City of New York.

The "Buy American" movement has won the support of a majority of the municipalities in such manufacturing states as New Jersey and Connecticut.

Mayor James H. Hurley, of Willimantic, today said:

"I most heartily favor this publicity which will wake up the American people to the need of supporting their home industries. It remained for the Hearst newspapers to bring to the public's notice the fact that foreign powers for years have conducted international campaigns such as 'Buy British' and 'Buy French.' Mr. Hearst is to be congratulated for his patriotic stand."

ENGINEERS AID U. S. RECOVERY

The role of the engineer in the recovery of the country was discussed by Dean A. A. Potter, of Purdue University, speaking at a joint meeting of the Engineering Society of Western Pennsylvania, and the Pittsburgh Section, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, in the William Penn Hotel last night. He said in part:

"That the engineering profession is giving considerable attention to social and economic problems is evidenced by the efforts which are being made, through the Engineering Council, by the A. S. M. E. and by the other major engineering societies in connection with the present emergency which is confronting this nation and the world.

"The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, while working for higher ideals of professional service and for better understanding among engineers the world over, is endeavoring to aid in the correct solution of those problems which affect public welfare, and particularly so during the present emergency.

"It is disseminating new engineering knowledge through its professional divisions, publications and meetings; it is encouraging research, standardization and industrial safety through its technical committees."

While the postoffice was in the old building for 31 years, postal receipts increased 609 per cent against an increase in population of little more than 100 per cent.

BANK CONTROL BILL INDORSED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The Couzens resolution to give the comptroller of the currency new powers over national banks for a limited time was approved unanimously today by the House Banking Committee. Chairman Steagall said he would ask House action "as soon as possible."

Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, predicted the measure would be adopted soon.

The committee's action followed testimony for it by Secretary Mills. He said the legislation was "sound" and "it might help the people in Michigan."

The resolution would let the comptroller of the currency exercise over national banks the same powers that state officials have over state banks.

It would, however, confer these powers for only six months, with the President having authority to extend them another six months.

Transfer Man Sued By Pair Over Crash

Joseph Kenny, trading as J. Kenny Transfer, was named defendant in a suit for $50,000 damages filed in Federal Court by Garrett B. Hull, and his wife, Mrs. Mary B. Hull, of Morgantown, W. Va., who said they were injured March 19, 1932, when their automobile was struck by a Kenny truck.

Dishwashing Jobs Figure in New City 'Racket'

Membership in a dishwashers' union, that exists only in the minds of two men, are being sold for $9.10 in a racket disclosed at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Hotel Men's Association last night.

The game is a simple one, but already has victimized three men, it was revealed. An unemployed man is offered a job as dishwasher in a downtown hotel if he can pay $9.10 membership to the union. The "membership" is paid to a "plant," who poses as the manager of the hotel lobby, takes the money and leaves the victim waiting for his job.

BANKER'S TRIAL WEDNESDAY

George Clifford Frank, 65, former president of the Ligonier National Bank, at Ligonier, is listed to go on trial Wednesday in Federal Court, on an indictment charging embezzlement and misapplication of funds. Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh is in charge of the prosecution.

The indictment contains 17 counts charging embezzlement and two charging misapplication. The bank was fully covered by insurance. The alleged offenses occurred between May, 1930, and April 1, 1931.

A special two weeks' session of the District Court, for prosecution of criminal cases, starts Monday.

COX WILL BUILD HOMES OF MATS

It will be recalled that Father Cox recently asked the Sun-Telegraph for a supply of "mats" from which pages of this newspaper had been stereotyped. These "mats" have a base of pulpwood and when baked take the form of a thin but durable board. Father Cox had the houses at "Shantytown" and "Coxtown" lined with them to keep out the storm and cold.

This experiment was so successful that he is now planning to build temporary summer homes at "Coxtown" almost completely of this material. The only exception will be the roof. The idea is unique and finds practical employment for what always has been considered wasted material.

Yesterday was the banner day in the Sun-Telegraph-Father Cox drive for subscriptions. Father Cox who was talking on the radio at 12:30, told his listeners what the Sun-Telegraph is doing for the unemployed and before he had stopped talking the subscriptions began to pour in over the telephone at Old St. Patrick's and also on the Sun-Telegraph wires. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page brings to the Father Cox Unemployment Relief Fund a liberal cash commission.

ONE NIGHT OUT FOR FIFI

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Mr. and Mrs. Fowler McCormick have limited their social gaieties to only one night a week, preferring to spend most of their evenings quietly at home, reading, Mrs. McCormick, the former Fifi Stillman, disclosed today.

In explaining the restrictions they have placed on their social life, Mrs. McCormick said they both enjoy quiet evenings at home with her son, Guy. She added:

"Then, too, Mr. McCormick is not strong enough to work hard all day after parties which rob him of sleep at night."

MANAGER BILL RALLY MARCH 9

The mass meeting to discuss the proposed city manager bill and revised election laws, now before the Legislature, has been postponed to March 9, according to announcement by F. C. Irish, chairman, Municipal Charter Committee.

Judge Sara Soffel will speak on the bills as they affect the Pittsburgh district. Another speaker, to be selected, will discuss election law revision.

Both movements are receiving the support of the League of Women Voters, the Allied Boards of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce.

MAN RESCUED FROM FLAMES

Five members of the Stephens family were driven from their home on Sygen Hill, near Bridgeville, when fire destroyed the house at 3 a. m. today, sparing only an empty trunk. Joseph Stephens, 30, was overcome by smoke and was carried out by Louis Cebela and John Barusoldim, neighbors.

The house was occupied by Mrs. Mary Stephens, a widow, and her four children, Charles, Ann, Mary and Joseph.

Two adjoining houses were saved from destruction by a home-made fire pump Joseph Stephens had constructed from an old automobile engine. They were owned by Rudolph Kranzer and Joseph Balt.

MORENO DEATH TO BE SIFTED

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24.—(Universal.)—An inquest will be held into the death of Mrs. Daisy Canfield Moreno, wealthy and socially prominent wife of Antonio Moreno, former film star, killed early yesterday when her automobile plunged down a 300-foot embankment, Coroner Frank A Nance decided today.

At the inquest will be read a statement from her companion, Rene Dusaq, 21-year-old visiting Frenchman, who was driving the car.

Semi-hysterical at St. Vincent's Hospital, where he is a patient with injuries met in the crash, Dusaq sobbed details of the fatal ride, a climax to a gay dance at a smart cafe. He said:

"The car plunged over the cliff while I was adjusting the lights. I had noticed the lights were dim. The fog was thick. I turned the light switch and instead of turning them on full, I turned them off.

"I cannot say more now. It is too terrible."

Moreno, who recently separated from his wife, is arranging her funeral.

4 MORE KILLED IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Four more persons were dead and many others injured today as the result of political rioting in various cities of the Reich.

A Reichsbanner man at Leipzig and a policeman at Dortmund were slain yesterday and two opponents of Hitler died in Berlin and Hanover from previous injuries.

A Leftist source told the Associated Press that leading Communists feared they would be seized by the government at any moment as hostages and no longer dared to return to their homes. They were reported changing their sleeping quarters every night.

Packer Hospital. A third brother, Edward, suffered face and body lacerations.

MY BEST WAR STORY

By HERBERT LEE WATKINS, 535 Perrysville Ave.
(Royal Canadian Dragoons)

It was spring, 1916. Within three miles of Arras, one of France's most beautiful cities, the advance of the gray hordes had been stopped, but heavy enemy guns wrought frightful havoc to life and property. Regularly at minute intervals, came the whine of a 9.2 shell, almost instantly followed by a roar as the projectile burst.

For months this was a daily drama in the city proper, particularly around a railway station and yards.

About a mile from the town, toward the German trenches, the terrain was comparatively free from bursting shells. It is here that Arras' peace-time graveyard is situated. In pre-war days it may have been beautiful—those days it was a nightmare. Vaults, tombstones, graves had been churned about.

I chanced to be on a brigade staff detail making observations from this hill. Three of us were seated on a toppled gravestone, trying to manage a smoke, careful to show no light. Each had the reins of his mount in crook of the arm.

There was a sudden lull in the incessant gunfire ahead. A scattered shell here and there. Without warning came a mighty blast that left us stunned, gasping for breath, devoid of sight and hearing. Had we been resting atop a German mine? No. None of us was really wounded.

In a cleverly-planned railway line tunneled into the hillside, the French had concealed a 16-inch naval rifle. They had just been ordered to fire a few rounds over into German back-country. We had arrived in time to get the full benefit of this powerful gun's heavy concussion and air-disturbance.

The way those scary nags were traveling in the direction of the German lines, they were in Berlin by daylight. Suffice to say we had to "hoof it" back to quarters.

(The foregoing story was a prize-winner in the "My Best War Story" contest being conducted by veterans of Allegheny County. True accounts of war experiences may be mailed by veterans, relatives and friends to the "Best Story" Committee, Fulton Theater, Sixth street, Pittsburgh. They must not exceed 300 words. The winner each day will be awarded four tickets to the theater's showing of the war film, "The Big Drive.")

STRESSES NEED OF TECHNICIANS

An increasing call for technical men to positions of leadership was forecast by Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, rabbi of Rodef Shalom Temple, in an address before the Kiwanis Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday. He expressed the belief that discussion of technocracy is bringing the world to realization that the important work of society is performed not by scientists and engineers. He said in part:

"Technocracy is telling us nothing new, but it is telling us old things in scientific terms, in the language of mathematics that cannot be challenged."

He concluded that while agreeing with some of the findings of technocracy, as to what has caused the depression, he could not accept its solution of adopting energy units as a medium of exchange instead of money.

GIRL SLEEPING YEAR HAS FEVER

CHICAGO, Feb. 24. — (INS.) — Physicians who have been trying for more than a year to rouse pretty Patricia Maguire, 26, from a continuous coma announced today that their patient has developed a high temperature.

Since she lapsed into the sound sleep nearly 13 months ago doctors have tried ever known remedy to bring her back to consciousness. A blood transfusion was given Miss Maguire two months ago and serums have been administered to no avail.

In the last three days she had developed an alarmingly high temperature, the doctors said.

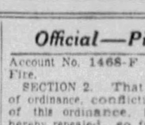
Special Trial Size Vicks Antiseptic Almost All Gone

But Local Druggists Are Selling Regular Size—75c Value for Only 35c—On Money-Back Guarantee.

NEW BAN ON HALITOSIS

Local druggists are introducing a new antiseptic which does everything that a mouth-wash or gargle can and should do—at half the usual price of other quality antiseptics. It is made by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. The name of it is Vicks Voratone Antiseptic.



Of course, the only real proof of its quality and amazing economy is actual use. To furnish this proof, Vicks Chemists supplied to druggists—at less than cost—5 million special trial bottles—a 25c value for 10c. These trial bottles have gone so quickly that this offer is now made:

If your druggist's supply of the trial size is exhausted, get one of the regular size bottles—75c value—for only 35c. Use it a week. Unless you are delighted with it, your money will be returned.

Mild Enough, Strong Enough

No extravagant claims are made for Vicks Antiseptic. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce—aided by the chemists, bacteriologists, and pharmacologists of their 16 allied organizations here and in Europe.

They created a balanced antiseptic—mild enough to be used day in and day out without risk to delicate membranes; yet strong enough to do everything that an oral antiseptic can and should do.

For All Customary Uses

You can use Vicks Antiseptic in your customary way for bad breath (halitosis); as a gargle; as a mouth-wash; as an antiseptic lotion; and for all the other usual uses.

And Vicks Antiseptic has this additional unique advantage...born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly—saving you half!

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

The most engrossing social event of the week-end will be the wedding of vivacious young Jane Marshall, the C. D. Marshalls' youngest daughter, and Aiken W. Fisher tomorrow afternoon in the Marshall home.

Of course the wedding is going to be simple in comparison with the society weddings of pre-depression days, but it gives promise of being one of the most charming weddings any girl has ever had.

The entertainments for the bride-to-be are small, too, and informal in keeping with the trend of the times. Rita Borntraeger, who'll be one of the bridesmaids, will give the wedding breakfast tomorrow in the home of her parents, the Carl H. Borntraegers. And the guests will be the members of the bridal party, the out-of-town guests and a few intimate friends.

Mrs. Harry W. Rafferty, sister of the bride of tomorrow, gave the spinster dinner last night in her home, and Mr. Fisher had his bachelor dinner last night.

Dinners Given

Today Mrs. Richard Clemson is giving a luncheon in her home, and tonight Lucile Todd, another bridesmaid, will give the rehearsal dinner in her home.

* * *

Mrs. J. Frederic Byers and daughter, Nancy, are in the East, having arrived in New York from California. And Nancy is going to the Yale junior prom tonight.

Do you recall the flower show judging course sponsored by the Garden Club of Allegheny County at Kaufmann's the week of January 23?

Three women from Greensburg were successful in the examination—Mrs. John Barclay, Jr., Mrs. H. F. Boyard and Mrs. C. Wood Eicher. And one Erie woman—Mrs. A. G. Scheidenhelm. Pittsburgh, Sewickley and Fox Chapel garden lovers who may now judge flower shows are Mrs. A. J. Barronn, Mrs. R. D. Beardsley, Mrs. Carl Behrhorst, Mrs. F. G. Blackburn, Mrs. William R. Blair, Mrs. P. H. Brace, Mrs. F. F. Brooks.

Flower Judges

Others are Mrs. Stanley N. Brown, Mrs. Paul V. Farragher, Mrs. Harry Fischer, Mrs. D. S. Gaston, Mrs. George R. Gibbons, Mrs. David M. Gilmore, Mrs. Alexander Hunter, Mrs. A. W. Johnson, Mrs. B. F. Jones III, Mrs. J. Paul Keeney, Mrs. D. R. Kellogg, Mrs. Strickland Kneass, Mrs. A. P. Lindsay, Miss Martha A. Porter.

Mrs. William J. Powell was successful, and so were Mrs. W. T. Root, Mrs. R. R. Sanborn, Mrs. William Scott, Mrs. William T. Shannon, Mrs. William L. Standish, Mrs. James L. Stuart, Mrs. Thomas H. C. Wurts and Mrs. R. H. Wynne.

Marguerite Bott Is Married to L. H. Baker

At a very pretty ceremony yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Philip's Roman Catholic Church, Crafton, Miss Marguerite Marie Bott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bott, of Norma street, Crafton, became the bride of Louis Harold Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Baker, of Greentree, with the Rev. W. C. Kelty officiant.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe embroidered in seed pearls and sequins, with a matching turban and carried white roses showered with lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Betty Bott, was the maid of honor, wearing aquamarine blue crepe with a matching turban and carrying pink roses. Charles Baker was his brother's best man.

There was a wedding breakfast in the Bott home later, with covers laid for 35 guests. Mr. Baker and his bride are at home in Manila street, Greentree.

Need for Use of Foreign Names by U. S. Singers Decried by Frank

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In an informal talk before the drama department of the Congress of Clubs yesterday Maurice Frank, impresario of the International Grand Opera Company, called it shameful that American singers must hide their own names in order to gain recognition in their own country. Mr. Frank announced that he will bring his company back to Pittsburgh late in April for performances of "Faust," "Carmen" and "Aida."

Mr. Frank and each member of his company who accompanied him told some interesting bits out of their lives—Miss Lou McIlvain, the Pittsburgh singer; Rosita Fordieri, who was Rose Ford, of Erie; Regina Senz, Perle Dorini and Martino Rossi. Mr. Rossi, with a fine sense of humor, described among other incidents, his coming to America from Italy and having to study Italian before he was permitted to sing.

Mr. Frank said opera stars of the past have been dehumanized and silence on the part of the impresario has been mistaken for wisdom. He referred to Miss McIlvain, who is to sing in "Il Trovatore" tonight, as "the big noise."

Dormont New Century Club Hears Program

Tomorrow evening the ways and means committee of the club will have a benefit bridge at the clubhouse. Mrs. Thelma Brinkeman is chairman.

Mrs. Hoover Busy At Farewell Parties

WASHINGTON, — From farewell party to farewell party, Mrs. Hoover goes, showered with gifts and with the verbal appreciation of the city where she has lived and carried forward civic work ever since the World War.

The largest ovation last week was that of the League of Republican Women. A huge ballroom, filled with feminity and fashions, was all a-flutter with applause at mention of her philanthropies. Many of those applauding were Democrats.

At the Women's National Press Club she was praised for her constructive interest in the capital school system, dating back to the time when her sons were in school here and she worked in the Parent-Teacher Association.

The league members gave her an etching of Washington Monument, which she has looked on each morning in waking, both from the White House and from her "S" street home.

The press women presented her with traveling case and fountain pen for the writing of her memoirs.

Mrs. Hoover made chatty and gracious response to gifts, telling audiences California, to which she's going, isn't far away after all!

THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

ORIGINALITY OF DESIGN IS FAVORED BY THE NEW TREND

IN THE designing of smart clothes—during the last two years at least—none of the old tried-and-true principles of fashion stand. Each dressmaker has been put to it to develop a fashion of her own, for old-style rules for making clothes were of little value in a new world of economics.

* * *

THIS RELIANCE of the dressmaker upon her own originality has resulted in a drastic change in clothes—especially in details. Belts that formerly stayed more or less in the same place now move up or down; whereas they formerly fastened in the front, they now wound about the figure, or disappear altogether. Settled locations for furs existed no more; fur became a fabric, instead of a trimming, and began to be used in an entirely new way.

* * *

ONE OF the first designers to make practical use of this new turn of fashion altered the lines about the shoulders of coats and dresses, to eliminate the old-fashioned classic arm-eye and to make the lines and seams about the shoulders and arms a part of the costume's decoration.

* * *

THE COAT in today's sketch shows evidence of this departure from classic lines. The fur is placed in the sleeves and the cuffs of cloth. The collar, also of fur, is tied with a cloth bow. The belt is really a continuation of the front of the coat; it winds around under the arm, across the back and ties at the other side without ever having appeared at the front at all.

THE HAT is of felt, as is also the bag, with its tortoise-shell frame.

Weds Sister of Wife Who Jumped From Train

Princess Luba Obolensky, daughter of Prince and Princess Alexis Obolensky, now residing in New York, and Prince Serge Troubetzkoy were united in wedlock at the Russian Church of Christ the Savior.

The families, whose fabulous fortunes were swept away after the fall of the Czarist regime, have intermarried for five generations and the bride's mother was herself a Troubetzkoy. The bride is a sister of Prince Troubetzkoy's first wife, the former Princess Anna Obolensky, who in July, 1931, shocked Paris by jumping to her death from the Eiffel Tower a few weeks after her marriage.

The bridal couple have been much feted, the largest of the parties in their honor being given by Mme. Alma Clayburgh.

TWO TOWNSHIP GROUPS FIGHT FOR TAX SLASHES

POLITICS

Dr. King an Economist, Not a Politician

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

So much has been made of testimony of Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, before the Senate Utility Investigating Committee that some illumination of the man who has so much to do with the question of utility rates may be timely.

First of all, Dr. King is not a politician. He is an economist, a former professor at the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania, and his services have been in national demand as an arbitrator of economic questions.

He has been associated with Gov. Pinchot for years, but not in the sense that makes him a political follower or apologist for Mr. Pinchot when he believes him wrong. Fundamentally, their principles are the same, but King does not give the same blind "yes-man" service that is a part of some conceptions of political connections.

When he differs from the Governor he differs so thoroughly and without equivocation, Mr. Pinchot knew that through long experience when he appointed King chairman of the Public Service Commission. But he felt the chairman would be energetic in the public service.

One of the first things Dr. King discovered was that it would be hopeless to attempt forced rate hearings in every case where demands were made for reduced tariffs by consumers. He, therefore, instituted the system of informal conferences with utility heads, convincing them that not only in fairness but on the score of public sentiment they should make reductions. In many cases he was successful, and this policy, never before attempted by a Public Service Commission, was approved by the Governor.

* * *

Formal Rate Cases Prove Costly

It was the essence of the Pinchot policy of initiating activity in the public interest. Only where utilities were recalcitrant were formal rate cases instituted. These are costly, and require much time, and are subject to review by the Superior Court.

As Dr. King told the Senate Committee, his commission could not, without further investigation, act to curb extortionate rates which the committee might discover, and have that act become at once effective. The first utility reaction to such procedure would be a court appeal, and then a long rate hearing would be necessary.

Dr. King was not objecting to such procedure, but he was trying to emphasize that the matter of dealing with rates is something more than a mere dash of the pen.

There were insinuations that Dr. King in his testimony was seeking to win organization favor toward confirmation as Public Service Commissioner. That may be. I've suffered a lot of disillusionment in association with politicians and public men.

But I believe that insinuation to be mischievous.

Dr. King did not desire to become a member of the Public Service Commission. He preferred his place as Secretary of the Department of Revenue in the Pinchot cabinet, and it was only on executive insistence that he finally consented to the shift.

Even then he believed he would return to the Revenue Department at the beginning of this year. With or without substantial foundation, he believed there was an implied understanding he would do so. His successor, Leon Metzger, who had been his chief deputy, expected the same thing, and was prepared to step back to a subordinate place for King.

* * *

Mind of Trained Economist Speaks

Pinchot leaders in Allegheny County were so sure that Dr. King would leave the commission that they were discussing whether Allegheny County might land the vacancy. It was common gossip that C. Jay Goodnough, appointed to the commission December 1, would succeed King as chairman.

Then why did King stay? Was it because his attitude toward the new job had changed? Well, as late as the middle of last December those very closest to King were saying how happy he would be in January when he would be permitted to leave the commission.

He stayed, according to one story which finds credence, because others in the Pinchot circle resented the close attention the Governor gave him as a member of the cabinet. There was some jealousy because of the way he secured the Governor's ear, and because of his refusal to agree to what might be termed "political compromises."

The story continues that the Governor was urged by this coterie not to make another change in the commission, that he had the very man for the job in King, and that rejiggering the body in such short order might shake public confidence.

So King stayed and the physical location of his present office, outside the Capitol, together with the manner in which he has become immersed in a mountain of work, means he does not have frequent conferences with the Governor as he once did on general administrative policy.

There was one illuminating bit of testimony in Dr. King's appearance Tuesday. He stressed the necessity of saving the railroad structure as the first job of the commission, after which could come other rate considerations.

There spoke the trained economist rather than the mind of political expediency.

Homestead Resembled A Battlefield During Time of Steel Strike

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
by BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

Another consolidation of the Carnegie interests came into effect on July 1, 1892. The first federalization, Carnegie Brothers & Co., organized in 1881, had long since outlived its usefulness. The business had now expanded in several directions. Homestead, acquired in 1883, had grown into a mighty workshop, with 3,800 employes and a monthly payroll of $200,000, and it had recently added facilities for making the armor plate of the new American Navy. In 1890 the Duquesne Steel Company, another challenging rival to Carnegie supremacy, had been annexed.

In these negotiations Frick had played an important role. This achievement, added to the success that had attended his administration of Carnegie Brothers & Co., resulted in his selection as chairman of the Carnegie Steel Company. At a sudden bound, the pioneer in the Connellsville coke company became the chief executive of an "association" capitalized at $25,000,000—the largest steel producing unit in the world.

The Sliding Scale

The Carnegie Steel Company, Limited, came into existence July 1, 1892; and on that identical date the pending agreement with the Homestead workers expired. The first task lying upon the desk of the new head was the renewal of this contract.

When the Homestead scale was signed, in July, 1889, certain steel billets were selling at $26.50 a ton; that price was therefore taken as a standard in fixing compensation. Wages increased as this market price increased; wages went down as this market price went down. But one peculiarity of the famous "sliding scale," as already pointed out, was that it slid indefinitely upward but not indefinitely downward. The low-water mark for wages was the sale of billets at $25 a ton. However far beneath that figure prices fell, wages were still paid at the $25 rate; when it came to calculating the workmen's compensation the assumption was that the $25 rate still prevailed. The only serious question in the new schedule now proposed concerned this so-called "minimum rate." The men wished it to remain at $25; the management wished to put it at $22.

Frick's meeting with the union leaders was held two months after Carnegie's departure. The negotiations were not protracted. The union demanded a renewal of the existing wage contract for another three years and Frick formally declined. An attempt at compromise, made by John A. Potter, superintendent of Homestead, at one time seemed likely to succeed. The union offered to reduce the $25 standard for the minimum wage to $24, and the management in turn agreed to increase its proposal to $23.

Had Frick consented to meet the men again and discuss a continuance of relations on some basis resembling the proffered compromise, the history of the next few months would have taken a more pacific course. To the unprejudiced observer it would look as though the disputing parties were approaching an agreement. But Frick had transmitted his modified offer through a third person, in the form of an ultima-

163 Face U.S. Court, Wait Guilty Pleas

Today was arraignment day in the Federal District Court. Defendants in 163 cases, involving approximately 200 individuals, have been notified by United States Attorney Louis E. Former Ohio Banker Dies in California

CROWD JEERS WHILE RAIDERS SMASH DOORS

County Squad Seizes Rum, Slot Machines On South Side

While a crowd jeered, a squad of county detectives battered down two steel doors of an alleged speakeasy in South Twelfth street and confiscated whisky, gin, beer and two slot machines late yesterday.

No one was in the place when the raiders entered, the occupants apparently having escaped over the roof. The slot machines were reported found on the first floor and a 30-foot bar and the liquor on the second. The proprietor was being sought today.

Constable Earl Sams, of Alderman Robert Logan's office, aided by county detectives, raided three alleged numbers headquarters in the Hill district. Those arrested, according to the raiders, were Leonard Curry, at 407 Kirkpatrick street; Joe Volosher, at 2905 Center avenue, and Max Ahrman, at 505 Erin street.

Prohibition agents reported raiding a club on the second and third floors at 431 Semple street, seizing two barrels of beer and a small quantity of whisky and gin. Nat Klein was arrested.

SHOTS CAPTURE AUTO THIEF

One of three youths captured after a three-block chase in which police fired three shots into the rear of their automobile late last night was held for court charged with larceny today by Magistrate Thomas B. Jones in Morals Court. The others were discharged.

Alex Wendowski, 19, of 318 Harmar street, admitted stealing the machine last Wednesday night, and denied that his companions, Henry Kuzi, 17, 3225 Dobson street, and John Rzmincewski, 26, 332 Downing street, knew anything about the theft. The car was owned by W. A. Johnston, 208 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Wendowski testified he was on parole for stealing 15 machines.

Walter Piontek, 20, of 3 Stockholm street, and his brother, Frank, 17, of 286 Jones avenue, also were held for court by Magistrate Jones, charged with stealing an automobile, Wednesday night, owned by Robert Langdon, 1627 Belasco avenue.

Car Injuries Kill North Side Woman

Injuries suffered when she was struck by a street car at Fifth avenue and Market street, Tuesday, caused the death late yesterday in Allegheny General Hospital of Mrs. Allie Hetrick, 55, of 8 Citron way, North Side, the Coroner's office reported.

Jimmie Halts Spree For Play; Returned To Owner

Home today amid the rejoicings of a large family of brother pets, and especially of Laddie, the Boston bull, Jimmie contentedly bathes his sore feet.

Bulldogs are okay, Jimmie, a 32-pound raccoon, must figure. For two of them, Pixie and Dot, are responsible for his return to the home of his owner, David Wright, Heidelberg Councilman.

Apparently suffering an attack of spring fever last Saturday morning, Jimmie, who is allowed to run loose like a dog, "lit out" for the wide open spaces.

Wright received 15 telephone calls that the 'coon had been sighted. But Jimmie was out on a spree, and no one was able to stop him until he ran into Pixie and Dot in the yard of C. C. Cullen, Alabama avenue, Dormont, Tuesday morning.

The dogs barked. But seeing they were the same breed as his pal, Laddie, Jimmie started to play. Mr. Cullen secured him, and returned him to his owner yesterday.

Although somewhat the worse for wear, Jimmie may feel his trip was worth while. His master has decided to get him a mate—to make him stay home.

3 Plead Guilty In Fatal Holdup

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Three bank robbers, arrested after police attacked their hiding place with sub-machine guns and killed their leader, pleaded guilty today to robbing the Sixth National Bank of Philadelphia, of $3,400 last April 1.

The men, Samuel Mitchell, Barney Wacht and James Magee, also are charged with holding up the Ambler National Bank on February 16. Sentence was deferred on the Sixth National Bank robbery charge until the men are tried for the Ambler robbery.

Veiled Girl Robber Gets $2 in Holdup

OKLAHOMA, Okla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—It was a girl with her own ideas of what the well-dressed robber should wear who held up J. J. Wright today and robbed him of $2.

Disdaining a mask, she wore a white veil instead. She escaped with two men companions.

No Popularity In Spanking Your Neighbor's Baby

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

If we had been cornerstone members of the League Shock Exchange we would now be trapped like moths in a cedar closet.

We would be getting our mail in Manchurian towns we couldn't spell.

So we are right in staying home. If League diplomats can start a fire five thousand miles away, we can stop it eight thousand mile away.

Our distances may be wrong, but our geography is delicious. We learned our lesson in 1917-18. It took us two years on one book.

And that lesson is that you will never be popular in your neighborhood if you go around spanking the neighbors' babies.

Doughboy Helmets On Way to China

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A bit rusty and their linings somewhat motheaten, 2,000 steel helmets made for American doughboys, were on their way today to Chinese troops for use on the Jehol front.

They were shipped yesterday from a Philadelphia firm dealing in disused army and navy equipment to "H. Y. Shanghai."

Workman Beaten In Detroit Strike

DETROIT, Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Attacked by three unidentified men who demanded his workers' badge, Peter Weigman, 26, a Briggs Manufacturing Company strike-breaker, was in a critical condition at Receiving Hospital.

Surgeons said his skull had been fractured by blows of an iron pipe.

BUDGET BRINGS PROTEST FROM THIRD

Stowe, Ross and Penn Residents Organize To Get Relief

Groups of taxpayers in two Allegheny County townships today were organized to seek reductions in local taxes, while residents of another demanded an explanation of their township budget.

A strike was threatened by a group in Stowe Township, which declared it would refuse to pay taxes unless they are reduced.

The Stowe Township Commissioners said it would be unsafe to cut the millage further than 12 mills, a reduction of 1½ mills, fixed in January. The protesting taxpayers have demanded another 1½-mill cut.

Ross Township citizens likely will not protest a ¾-mill increase in Township taxes, but economies are to be asked of the school board, James Collier, president of a group who met last night, said. Harry Dipple, A. A. Schultz, Robert Demmler and A. A. Anderson were named to confer with the board.

The Penn Township Commissioners were required to explain their budget, set at $83,227, to a group of taxpayers who appeared at their budget session last night. The budget provides a $20 monthly cut in police pay and $100 annual reduction in the health officer's salary.

MOTHER SOBS SLAYING STORY

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Feb. 24.—(INS.)—Lifting her heavy black veil for the first time, a broken-hearted mother today took the witness stand and described to a crowded courtroom her last moments with her pretty, titian-haired 15-year-old daughter whom Charles Arnwine is accused of betraying and slaying.

Outwardly calm, but showing signs of the intense strain of the trial, Mrs. Corrinne Rempfer testified that she last saw Frances, her daughter, alive in her bed on the night of November 12.

Tears rushed to her eyes as she told of kissing the child good night after they had returned from a motion picture show. Sadly she identified the clothing found on the victim's body as that of her child.

After a brief cross-examination for which defense counsel, John Leslie Kilcoyne, tendered his apology, the grief-stricken mother was excused.

U. S. Seizes $22,000 In Insurance Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A safe deposit box in a Washington bank, allegedly rented by L. L. Reece, brother of Joseph L. Reece, former Tennessee insurance commissioner, was opened today under federal search warrant and $22,000 in cash was taken out.

Joseph I. Reece recently was arrested here and returned to Nashville to face charges that he was responsible for the disappearance of $100,000 in bonds deposited with the state insurance office. The $22,000 found today was alleged to be part of the proceeds of these bonds.

BUTLER MUZZLES 'MIKE' IN TALK

Speaks Forcefully on Japan; Tells U. S. To Stay Clear

Protests of governments and the League of Nations will not halt Japan's determined program to become the great empire of the East, in the opinion of Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired Marine commander who spent seven years in China, Japan and the Philippines.

Gen. Butler expressed his viewpoints to radio listeners of Stations WCAE and WJAS during an interview by the Sun-Telegraph Globe-Trotter, Louis L. Kaufman, yesterday afternoon. Gen. Butler last night delivered the principal address before the annual dinner of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange in Hotel Schenley.

Butler followed the general Japanese theme in his address to the builders, although he frequently muzzled WWSW'S microphone, over which the talk was broadcast, while he spoke with his usual characteristic frankness.

Explaining his own censoring, Butler said:

Advising radio listeners that "we should tend to our own business," Gen. Butler said:

"Japan has made up her mind that to exist as a nation and fulfill her national destiny it is necessary to become the great empire of the East."

Questioned whether the United State should feel alarm over the present situation, he said:

"Not necessarily. It depends entirely on the foreign policy we pursue. If we intend to interfere with nations in the Far East, we may become involved in the trouble."

Peace was restored today to South Side Police Station, and they're not going to put it under quarantine.

The quiet was disturbed yesterday when a riot call summoned officers to 25 South Sixth street, a house which is under quarantine of scarlet fever. Mike Sapp, 21, of that address, and Frank Bakse, 21, 30 South Sixth street, were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

No sooner were the youths taken to the station than Sapp's parents, George and Mary, and five little Sapps were there, making a great hullabaloo about Mike's arrest. Police called a health officer, who ordered them all held pending investigation.

The Sapps and Bakse spent the night in cells. At a hearing this morning they all shouted and cried again. Magistrate J. J. Sweeney said their "explanations" were too much for him, so he discharged them. After an examination by the health officers, all were sent home to remain in quarantine.

They fumigated the station house cells.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, that list of new Cabinet members sent everybody scurrying through Whos Who, World's Almanac, and the U. S. fingerprint department, trying to find out who they were.

The forgotten man has been found, and there was nine of 'em and a woman.

So we open March Fourth with the "Unknown Cabinet." The rogues gallery photographs show us that three of 'em escaped from the Senate. That's like going to the old man's home to get an athlete.

But I believe they are going to be all right, they all got their reputations to make, which is better than feeling that they have one already made. Yours, WILL.

OPERA TO GO ON DESPITE SUIT OF SINGER

Six years of peaceful playacting between Singer Ruth Coleman, of New York, and Maurice Frank, who tonight makes his bow as the man who brought "opera for the masses" to Pittsburgh, threatened today to turn into a swift-tempo adagio as Ruth took steps to collect some $1,000 she claims from Frank on a 1928 judgment.

All of which promises to provide interesting reading for the public but doesn't mean a lot, if Frank is to be believed, and certainly won't stop the opera.

And that may be a source of grief to Mrs. Coleman when she learns that Syria Mosque is sold out for tonight, is already nearly sold out for tomorrow's matinee and evening performances.

WRIT ISSUED

Mrs. Coleman's steps to collect came yesterday when Common Pleas Court issued a writ of foreign attachment to her through her Pittsburgh attorney, Frank W. Stonecipher, against proceeds from the sale of tickets by Frank, Mellor's, Syria Mosque, Craig Jacobs and the Women's Scholarship Society of Carnegie Tech.

The writ prevents distribution of the proceeds from the ticket sale until a court hearing has been held to decide Mrs. Coleman's rights.

It all started back in 1926, when Mrs. Coleman gave Frank some $1,000.

She says it was to help him finance the New York Civic Opera Company's promotion. He says it was to buy her way into his cast. Anyhow, in 1928, she obtained judgment for that sum against Frank. He hasn't paid, so yesterday the long arm of the law left the attachment on the Frank doorstep.

FRANK SPEAKS

Frank shrugged his shoulders and discounted the importance of the suit with this statement:

"I am reluctant to aid Mrs. Coleman in her pursuit of publicity, but I feel I owe it to music lovers of Pittsburgh to explain that she canot halt the performances of the company. I am merely manager of the opera. The company is liquid, all its bills paid. Friday night is a sell-out; Saturday afternoon and evening will be sell-outs.

"Mrs. Coleman is merely endeavoring to cripple our productions. This she cannot do, even in carrying out her grudge fight to the limit.

The stage, on display in the Cathedral, is modeled after standard stage equipment and is exact in every detail. It has a counterbalanced plush front curtain, room on the gridiron for 20 different drops, trap doors in the stage, a complete switchboard and a motion picture set-up along with other modern stage devices.

POSTAL SAVING TAX AT ISSUE

County Solicitor J. P. Fife told the County Commissioners yesterday it was his opinion the county has the right to tax postal savings. He was instructed to make further study and report to the Commissioners.

His ruling came after Congressman-elect Henry Ellenbogen, informed the Commissioners he might institute proceedings to enjoin the board for assessment and revision of taxes from collecting a four-mill personal property tax on postal savings.

In his letter Ellenbogen said he had been informed by the United States Attorney General and the Postmaster General the county could not legally collect the tax.

George E. Myers, chairman of the Assessment Board, has announced that through equalization proceedings this year, an increase of $15,410,213 was placed on the real estate assessment books. Appeals may reduce the total, he said.

Bakers' Price War Cuts Bread to Cent

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(INS.)—Bread was sold at 1 cent a loaf here recently, during a "price war" between rival bakers.

BAR PROBE FEES DELAYED BY COUNTY

Tired of paying bills run up by the committee investigating the practice of members of the Allegheny County Bar Association, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern has held up payment of $1,379.90, pending investigation. He instructed County Solicitor J. P. Fife to confer with President Judge James R. Macfarlane, who approved the bills.

Attorney Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the bar association committee, several weeks ago sent to the Commissioners a bill of $792.50 for December. It was held up. Then came January's bill of $537.40. McGovern, supported by the other Commissioners, said he wanted to know how long it would continue.

INQUIRIES COSTLY

The bills list the cost for stenographic and office service, filing of disbarment proceedings and for investigating the bank accounts of several attorneys.

Declaring overtime payment to road maintenance employes has resulted in abuses, Thomas O. Hasley, new director of the County Public Works Department, has banned the extra pay except in emergency cases.

He presented a payroll report for the first half of January, which showed that in one district where 66 laborers were working, 22 got regular wages and the other 44, or 60 per cent, received overtime amounting to $352.

In another district he showed that of 85 men at work, 23 received overtime amounting to more than $200. He declared the department had 507 laborers and 104 got overtime amounting to nearly $1,000 for the two weeks.

EATON FEE APPROVED

The Commissioners have approved a contract amounting to $5,000 with Attorney Oliver K. Eaton for his services in the Town Hall case. He is to receive $2,500 as a retaining fee and $2,500 for services in appealing to the Supreme Court. The Commissioners are seeking to get out of paying $1,104,306.55 to the Schenley Farms Company for the Nicola site.

A $3,000 contract with Louis Stevenson, to be the supervising architect in remodeling the Old City Hall on Smithfield street, was signed.

Determined to collect every legal debt, the county has asked the state to pay $163 interest on $1,741.25 received as the county's share of rentals paid by the West Penn Railways for use of the Boston Bridge over the Youghiogheny River after the county had taken over the bridge. The state received the money and did not pay the county for more than two years.

YOU are a business man. You know the cost of any article is made up of material, plus labor, plus overhead. Its selling price is its cost of manufacture plus cost of distribution and profit.

That's all there is to it. Or almost all. Frequently it costs $1 to make an article and $2 or more to distribute it. If you could lower the cost of distribution you could sell the same quality for less money.

POLITICS MAY DEFEAT GAS RATE FIGHT

Factional dissension in Washington (Pa.) political circles today threatened to bring the fight of some 25 communities of Western Pennsylvania against the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company to a futile finish.

The organization seemed about to go on the rocks as a result of a squable between its president, D. Glenn Moore, former Pinchot floor leader in the House at Harrisburg, and supporters of Mayor R. E. Griffith, of Washington, a supporter of State Treasurer Edward Martin.

It is claimed that Moore, in taking the helm of the organization, has ignored both Griffith, who called the organization meeting a week ago, and H. R. Campbell, secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, who is credited with the work and initiative that started the gas dispute.

SUPPORTERS ARRIVE LATE

Griffith supporters pointed out today that the Mayor, having called the meeting, should have been made president of the group. This, it was said, would have insured the support of the city of Washington.

It was learned that original intention was to do this, that arrangements had been made to have Washington Councilmen support Griffith. Moore was named temporary chairman and later made permanent chairman when the Griffith supporters failed to reach the meeting in time.

IGNORES MEETING SPONSOR

Campbell, responsible in large part for the early success of the meeting, was ignored by Moore in naming his executive committee. Campbell resigned as treasurer supposedly to prevent duplication of the secretary's work.

Moore, questioned about the alleged squabble, said:

"Why, I never thought of Campbell for the executive committee. He had his chance to suggested it but never did. Any squabble is all news to me."

Moore was defeated for the Legislature in the last primary by the Martin forces, of which Campbell and Griffith are members.

Charges that Manufacturers' dilute their gas with artificial coke oven gas in Washington, admitted by the company, started the fight which has spread to many other communities in this district.

LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE

tum, and declined to resume intercourse with the union leaders. From the ensuing deadlock there remained only an appeal to force.

The Congressional Committee which subsequently investigated Homestead severely criticised the chairman for his unyielding manner. "We do not think," the report said, "that the officers of the company exercised that degree of patience, indulgence and solicitude which they should have done . . . Mr. Frick, who is a business man of great energy and intelligence, seemed to have been too stern, brusque and somewhat autocratic."

Preparations Made

The fact that Frick had been making visible preparations for trouble was an additional reason why oral persuasions were not likely to succeed. Never noted for loquacity, this was a case in which his acts spoke very much louder than words. For two or three weeks the Homestead territory had been assuming the aspect of a military camp. A high board fence, enclosing the works, had been started a month before and was now rapidly pushed to completion. Portholes five or six inches in diameter appeared at regular intervals. Frick afterward insisted that these openings were for observation purposes, but to his employes they had a belligerent connotation. Barbed wire, stretched along the top, gave the palisade an even more inhospitable aspect, though the popular suspicion that this could be instantaneously charged with electricity was unfounded.

At strategic elevations platforms had been constructed, on which searchlights were placed, another military precaution whose meaning was not lost on the union men. That the circumvallation was instituted for offensive and defensive purposes was only too apparent. But the chairman of the Carnegie company had transformed the Homestead property not only into a turreted stronghold; he had provided a garrison as well. Even before his abortive conversation with the Amalgamated leaders, the co-operation of the Pinkerton Detective Agency had been enlisted.

It is not the purpose, in this place, to tell the story of the Homestead strike. A fair sized volume would be necessary to relate the transactions of the succeeding five months. A sketch of its broad outlines will make sufficiently plain the points involved and Carnegie's position concerning them. At times the proceedings would reach a stage that amounted virtually to civil war. For the first week, indeed—the period whose events sent the name of Homestead over the world—the ordinary mechanism of government came to an end.

Workers Seize City

Almost in a twinkling this quiet place was transformed into a battleground. The discussion between Frick and the Amalgamated leaders had hardly ended when the workers seized the city and the Carnegie property. The Burgess, or Mayor, a poorly paid workman in the mills named McLuckie, was the most unbridled spokesman of the rebellious strikers. The twelve thousand inhabitants, all connected directly or indirectly with the prosperity of the mills, cast their sympathies on the side of disorder. Although the union enrolled less than a thousand members of the nearly four thousand workingmen and although it had for years excluded from comradeship the less favored associates, the entire body joined forces for the approaching struggle.

A so-called Advistory Committee of the Amalgamated now succeeded to the powers normally exercised by the lawfully chosen administration; its advertised business was to encourage good behavior, to forestall riot, and to keep the property of the company from destruction. The Advisory Committee was perhaps sincere, but it had its unique conception of the way in which these desirable results were to be obtained. It refused to let anyone enter the city without its consent.

The executives of the Carnegie company found themselves exiled from their own property. The Sheriff of Allegheny County, after making the feeblest demonstration, was escorted politely out of town, while his manifestoes calling on all good citizens to obey the law were torn down and trampled in the dirt.

A cordon of pickets was drawn about the community, through which strangers penetrated at risk of their lives. Armed workmen, posted at the railroad station and at every road and every path leading into Homestead, refused admittance to any person who could not give a satisfactory excuse for his presence.

Vigilantes, placed on surrounding hills, were prepared, at a moment's notice, to warn of the enemy's approach; fireworks left over from the recent Fourth of July celebration were at their disposal for signaling in the night.

Reconnoitering parties in skiffs rowed slowly up and down the river.

Thus from every quarter Frick's defiance was met by a mobilization almost Prussian-like in its completeness and speed. At the end of the first day the proletariat had clearly won the upper hand. The city of Homestead and the new $5,000,000 plant of the Carnegie company rested as trophies in possession of the striking workmen. Up to this point no attempt had been made to demolish property, but a tense and quiet atmosphere of expectation prevailed that was as forbidding as the most tumultuous uprising.

Evidently there was only one way of dealing with a crisis of this kind that could be justified in law or common sense. The men who had taken possession of property not their own were malefactors. The defiance they displayed was aimed not primarily at the Carnegie Steel Company, but at the processes of government. A society that cannot preserve itself against such anarchistic proceedings has failed in the first necessity of its existence.

The problem of Homestead was a problem that, in the first instance, did not concern the Carnegie company, but the officials whose business was the assurance of public sobriety. That the Sheriff was unable, or indisposed, to perform his duty at once became apparent, but what of the Governor of Pennsylvania? If the Sheriff failed to assemble a posse of deputies sufficiently strong to cope with the strikers, there remained the State Militia, justly celebrated for its readiness and skill.

Clearly one step should not be taken: the Homestead proprietors should not have attempted to fight this battle independently. Yet Frick made no appeal to Gov. Pattison for the restoration of his property, no appeal, that is, at the critical time, before the tragedy had taken place. His Pinkertons, he confidently believed, could quickly settle all pending troubles. If these hardy and experienced janissaries could once be safely implanted on the ground, the enemies of peace would quickly disappear.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Very interesting how they trap senders of "anonymous" letters . . . Particularly when the chump uses a typewriter . . . They bag the boys who try to disguise their hand scribblings, too, but it is the typewriter trick that fascinates one . . . It appears that no two keyboards are alike—nor are there two persons, they allege, who have the same touch system . . . One man may hit the keys harder, or softer . . . The other may only peck at his keyboard . . . Also—no two typewriters have the same wear and tear—which is another way the officials "go-to-town" on a person who uses the mails to spend his passion for revenge . . . The "a" on one typewriter may be at a certain angle, or slant . . . Perhaps your machine's "B" is the distinguishing marker . . . I certainly cheer the man who figured out that trick.

I used to delight in teasing contemporaries . . . When they revealed their ignorance . . . I used to reprint their frailties and chuckle . . . Then I cut it out—When I discovered the boys couldn't be insulted . . . They charged my titterings up to so much free advertising—and kept on making comical inaccuracies, anyhow . . . So I quit crusading along those lines . . . One of the lads only the other day offered several sillies, but try as I have, I can't resist giving them focus . . . An item that a Broadway singer was en route to Reno, frinstance . . . I read it via the Associated Press dispatches in the Florida papers two days before . . . Another that a local magazine had to reprint its front cover because (was the inference) times were tough for them . . . How that line must have made them howl in their editorial rooms . . . The fact is that the mag reprints its original cover on its anniversary or whenever it is in the mood . . . It is the mag's trademark . . . But some of the lads wouldn't know that . . . If locals, who follow all the papers, only wouldn't get so confused! . . . Then I wouldn't care what the echoes penned . . . Nine times out of nine, though, the average reader decides he read it here—and oh, the temporary pangs and humiliation . . . And another curse is dropping a favorite coined phrase for a while . . . For when a competitor uses it once—and I revive it again—I am accused of lifting it from him . . . Perhaps I'd better change the subject.

So James Cromwell of the smart set has done a book! . . . And a good one—"The Young Voice of America" he calls it . . . I liked his inscription in it to his friends: "To you: A sheep in wolf's clothing!" . . . I find that the sports writers were not talking wildly when they suspected things recently . . They now confess that when Schaaf succumbed they realized that the bout wasn't fixed . . . But the reason they thought so was that Primo had been signed to fight Sharkey for the championship the day before the fight with Ernie, and that angle certainly had a foul odor . . . When I asked Carnera's intimates why they permitted that—they argued that the fight impresarios demanded it that way . . . The sports writers also point out that Sharkey, who co-owned Ernie, intended to hand his crown to Schaaf after beating Primo and then retire, and lean on Ernie's profits as champion . . . That then, explains why the experts were so bitter before and after the said affair . Which is exactly the attitude I would have assumed were I in their ringside pews There appears to be some confusion on the part of the gullibles concerning Roxy's status at Radio City . . . His title was "managing director of Radio City theaters" . . . The man now enjoying that title and distinction is a genius named Harold B. Franklin . . . Roxy still draws a wage, but he has no power there . . . And even Variety reports that Roxy may become a vaudeville actor.

Wonder how that James Gordon Bennett will case will wind up? . . . I hope in favor of the newspapermen . . . For two months now, Col. Breckenridge, brother of the man who helped Lindbergh during his recent tragedy, has been trying to clear up certain clauses in that will . . . Bennett, publisher of the New York Herald, died in 1918 . . . He left 20 millions—three of which were to go to unemployed or distressed newspapermen . . . His will said that any scribe with 10 years service on any New York newspaper would never have to worry about financial help . . . Also that a home for newspapermen was to be built. Once the trustees gave an accounting of the moneys, but not satisfactorily . . . And so when a reporter recently told Breckenridge about it—the lawyer agreed to handle matters without a fee—for which hurray and four cheers! . . .

Wonder if Charles Francis Coe saw that Miami paper's editorial roast because Coe had said in a magazine fable that the newspaper character in it was a drunkard, etc. . . . The editorial writer maintained that there were few drinkers in the craft—and that most reporters were usually hard workers and good boys. Uh-huh.

Pope Is Heard On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The first appearance before the microphone in a sound motion picture of Pope Pius XI, is featured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The occasion was the inauguration of the new radio telephone station presented to the Vatican by Signor Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy. His Holiness sits before the Metrotone camera and delivers a speech of thanks in Italian to the donor. It is translated by The Globe Trotter.

Events leading up to the passage by Congress of the resolution repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, are pictured. Representative Rainey, of Illinois; Representative La Guardia, of New York, and Mrs. Kahn, representative from California, voice their jubilation.

Miss Tashman Opposed to Pants Fad

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24. Good news for the girls with womanly curves.

Lilyan Tashman, one of Hollywood's recognized style experts, yesterday took a verbal sock at the pants-for-women craze which Marlene Dietrich has started in the last few months.

"For the first time in our age," exclaimed Lillian, "we women have a chance to be entirely feminine. We can wear all the frills we want to. We can dress our hair different ways. Anything that is beautiful is fashionable.

Miss Tashman

"To my mind, pants on women are not beautiful. Not even when they are expensively tailored. And these cheap ready-made trousers are simply awful. I'd hate to have a style vogue like that on my conscience."

The blonde star admits that the fad is taking a strong hold.

"Several days ago," she said, "I went to a showing at one of the smartest establishments in Hollywood. Two girls in trousers and little jackets met you at the door. I protested to the designer. He said he hated to feature the trousers, but that he was tired of having some of his best customers go to tailors for their clothes."

I asked Lillian if she believes the new style will last long.

"No," she said. "It will take on because Miss Dietrich has had a great deal of publicity on it, and because people will dress like the stars do. But trousers are too unbecoming to the average woman to enjoy more than a brief vogue."

Miss Harvey

Someone mentioned the other day that she had brought over 48 beautiful gowns.

"What for?" asked Karl Freund.

* * *

The afore-mentioned Miss Harvey drew fire from Germany by her newsreel speech in which she said she thought she would like to become an American. She personally wrote cables answering the criticisms. Certainly, the blonde star appears to be the main thing on Maurice Chevalier's mind these days. When she was sick for four days he called six times. And he went out to Fox the other day to take her home.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Because she was bashful, Mary Philips, who becomes a Theater Guild leading woman in "Both Your Houses," opening Monday in the Nixon, never appeared in amateur productions in her home town, New Haven, even though the high school she attended had a dramatic organization. Instead she broke into the theater, as so many others have done, by way of the chorus, joining the "ensemble" of "Apple Blossoms" in New York a dozen years ago. Once there, she became sort of general understudy and thereby got opportunity to appear in various parts. A summer stock experience in Washington was part of her training ere she appeared in "The Old Soak," "Polly Preferred," "The Best People," "One of the Family," "The Wisdom Tooth," "Gambling," "Two Girls Wanted" and other comedies.

The Olympia Dramatic Club, negro playing group, will be guests of the Dracomtra Players of Dormont, next Sunday evening, and will present a one-act play, "The Slave," a picture of negro life, in the Fellowship Hall of Mt. Jim Barton has organized a show, "Jig Saw Varieties," for a road tour that will begin in Albany, March 6, and land the troupers in Chicago for a world fair engagement in June . . . The Chicago exposition is a hope-builder, too, for others of the theater, including J. J. Shubert, who plans to produce a musical or two there . . . It is said that the appearance of Doug. Fairbanks, Jr., on the stage is just a matter of time . . . The English premiere of "Cavalcade" film will take place in London February 28, with the King and Queen and Prince of Wales in attendance . . . The new Billy Rose show, featuring Fannie Brice and Fred Allen, is expected to hit the stage about half way of March . . . Samuel Goldwyn has been conferring in New York with Edwin Justus Mayer, playwright, relative to a play for the American screen debut of Anna Sten, German star.

Lasky Buys Story for Spencer Tracy

"Power and Glory," an original story by Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable" and "Child of Manhattan," has been purchased by Jesse L. Lasky, independent producer for Fox, to star Spencer Tracy. William K. Howard will direct. Mr. Tracy recently completed work in "Face In the Sky," and was on a Havana vacation when recalled to the Fox lot for story conferences. It is reported that a well-known feminine star will have the lead opposite Tracy.

Zona Gale Series Opens On WCAE

The inaugural presentation of Zona Gale's new radio dramatic series, "Neighbors," with the author herself introducing the characters, is listed for WCAE tuners-in at 10:30 tonight.

Bullet-proof 'Mike' Given Roosevelt

By AIRCASTER

When he becomes President and has occasion to address the radio audience, Franklin D. Roosevelt will have no qualms about exposing himself to attacks, although he speaks publicly in the midst of a multitude. The radio gentlemen have seen to that.

Mr. Roosevelt was presented yesterday with a steel-lined and bullet-proof microphone stand by the Columbia Broadcasting System. It is in the form of a desk, standing on one pedestal, and it shields the body completely, while providing him a battery of four microphones, a railing on which to rest, and a hooded lamp.

Mr. Roosevelt's appointment of William H. Woodin, head man of the American Car and Foundry Company, to Secretary of the Treasury, places in the cabinet its first radio artist. Woodin, as few people know, is a composer, and has had his works aired many times over the kilocycles. He writes for the masses as well as the classes, and does his composing while relaxing in bed, plunking out his opuses note by note on a battered but mellow guitar.

Columbia has suspended its experimental television broadcasts temporarily "because present facilities offer little possibility for contributions to the advancement of the art."

Jack Denny has had a shirt named after him . . .

'Luck and Horse' Drama on Air

A dramatization of the opening chapters of "Luck and a Horse," a new romantic-mystery story of the West by Max Brand, is offered on WHBC, Canton, O., at 2 p. m.; WALR, Zanesville, O., at 5 p. m.; WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., at 5:15 p. m., and WJAC, Johnstown, at 9:45 p. m., today.

The story will start serially in the next issue of the American Weekly, which is distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter Of the Sun-Telegraph-Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

With all the shooting going on in China, we might expect a little suffering here, too. At least so far as language is concerned. Because what the Globe Trotter is doing with the pronunciation of those Chinese and Japanese towns and generals can be classified as major atrocities of the war.

With a lot of strange and unfamiliar places you can take a quick look at the spelling, mutter a short prayer, jump into the pronunciation as if you know all about it and hasten onward, nonchalant like. But this Oriental stuff is something else again. When they pronounce Jehol as Rey-ho, with the emphasis on the "rey" you don't have a 10 to one chance of getting near the right answer. The only consolation is that you can answer a critic by telling him that China has hundreds and perhaps thousands of dialects and your particular attempt was the way it was pronounced in the third ward of some imaginary Chinese locality.

* * *

There is a trick in all trades, you know. And I can afford to let you in on the secret now since I have received an authentic guide to the way all these names are to be pronounced. Wait till I get on tonight. Will I slay them with Japanese? Savvy?

4 LEGS ARE STEADIER

You're in an unsteady position when a horse rears. You've got to keep him on four legs for a smooth ride—because four supports satisfy a fundamental principle of balance. That's why Eveready Raytheons have four pillars supporting their vital elements.

Photograph courtesy of Universal Pictures, Inc.

WHEN your radio ceases to satisfy, in the majority of cases it's because the tubes have gone bad. Accidental bumps, jolts, jars, the constant vibration of the dynamic speaker, have upset the delicate balance of vital elements on only two supports.

You need Eveready Raytheons—the only tubes on the market with patented four-pillar support. Designed on the fundamental principle of balance in the nature of things, they give maximum performance and maximum life because their vital elements are properly supported. Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes cost no more than ordinary tubes. Yet they are sturdier and will stand up under bumps and vibration. If you want assured accuracy of reception and long-run economy, put Eveready 4-pillar Tubes in your radio.

Your dealer will demonstrate.

Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes are made in all types, to fit any kind of set. They cost no more. Yet they offer surer reception, protection against vital elements becoming unbalanced, and longer life.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

HAM, CHICKEN AND ASPARAGUS CASSEROLE — 4 tablespoons fat, ½ cup minced onion, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 cup canned broth, 1 cup bottled milk or ½ cup evaporated milk and ½ cup water, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon bottled condiment sauce, 2 cups thin strips canned ham, 2 cups diced canned chicken, 1 1-pound can asparagus tips, ½ cup soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Prepare the following sauce: Melt the fat in the top of a double boiler, add the onion, and cook over direct heat until delicately browned. Place over hot water, add the flour, and blend well. Add the chicken broth, milk and seasonings, and cook until thick, stirring occasionally. Cover and cook 15 minutes. Meanwhile cut the ham into strips about 2 inches long. Dice the chicken. Drain and cut the asparagus tips in 2-inch lengths. Arrange in a greased casserole and pour the sauce over all. Top with the crumbs mixed with the melted butter and bake in a moderate oven of 375 degrees F. for 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated and golden brown. Serves 6 to 8.

WHITE FRICASSEE OF CANNED CHICKEN—Remove all fat and jelly from a canned whole or half chicken of the desired weight, and reserve it for making 2 cups chicken gravy, as directed above, in a large covered skillet or saucepan, or a Dutch oven. Joint the chicken, place in the gravy, cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes.

* * *

CRANBERRY AND APPLE FLUFF—1 cup raw cranberries (ground), 1 cup apple (ground), 1 cup sugar, 1 pint cream, whipped until stiff. Combine in the order given and chill.

* * *

VEAL MOLD—2 hard-cooked eggs, 1 green pepper, cooked veal, sliced cooked ham, 1 tablespoon gelatine, 2 cups veal stock, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, salt and pepper.

Garnish a bread pan with a flower made of hard-cooked egg white cut petal shape and with leaves and stem cut from green pepper. Arrange in the pan alternate layers of cooked veal, sliced cooked ham, hard-cooked egg and green pepper. Soak gelatine in ¼ cup veal stock. Dissolve in remaining veal stock heated to boiling point. Add lemon juice and salt and pepper to taste. Strain through cheese cloth and pour over the meat. Let stand over night in a cold place and cut in thin slices for serving.

* * *

FRIED SCALLOPS—Clean scallops, drain and dry very carefully between towels. Season with salt and pepper, dip in egg and crumbs and fry 2 minutes in deep fat, heated to 385 degrees Fahrenheit. Drain on brown paper or paper towels.

* * *

BAKED BEETS—Scrub beets but do not peel. Place on rack in dripping pan and bake in a moderate oven until tended. Young beets require from 45 to 60 minutes; old beets from 2½ to 5 hours.

* * *

HAWAIIAN PRUNE LAYER CAKE—⅓ cup shortening, ⅝ cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup stewed prunes, 1¼ cups flour, ½ teaspoon baking

Many Kinds of Salads Aid In Digestion of Foods

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Away back in 1699 somebody published a list including 73 salad plants. Of course many of these ingredients have been discarded. Lettuce is the fundamental ingredient of most of the salads made today.

Of course there are many other vegetables, even though they are seldom used, which make delicious and tempting salads. If you wish to keep within your budget and at the same time have variety in your meals, make a study of the salad combinations.

Next to potatoes, more lettuce is shipped to the New York market than any other vegetable. It is an economical vegetable and can be purchased all year round. It is nutritious because it contains valuable minerals, such as iron, lime and phosphorus. Lettuce carries vitamins which help to prevent certain diseases and infections and promote normal growth and development.

There are three varieties of lettuce, known as the "iceberg," "Boston" and "Romaine." The iceberg, or "Simpson lettuce," has become popular only with the last few years. It is solid, has overlapping leaves and resembles a head of cabbage.

The Boston lettuce is solid, but not as hard as the iceberg lettuce. The leaves are loose, flat and not so crisp, but are excellent for sandwich making. Romaine lettuce has a loose head with long tapering leaves. It has a slightly bitter taste.

USED AS MEDICINE

Watercress is a spicy herb. It grows in the sandy beds of streams. When fresh, it has a distinct flavor and is excellent when served with meats. Due to its bitter taste, it was at one time a popular medicinal herb and was alleged to be useful in the cure of many stomach ailments.

Dandelion greens deserve greater popularity. Few realize the nutritional value of this plant and regard it merely as a noxious weed. Others think of it only as a medicinal herb. Within recent years great strides have been made in the cultivation of dandelions for greens. They are larger and whiter and there is little waste. Dandelion greens can be eaten raw or cooked.

TEMPT APPETITE

When preparing a salad, thoroughly wash the leaves and stalks until all sand and dirt are removed. A green salad is usually served with a vinegar and oil, or a lemon and oil dressing. The kind of oil to use depends upon the individual taste. Some cooks add a tiny piece of garlic or onion to the salad dressing.

A good plan is to make a week's supply of salad dressing. If you do this, keep it in a tightly closed jar in the refrigerator. This bulk method of preparation is both economical and time-saving.

Salads are important because they contain valuable minerals and vitamins. They supply the diet with the necessary roughage, or bulk, so essential to proper elimination. Though they contain little food value, they tempt the appetite and aid in the digestion of foods.

CAR TRANSFERS TO CHANGE

The Pittsburgh Railway Company, in order to correct certain abuses of the transfer, will put a new system into effect Monday.

The transfers will be good only for one hour after the time of issue.

The entire railway system will be divided into eight divisions, each of which will have transfers of different colors.

Beta Sigma Chapter To Banquet Tonight

Beta Sigma Chapter, of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, will hold a founder's day banquet at Webster Hall at 7 o'clock tomorrow night. The banquet will be attended by alumni from Pittsburgh and neighboring towns and by undergraduates.

powder, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, 2½ teaspoons cream, 1 tablespoon prune juice, 1 tablespoon milk, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, ¼ cup chopped nuts.

Work shortening until creamy, add half the sugar, then the egg well beaten with the remaining sugar and the prunes, mashed. Add flour sifted with baking powder, cinnamon and salt, alternately with soda dissolved in cream, prune juice and milk. Add lemon extract and nut meats, mix well, poured into two oiled 7-inch layer cake tins. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 35 minutes. Put together with soft fluffy frosting and decorate with a flower made from cooked prune with stem and leaves of angelica.

* * *

SWEET AND SOUR CABBAGE —1 small onion, sliced; 1½ tablespoons bacon fat, ½ cup water or stock, 2 cups shredded red cabbage, 1 sour apples, sliced; 1½ tablespoons vinegar, ½ tablespoon brown sugar, few grains allspice, 1 clove, salt and pepper.

Brown onion slightly in fat, add water or stock, cabbage and apple. Cover and cook slowly. When nearly done, add vinegar, sugar, spices and seasonings.

* * *

PEACH AND BLACKBERRY SALAD—12 canned peach halves, 3 dozen canned blackberries, 1 head lettuce, mayonnaise, French dressing.

If canned peaches are used, drain them well. Arrange 2 peach halves, rounded side down, on each individual bed of lettuce. Fill cavities with mayonnaise dressing alone, or mixed with whipped cream. Then arrange 3 or 4 blackberries on each. Serve with French dressing. Serves 6.

BEET RING MOLD —4 pounds beet greens, 8 small white onions, 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 teaspoons fat, 1—1¾ pound canned tongue, 2½ cups hot, well-seasoned white sauce, 2 tablespoons chopped pimientoes.

Prepare and cook the beet greens and onions separately until tender. Drain well, then add the salt, pepper and fat to the beet greens with additional seasoning if necessary. Arrange the hot beet greens in a buttered ring mold, packing them down well. Unmold on a hot platter and fill the center with the tongue which has been diced and mixed with the white sauce, onions and pimientoes. Serves 6 to 8.

* * *

CRANBERRY CATSUP — 2 pounds cranberries, 2 cups sugar, vinegar, 2 tablespoons Worchestershire sauce.

Wash and pick over the cranberries. Cover them with vinegar and cook until the berries burst. Force through a strainer. Add sugar. Return to the fire and cook slowly until thick. Stir in Worchestershire sauce and seal in clean hot jars.

* * *

"BLUSHING" HARD SAUCE FOR THAT MODEST PUDDING —Who ever thought the regulation hard sauce could be varied and what's more, made decorative? Well, it can—can be turned into "blushing" hard sauce and tinted a delicate color without artificial means with the use of cranberry sauce!

Use the canned cranberry sauce of the strained variety for convenience. 4 tablespoons will be enough. Cream a fourth-cup of butter until very soft, then stir in a cup of confectioner's sugar gradually. As the mixture becomes stiff, stir in the sauce, a tablespoon at a time. Add a half teaspoon of sherry flavoring (or vanilla) if you like. Stir vigorously, pile the sauce in a mound in serving dish and chill.

* * *

CORN FRITTERS — 1 cup canned corn, 1 egg, well beaten; ⅔ cup flour, ¾ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper.

Mix ingredients in order given. Drop by spoonfuls in deep Wesson oil heated to 360 degrees F. Fry

Jobless Boy Questions Right To Accept Love

When a girl has a job and the man has none—then what?

Guy would like to know, for he's one of those men. Not that he's idle by choice. Anything but! Three years ago he was graduated, counting the impatient weeks until he could get a swell job and lead The Girl up the well-known aisle. Now, he's still counting—and the girl's still waiting.

"But why wait?" says she. "I have enough for two."

But Guy can't see it that way. Could you if you were a boy—or if you were the girl?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I am confronted with a problem that I feel should be looked over by someone who is unbiased and competent to see a way out. It isn't my problem alone, either, for thousands have it to contend with.

I am a young man, 25 years of age, a college graduate, ready to tackle work and living—and I'm jobless. I have been jobless ever since I was graduated, three years ago, or at least practically so.

Since I was graduated I have assisted my parents, without remuneration other than necessities, in carrying on their business, which isn't getting me anywhere to speak of. But I guess it can't be helped.

While a student I started to go with a co-ed, and now we are deeply in love. She has a good job. She has had it ever since her graduation; consequently, she has saved money. And she has a car. I have neither. She always gives more than her share and never complains for having to do so.

NOTHING TO OFFER

But the one great thing she looks forward to is marriage and children. She has no parents living, so my home is always open to her, for my folks love her almost as much as I do.

I know these are difficult times, but even so—have I the right to accept the love of a girl, and take up her time, when I have nothing to offer her but hopes and promises? Or to keep going with her and "standing her off" until I get a job?

And when I do get one, have I any right to accept her savings to help make a home, as I know she will insist on my doing?

Giving her up would be the most difficult thing I ever did. She is the finest and cleanest and most loyal girl I have ever known. But I am getting so that I feel like a cad.

What shall I do? Please help me. I certainly need it. GUY.

Yes, son, it's pretty tough! I know just how hurt and helpless and desperate you feel—drifting—wondering where things are going, and why. And maybe walking out, leaving the girl "free," does seem to you like a fine gesture, but actually it wouldn't be.

STAND BY GIRL

There's the girl. How about Her side of the question? She has loved you long and loyally. She is brave enough now to stand by you in the face of criticism. You're thinking of your pride. How about hers? Aren't you man enough to stand the gaff, if she can? The one thing that consoles her during these difficult days is your presence. Are you, in order to make a magnificent gesture, going to take that consolation away and doom her to heartbreak and loneliness?

No Guy; my advice is to stick by your girl. Match your courage with her own. Face life together. Prove to the world that life can't lick you.

And if she wants to help build your home? Well, why not? It will be her home, too. And she has much right to invest her money and her dreams in the joy of it as you have.

That's my advice to Guy. Once upon a time such advice would have seemed shocking; but this is a different world, and we must build a different code to conform with it.

So—what do you think? Have I given Guy the right steer? Is this the way he and thousands of other fine young men should see depression through?

Or have you other ideas? If so, let's hear them.

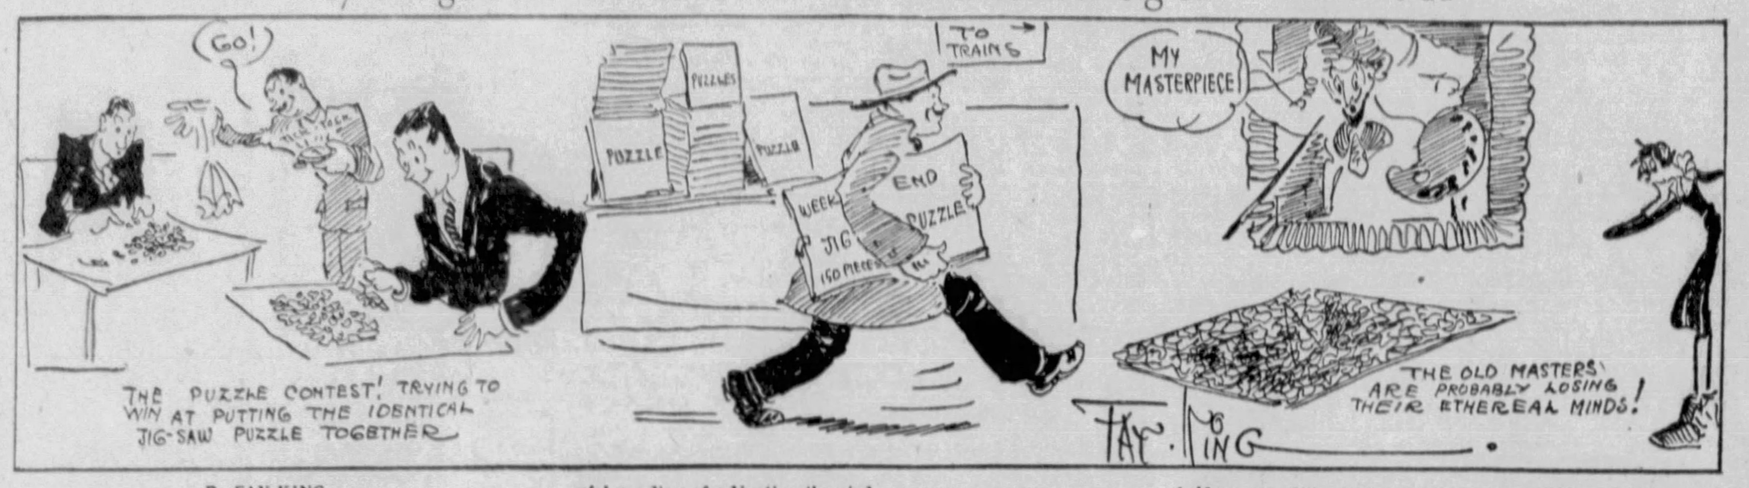
Fay King Sees a Tonic for the Nerves in Jig-Saw Puzzle Fad



By FAY KING

The jig saw puzzle craze may prove a cure for what ails us.

It calls for patience and keeps the hands employed. The co-ordination between the hand and the brain has always been a powerful medium of adjusting the mind.

It is said that Gandhi keeps his followers spinning because this welds them into one concentrated power of thought.

That is why cards and cigarets held in the hand take such a hold on one. It is why the brainest men scribble with a pencil while thinking things out.

It is said that holding the tips of the fingers of both hands together will bring rest and calm nerves.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Correct Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me if it is proper to send a gift to my employer's wife who has just had a baby girl? I have never met his wife.

Will you please also suggest what to send and if I am to include a card and also a letter explaining how happy I was to hear the goods news? N.

This gesture might be interpreted as being "too much," and I don't believe that I would do it, if I were you. If you feel that you would very much like to make some bow about this event, the best thing for you to do would be to send some flowers. You might send a box of the lovely spring flowers now so beautifully displayed in florists' windows; and in this box enclose a tiny bouquet of very small blossoms for the baby.

In the box of flowers enclose your visiting card. On it, or on a plain white card that the florist will supply, write "Congratulations and best wishes." This will tell your whole message, and it will not then be necessary to write a letter.

Introduction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Will you please send me the correct forms of introductions to be used by a young lady when introducing her brother, who is a doctor, to her friends, both men and women?

2—Also, is it proper for a friend of the doctor to call him by his given name, John, instead of DOCTOR or DOC?

1—If you do not wish to mention his name with the title to indicate that he is a doctor, you may use the form, "Mrs. Allen, may I present my brother?" or "Mrs. Allen, this is my brother."

If you wish to add the name, you may say, "Mrs. Allen, this is my brother, Doctor Foster," or "Mrs. Allen, may I present my brother, Doctor Foster?"

When you introduce him to another man, you say, "Mr. Allen, my brother," or "Mr. Allen, this is my brother, Doctor Foster."

2—If the friend knows your brother well enough to call him by his first name, he uses that, just as he would if your brother hadn't the title of doctor.

It is unspeakably poor taste for his friends to address him as "Doc," unless this is used in spoofing mood. And it is provincial, too, to address a doctor as "doctor," without the use of the last name. We use the last name with "doctor" just as we use the last name with "Mr." And this is very important. No one who knows what's what says, "Good morning, doctor." He or she says, "Good morning, Dr. Brown."

-:- Hints for the Household -:-

A dish mop dipped in one gallon of hot soap suds to which one cup of gasoline has been added is excellent to use for cleaning bed springs.

To remove cocoa or chocolate stains from linens, soak the articles for four hours or longer in cold water and then wash out in warm water and soap suds.

To toughen the bristles of new brooms so that they will last longer, soak the brooms for five minutes in hot water and soap suds.

Identity of Kidnapers Puzzling

My father's response to Hugh's appeal was quick and decisive.

"I agree with you perfectly, Hugh. Harry and Ronald must make the final decision. But suppose we get things a little more clearly first. Everything is in readiness for the attack, I believe?"

"To the last man and bit of material," Hugh answered. "All we are waiting for now is the report of—your son-in-law."

I noted half-consciously, as I had done frequently before, that Hugh rarely speaks Dicky's name if he can help it. If my father noticed his odd phrasing, however, no one could guess it from his face and eyes.

"That should not be long delayed now," my father said, "so let us go over this thing thoroughly. Tell us about Lee Chow, and then I should like to question the Mertons about these people who doubtless planted the message beneath the candles."

"All I know about Lee Chow, I have told you," Hugh said. "Of course he was the first person I thought of when this message came, and I telephoned him at once; but the only word I could get from the people at the address he gave me was that he went away last night saying that he would return before midnight, that no one has seen him since, and that he has sent no message to the house."

"Is that surprising in Lee Chow?" my father asked.

THE ONLY HOPE

"Not under ordinary circumstances," Hugh returned, "but he knew how vital I considered it to be in constant touch with him, and although he has irritated me to desperation by his refusal to tell me the nature of his activities around that hotel where Charles Owen is ill, yet he never has failed until last night to communicate with me twice a day."

"I should not say," my father said judicially, "that we must give up hope for his safety because of that omission. Of course, taken in conjunction with this message, the probability is that he is in jeopardy; but there is also the possibility that he may have struck a trail entailing such close attention that he cannot leave it to get in touch with you."

"That is the only hope I have," Hugh answered, but so flatly that we knew it was no hope at all.

"Then," my father said briskly, "will you please ask the Mertons to come up here?"

"Just a minute," Harry Underwood interposed, as Hugh started toward the door. "Suppose the Dicky-bird returns before we expect him, will he know where we are? The Chief and I left no word, for we didn't expect to be gone more than a few minutes. How about you, Lady Fair?"

VISITORS DESCRIBED

"I did not dare tell Lillian, for fear she would be alarmed," I said. "I told Noel, who is in the hotel lobby, ready to be of use anywhere, that we were going out for a little drive and might stop here for some waffles and tea."

"I'd better confirm that, then," Hugh said, "but not at the hotel. I'll telephone Dr. Barnes, with whom Dickey will get in contact, telling him where we are. Do you approve, Chief?"

"Of course," and then we waited tensely until Hugh came back with the Mertons, and my father went over with them every detail of the faces, figures and costumes of their queer customers, who by elimination were the only people that could have placed the message beneath the candles.

"That is all, thank you," he said at last and when the Mertons had gone downstairs he spoke slowly.

"If the Chinese are concerned in this, they have white accomplices. I would stake a great deal upon the observation and keen perceptions of the Mertons, and they agree that not even one of the party could possibly be a distinguished Chinese."

The telephone shrilled as his last words were spoken, and after a few seconds Mr. Merton called through the door.

"Telephone for Mrs. Graham," he said.

Contract Bridge

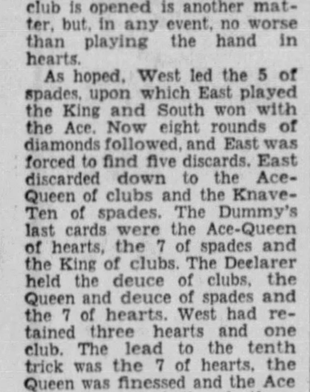
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Tropic Plunger

Perhaps there is something in the sunshine of the tropics that causes one to believe that the way to redeem losses at the Contract table, due to bad cards and other troubles, is to plunge a little bit more and to confuse partner and opponents by a series of pyrotechnical bluff bids. The usual result of this type of bidding is not to reduce the losses, but to increase them, but Mr. C. A. Waite, who lives in San Juan, Porto Rico, writes such an interesting story of a hand that recently occurred in a set game of Contract at Bogata, Colombia, S. A., that I feel that others would like to learn the story of the happy outcome of spectacular but unsound bidding.

East—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable; part-score 40.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
2 ♠ (1)	3 ♡ (2)	Double	Redouble
4 ♣ (3)	5 ♣	Pass	5 ♡
Pass	6 ◇ (4)	Double	6 ♡
Pass	7 ◇ (5)	Double	7 ♡ (6)
Pass	7 NT (7)	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—No doubt designed as a game bid, but, of course, the hand is far too weak for a bid of this kind, even if it did not require any response from partner.

2—The first step in the policy of deception. Of course, South wants to buy the contract at diamonds, at which contract he apparently has 10 tricks with a spade Opening.

3—Very much of an overbid, but East realizes that he had grossly overbid his hand and hopes to find a cheap way out.

4—South is trying to rescue himself from the predicament into which he was plunged by his unsound bluff Overcall.

5—Hoping that his partner will some time realize that his heart Overcall was simply rhetorical.

6—North remains obtuse.

7—The last deperate effort to save something from the wreck. South believes that he cannot go down more than 3 tricks if he gets the anticipated spade Opening. What will happen if a club is opened is another matter, but, in any event, no worse than playing the hand in hearts.

As hoped, West led the 5 of spades, upon which East played the King and South won with the Ace. Now eight rounds of diamonds followed, and East was forced to find five discards. East discarded down to the Ace-Queen of clubs and the Knave-Ten of spades. The Dummy's last cards were the Ace-Queen of hearts, the 7 of spades and the King of clubs. The Declarer held the deuce of clubs, the Queen and deuce of spades and the 7 of hearts. West had retained three hearts and one club. The lead to the tenth trick was the 7 of hearts, the Queen was finessed and the Ace returned. On both of these plays East was squeezed, and was unable to prevent the making of the contract.

As Mr. Waite remarks, the bid of seven notrump turned out to be a winner financially, but it added a few grey hairs to his head. Needless to say, Mr. Waite was playing the South hand.

Today's Question

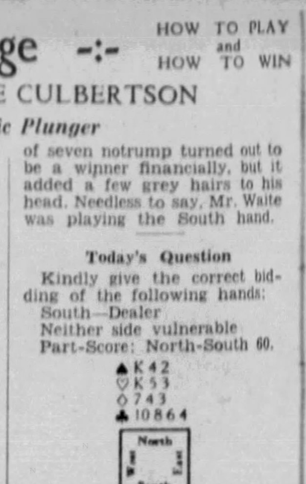
South—Dealer
Neither side vulnerable
Part-Score: North-South 60.



Answer—The bidding:

South	North
2 ♣	2 NT (1)
4 ♣	5 ♣
6 ♣	Pass

1—North is required to keep the bidding open for one round. He should not raise the clubs at once, because the hand does not contain 1 plus honor-trick in addition to adequate trump support.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

There can be no doubt as to the popularity of ruchings for one sees them in all evening gatherings. A lovely frock of white chiffon with seamed and fitted detail is worn over a white taffeta slip. At the shoulders and hemline there are big puffed ruchings of white taffeta.

Once in a while a real novelty is shown. Therefore there was much interest in a long evening wrap of white woolen, cut on fitted lines, with a detachable cape of silver fox and a muff of the white woolen fabric trimmed with broad bands of the fox.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

That upward tilt of the eyebrow at the far end is achieved by plucking it from the under side. The end over the nose is thinned from the upper side. Marvelous what the dollies are doing with their eyebrows. Not always becoming, not always a beauty help, but very interesting. The pattern the eyebrow assumes changes the expression of the face, as all observers must know that look the girls over with a critical eye.

Figure molding is a part of the day's job. Fashion demands the well developed chest, firm breasts, wide shoulders, trim waist, slender hips, straight legs and a lovely, graceful line from lower ribs to thighs. A big order, but attainable if a gal once sets her mind on it. If the shape is too ample, cut down on sweets, starches and fats; if it lacks curves, stoke up on them. An exercise that won't fail to tighten abdominal muscles, reduce large thighs and create the svelte waistline is this: Lie flat on the back in bed, hands under hips; lift legs slowly until you're standing on the back of your neck; lower legs slowly. Good fun.

Mixing complexion powders of various colors to match the complexion, to impart a flattering surface, has become one of the fine arts. Here is the formula for the brunette with blue eyes and milky-white skin; five teaspoons of white powder, two teaspoons flesh color, one teaspoon of violet, one of sun-tan yellow. Fluff to gether with a fork, then pass through a fine sieve. Imparts that popular porcelain finish.

About the beneficial effects of cold water on the complexion, no woman need be told. Yet the average gal never thinks of using it. It hardens fibers, coaxes the capillaries to produce home-grown blushes the like of which no rouge pad can duplicate. It acts as an astringent and is particularly necessary in treatment of oily skin and enlarged pores. The best time for its application is in the morning; the best time for oiling and patting is at night. How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Injection Method' Is a Failure as Hernia Cure

"Hernia," or "rupture," as it is more commonly called, is not a disease. It is a defect due to a structural weakness of a certain part of the body. This weakness may be present at birth, or it may be the result of a blow or severe muscular strain.

Dr. Copeland

"Operation" is a word that brings to the mind of the average person a horrible picture. It is not a true picture. When it is done by a skillful surgeon, the discomfort and dangers are so slight that the operation may be undergone safely by anyone.

In aged individuals or persons whose health is poor, the operation may be performed under a local anesthetic. Indeed, this is the ideal method for operation for hernia, because it does away with the distressing nausea and cough usually present after taking a general anesthetic.

I receive many letters requesting advice about the so-called "injection method" for the cure of rupture. "I have a rupture. I dread being operated on. Do you advise the injection method for the cure of hernia?" This is a common appeal.

Some of my readers, perhaps, have subjected themselves to this surgical fad. Most of them will agree with me, I am sure, when I say that the results obtained are unsatisfactory. Do not be misled by unconfirmed statements of successful cure of hernia by injection.

In this method of treatment various substances are used for injection into the tissues. It is difficult to inject the substance into the proper place. In that event it is a failure and adhesions form around the hernia which make the subsequent operation difficult.

In many instances, serious damage has been done to the neighboring tissues.

Do not confuse the injection method for the cure of hernia with the injection method used in the treatment of varicose veins. Varicose veins can now be successfully cured by the injection method. This is an accepted procedure and approved by the medical profession. The injection method for rupture never has been officially approved.

I am often asked whether a truss is beneficial in the treatment of rupture. It all depends on the case. It may act as a safeguard, but in some instances a truss does more harm than good. It diminishes the strength of the tissues and, of course, never cures the hernia. The rupture continues to grow larger and larger.

Never neglect a rupture. There is always danger that it may cause an obstruction of the bowel. Or there may be strangulation of the part of the intestine that may slip into the rupture. In these cases, immediate operation is necessary; delay may be fatal. A child suffering from rupture should never be permitted to carry this handicap through life.

Do not fear an operation and bear in mind that the longer you delay an operation the more extensive it will be. There is more danger in the neglect of a hernia than there is in the simple operation used for its cure.

PLAIN MUFFINS — 2 cups all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, well beaten, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons Wesson oil.

Sift flour and measure. Re-sift into a mixing bowl with baking powder, salt and sugar. Mix the milk and Wesson oil with the well beaten egg. Turn liquids all at once into the sifted dry ingredients and stir vigorously for about 20 seconds. The ingredients should all be moistened in this time; but the mixture will not be and should not be, smooth and free from lumps. Put the batter at once into hot, oiled muffin pans and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for about 25 minutes. Whole wheat or graham flour may be substituted for all or part of the white flour.

ORANGE COOKIES — The cookie jar should always be full at this time of year, for young appetites seem to be whetted during colder weather. They taste so good, these cookies do, with either a glass of milk or served to grownups with a nice cup of hot tea.

One cup of sugar, ½ cup of butter, 1 egg, ¼ cup of orange juice, the grated rind of 1 orange, 2 cups of flour, 4½ teaspoons of baking powder, ⅛ teaspoon of salt, blanched and chopped almonds.

Cream the butter and sugar together thoroughly. Beat the egg until light and add to butter and sugar mixture. Then stir in the orange juice, grated orange rind and stir well. Put the two level cups of flour in sifter with the baking powder and salt. Sift the dry ingredients into orange juice mixture and when well mixed turn cookie mixture out on to lightly floured board and roll into a sheet. Then cut into rounds, sprinkle with blanched, chopped almonds and bake for 10 minutes or so in an oven set at 375 degrees F. It may be necessary to ad da bit more flour.

Cook cauliflower in boiling salted water, uncovered, until tender. Drain. Place in the center of ring mold and pour over the cauliflower the following white sauce: Melt the butter, add flour, mix well, then add the remaining cup of milk and salt, stirring continuously until it begins to boil.

Garnish the dish with chopped parsley and serve a spray on each serving. Serves 6. A good main dish.

ONLY 12 OF WAGNER'S TIME SURVIVE

CELEBRATING TODAY THE fifty-ninth anniversary of his birth, and back in the big baseball show after an absence of 15 seasons, Honus Wagner may be pardoned for wondering if he's in the same old game as he looks along the major league pennant front. There has been almost a complete change of personnel since Wagner dropped out. Players have come and gone by the hundred, managers by the dozen. The only manager left of the 16 in charge when Honus retired at the close of the 1917 season is Connie Mack, of the A's, and of more than 500 players who saw service under the big top that year only an even dozen still are active in the majors, though several others are now managers or coaches, including George Gibson and Grover Hartley.

Honus Wagner

The survivors in the National are Rabbit Maranville, Rogers Hornsby, Burleigh Grimes, Eppa Rixey, Bob O'Farrell, Val Picinich and Joe Judge. Picinich and Judge have since come over from the American. Those remaining in the American are Babe Ruth, Herb Pennock, Sam Rice, Urban Faber and Charley Jamieson. The only Pirates of 1917, remaining in any capacity, besides Wagner and Grimes, are Bill Hinchman and Max Carey.

MENTION OF JOE CORBETT as one of the family survivors of the late Gentleman Jim recalled to veteran baseball fans one of the best slow-ball pitchers of 35 years ago and more.

Joe Corbett pitched for Baltimore in 1896 and 1897 on a staff that included Bill Hoffer, Sadie McMahon, Al Maul, Charley Esper, Arlie Pond, Jerry Nops, George Hemming, Doc Amole and Augie Weyhing. In 1898 he was sent to the Norfolk farm temporarily, along with a battery mate in the person of Catcher Frank Bowerman, who was sold to the Pirates with First Baseman Tom O'Brien, a Pittsburgher, later in the season for $3,500.

IN 1899, THE final year of the 12-club league, the Brooklyn club bought control of the Baltimore outfit and transferred the pick of the players to Flatbush, Ned Hanlon going along as manager.

CHARLES H. EBBETS continued as president of the Brooklyn club, and Hanlon, who had been president as well as manager of the Orioles, continued to hold the Baltimore presidency, thus occupying the unique position of being president of one club and manager of another in the same league.

THE BALTIMORE PLAYERS transferred to Brooklyn after the deal were Pitchers Corbett, Jay Hughes, Jimmy McJames and Al Maul; Catcher Mike Heydon; Infielders Dan McGann, Hughey Jennings and Bill Dahlen, and Outfielders Willie Keeler and Joe Kelley. But Corbett did not report and remained out until 1904, when the Dodgers sold him to the St. Louis Nationals. He pitched 14 games for St. Louis, of which he won only five, and he was then turned back to Brooklyn. Again Joe refused to report, and the Brooklyn club gave him permission to remain on the coast and pitch for San Francisco in 1905. That was his last year in baseball.

Art Nehf

THE JUDGMENT OF a former star pitcher is at stake on the showing of Outfielder Hank Lieber with the Giants. Fresh from the University of Arizona, Lieber was recommended to John McGraw a year ago by Art Nehf, and he is the only player Nehf ever recommended to any club.

Lieber came up as a first baseman, but McGraw sent him to the Winston-Salem farm and had him turned into an outfielder. Hitting ability was the main thing that Nehf had seen in the youngster, aside from the fact that he is very fast for a man weighing 204 pounds, and Hank bore out the estimate by hitting .353.

CHICAGO'S NEW FOOTBALL coach, Clark Shaughnessy, has the reputation of being one of the cleanest sportsmen in the game. A notable instance of his sportsmanship came in the opening game at South Bend in 1928, when Loyola was playing Notre Dame.

One of Shaughnessy's players had tackled a Notre Dame ball carrier out of bounds. Shaughnessy immediately sent in a substitute, and when the offending player came out the coach said to him: "I don't want any boy playing football for me like that. Sit down and stay there."

INCIDENTALLY, IT WAS the fight Loyola gave Notre Dame that day that led Knute Rockne later to pronounce Shaughnessy one of the best coaches in the country. Rockne started his shock troops and in the second quarter sent in the regulars. After the first-stringers had been in about five minutes Loyola scored a touchdown, and the first half ended 6 to 0. In the third quarter Loyola recovered a fumble on the Irish 16-yard line and came within inches of a second touchdown. A 50-yard run by Jack Elder on an off-tackle play tied the score at 6-6, and it remained so until the last minute of the game, when after using half a dozen quarterbacks and ends, Rockne put in One-Play O'Brien and Johnny Niemic. The latter threw a pass and O'Brien was covered, but, taller than the defenders, he got the ball. The pass failed to get a touchdown, but on fourth down, a yard to go, and darkness creeping over the field, the Irish scored again and won, 12 to 6.

OUT ON THE Pacific coast, where they had a lot of experience with Rugby while American football was on the shelf, they are suggesting that some of the features of the former might well be incorporated into the American game. One of the boosters is a former Pittsburgher, Dr. Wilfrid J. Holroyd, who played Rugby in England.

The point stressed is that of substitutions, which amused foreigners when the American grid sport was demonstrated during the Olympic Games. "Substitutes should be eliminated," Dr. Holroyd says. "New men are not substituted in a tug-o'-war when a team is weakening, or in rowing, or in tennis, or in several other games."

IT IS ADMITTED by a majority of the veteran California sports writers that they get quite as big a kick or thrill out of a well-played Rugby game as they do out of the standard American collegiate brand of football.

Jim Bausch

For years they saw good Rugby played by California colleges, and any one who ever saw the game must agree with them that it requires high standards of stamina, speed, strength, skill and courage.

A VETERAN WHO knows the ropes remarks that if you've followed the activities of Vines, Allison, Van Ryn and Gledhill in Australia, playing tennis every day for three months, you'll have a faint idea of what Jim Bausch, Bill Carr, Ben Eastman, Ralph Metcalfe and George Spitz will be up against while touring Europe next summer. He says they'll run or jump two or three times a week against the best athletes of the country they're visiting. They'll be eating strange grub, seeing the sights, losing their baggage, and in general having a busy time. Chances are they'll make some great records—and be so sick of competition when they get home they'll want never to see a track shoe again. But it'll be a great trip—and something they never would get to do if they turned pro.

CORSAIR CAMP FETES HONUS ON BIRTHDAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 24.—The gingery squad of Pirate pitchers and catchers indulged in another long workout this morning, and despite a cool wind that took some of the warmth out of the sunshine, the Pittsburghers were able to work out most of the soreness that grew out of the first drills held yesterday. Running, throwing, pepper-ball, fungo-chasing and batting occupied the 20 odd rookies and vets taking part in the first session of today.

All hands, including Honus Wagner, were in shape for the second day's grind. Wagner was slightly injured in the first joust of the season. The daddy of all shortstops, whose birthday fell today, is to be the victim of a pleasant surprise tonight. When he slouches into the dining room tonight there will be a big cake at his table, the token being the gift of the squad. Among the decorations on the cake will be a card bearing the signature of each member of the party. The whole thing has been arranged quietly, and Wagner is sure to walk into a fast one when he sits down.

GIBSON PLEASED

Manager Gibson today expressed pleasure over the condition of the ball park. The huge playing field is in better condition than most big league fields.

The initial workouts yesterday brought no bad results, although Wagner was close to danger early in the morning joust. Honus opened the battling drill with a stinging drive to the outfield and he felt so good that he sprinted down around first after the fashion of a guy named Wagner of 20 years back.

HONUS INJURED

Just as Honus made the turn at first, Earl Grace slapped a hot bounder toward right. The sphere took an ugly hop and struck the Flying Dutchman square on the left hip as he headed for second.

The same drive would have felled many a man, but Wagner walked off the diamond without touching the sore spot. Said Honus:

"I was hurt and the pain was awful, but I just did not want to rub with all those kids looking on. You know the old timers were supposed to be able to take it."

A few hours later, Honus donned a bathing suit and dove off the springing board into the hotel pool. He swam around for more than 30 minutes and in that way was able to work a lot of the soreness out of the injured hip. But the mark is there and it's a nice birthday present, for Wagner is 59 today.

HOYT IN FINE FORM

Boss Gibson is tickled over the condition of Remy Kremer and Waite Hoyt. He watched these two veterans over a long period and then came back to the bench with a smile. He said:

"Gee, doesn't Hoyt look good, and if Remy's arm is back this year we will have a sweet pitching staff."

Baseball Briefs

DETROIT, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The Detroit Tigers have announced the release of two young players. Bill Lawrence, outfielder, was sent to Toronto of the International League, and Truett Sewell, right handed pitcher, to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League. Both were released subject to recall.

TERRYVILLE, Conn., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Pete Jablonowski, who will seek a berth on the pitching staff of the New York Yankees this year, has returned his signed contract to that team and is ready to leave with the first squad of Yanks for their training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1. Jablonowski has seen service with the Cleveland and Boston clubs of the American League and Cincinnati of the National League.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The advance squad of Chicago's White Sox, their hopes highest in years or a first division ball club, are headed for their new spring training grounds at Pasadena, Cal., today. Seventeen were in the party, including Owner J. Louis Comiskey and five players that left last night. The squad will arrive at Pasadena Sunday morning at 8:45 and start on the training grind Monday.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Business Manager Rube Bechtel of the Toledo, American Association baseball club, has announced that Morristown, Tenn., has been selected as the spring training camp site for the Mud Hens. Manager Steve O'Neill and the batterymen will leave for camp March 11.

HANSELL WINS GUN CLASSIC

He made 24 out of 25 fliers, from a field of 37 contestants, over the Loraine traps. A strong westerly wind made shooting difficult.

The Grand American, held yesterday for the first time since 1905, is to be made an annual affair over the Loraine traps. The South End Gun Club, sponsor of the meet, assigned February 23, 1934, as the date of the next American shoot.

THREE BRITISH WOMEN LOSE

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Three British invaders were eliminated yesterday from the South Atlantic women's golf tournament, leaving only their leader—Diana Fishwick—and three Americans in the running.

Frances Williams, of Deleon Springs, defending champion, defeated Barbara Pyman, 3 and 2. Miss Williams won the match with accurate long shots.

Mrs. Estelle Drennan, of Tulsa, caused the day's biggest upset by winning from Kathleen Garnham, 1 up.

After playing two long wood shots to within 10 yards of the green, Mrs. Stewart Hanley, of Detroit, turned in a 77 and defeated Gwen Hartropp, 5 and 4.

Miss Fishwick, lone survivor of the British forces, won from Mrs Robert Mazet, of New York, 3 and 2. The English girl was off to a poor start and trailed to the fifth where she evened the count. She went 1 up on the seventh with a swell chip shot, and held that lead at the turn. On the back nine she got two birdies in succession and came in with a 38, under par for the nine.

Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, withdrew from the tourney, defaulting her match in the title consolation class to Mrs. Bee Brindle, of England. Mrs. Riley was eliminated in the tournament proper by Miss Kathleen Garnham, of England.

C. M. SCOTT DEFEATED

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24.—C. M. Scott, of Pittsburgh, was defeated in the consolation class final round in the Everglades invitation golf tournament here yesterday. He bowed to L. M. Goss, of Bedford, Pa., 2 and 1. Scott led his opponent during the early stages of the match, but faltered considerably on the incoming journey due to erratic work on the greens.

Honus 59 Today—Here's His Major League Record

Honus Wagner, former Pirate star, now coach, celebrates his fifty-ninth birthday anniversary today with the club in its Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp. He is one of the greatest players in the history of the sport. He led the National League in batting four years in a row and eight times all told. His major league playing career extended over a period of 21 years. He was probably the greatest fielding and hardest hitting shortstop in the history of the game and also was a leading base runner. He began his career with the Mansfield (O.) club at the age of 21, went to Adrian, Mich., then to Steubenville and from there to Paterson, N. J., from which club he was obtained by Louisville, of the National League, in 1897. He came to Pittsburgh when the Louisville club was transferred here in 1900 and thus spent his entire major league career under one management. Following in his major league record:

MID-ATLANTIC LEAGUE SET

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Baseball fans in West Virginia today are looking forward with stronger assurance of the successful operation this year of the Middle Atlantic League.

Difficulties in Clarksburg and Wheeling appear to have been overcome and a meeting of club officials in the latter city Sunday is expected to be followed by President Elmer Daly's announcement of reorganization into a six-club league.

The clubs will be Wheeling, Clarksburg, Huntington, Beckley, Charleston, W. Va., and Johnstown, Pa.

Following the meeting of a committee on ways and means last night, C. P. Leatherwood, chairman, announced that $900 had been raised to assure retention of the franchise in this city. Leatherwood will head Clarksburg's delegation to the meeting in Wheeling.

It also is hoped to have playing schedules at that time.

SCHOOL QUINTS BATTLE AT STADIUM

By JULIUS LEVIN

With important league games carded in the City League and W. P. I. A. L. and the opening W. P. I. A. L. elimination contest listed for disposal in the Pitt Stadium pavillion, scholastic basketball passers will be in for a busy afternoon and evening today.

The Section II championship of the City League likely will be decided this afternoon when Perry engages Oliver at Perry and South Hills opposes Carrick at Carrick in the headline attractions. Perry needs one victory to clinch the Section II crown and the right to meet South, champion of Section I, in the City League playoffs.

HILLSMEN HAVE CHANCE

South Hills' only chance to force the race into a deadlock is to beat Carrick while Perry is losing to Oliver. In the other Section II game, Allegheny play at Langley.

Today's contests in the City League and the W. P. I. A. L. mark the close of the regular campaign and aside from several playoffs to decide deadlocks, the annual elimination series, opening tonight in the Pitt Stadium pavilion will attract the attention of the scholastic supporters.

The inaugural battle brings together New Kensington, champion of Section I, and East Pittsburgh, champion of Section XVII. Both contenders competed in the tournament last year, New Kensington advancing to the final round before bowing to Braddock, while East Pittsburgh was eliminated by Swissvale, which at that time was representing Section XI, in the first round.

Both teams will take the floor with every regular in shape to start, and indications point to a close battle. New Kensington is regarded the favorite, but the Shamrocks, undefeated in league competition, feel certain they can check the Glockmen.

While New Kensington and East Pittsburgh are clashing at the Pitt Stadium pavilion, McDonald and Cecil, two of the three teams in a deadlock for the Section XIV championship battle at Washington, Pa., in the first playoff contest to determine the sectional champion.

PROTEST THROWN OUT

The decisions committee of the W. P. I. A. L. tossed the protest lodged by Nate Lippe, of Aliquippa, against two of Moe Rubenstein's Ambridge stars, into the wastebasket last night at a special meeting held at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Lippe protested that the amateur status of Eddie Gutowski and John Michelosen, the aces of the Bridgers' team, on the grounds that they had taken part in tournaments in which professional players had participated. Aliquippa also protested Gutowski's age, but this was refused when Rubenstein produced Eddie's birth certificate. Gutowski was protested on the same grounds a year ago and given a clean bill of health.

Brentwood High and South Huntingdon were granted membership in the W. P. I. A. L., it was announced last night by the committee.

GAMES TONIGHT

Pitt vs. Georgetown at Washington, D. C.
Carnegie Tech vs. Temple at Philadelphia.
Geneva vs. Allegheny at Meadville.
Grove City vs. Thiel at Greenville.
Edinboro vs. California at California.

By JESS CARVER

There is nothing particularly soft about the assignment in the Intercollegiate Conference basketball campaign which confront the varsities of Pitt and Carnegie Tech tonight, in fact, it will not come as any great shock to have both the local quintets take it square on the old chinero.

The Tartans and Panthers, both in the East, must go up against teams they've already defeated this season. Pitt meets Georgetown at Washington and Tech faces the rough and ready Temple University Owls in Philly. The Hoyas have improved greatly since their setback here in the inaugural clash last December, and came close to taking Tech last Sat'day night.

PITT TEAM WEAKENED

Beside, the Panthers will have to get along with a revised lineup. Claire Cribbs, varsity center, was dropped from the school rolls this week when it was discovered that while he has been getting a flock of baskets for the ball team, he hasn't been clicking so well in the classroom, and after all, the faculty still has something to say about these college athletes. Slim Wainio, reserve forward, followed Cribbs into the outer darkness for the time being and Whitey Wilson likely will be perched in the Stadium Pavilion here watching his scholastic alma mater, New Kensington in its first W. P. I. A. L. elimination tourney game. Wilson took a sock at Umpire Leo Mackey after the Duquesne game last week and has been suspended.

The Tartans, defeated by New York University Wednesday night, will run into a team that has been playing splendid ball of late, having won some 12 or 13 games hand running.

In fact, the Owls haven't been beaten since they lost to Carnegie here in Pittsburgh several pay-days ago.

GENEVA FACES 'GATORS

There are three other games on the district card tonight. Geneva meets Allegheny at Meadville, Grove City plays Thiel at Greenville and Edinboro's crack team faces California at California. The first named in each case should win, but so should Pernickety at Hialeah Park not so long ago.

Carnegie Tech's varsity swimming team will take to the waters of the Tartan pool this afternoon for a dual engagement with the Western Reserve Red Cats. Tomorrow Pat Corr and his Panthers splashers have a date in Columbus, O., with Ohio State.

Two of the three local varsity boxing teams have action on tap for tomorrow, Pitt's ringmen will meet the Navy at Annapolis and the Dukes, minus the services of Jack Chapalla, the 175-pounder (or 165-pounder, whatever suits Coach Joe Miller's plans the best), take on West Virginia at Morgantown. If either of the local squads win, please file under the miracle heading.

Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech football coach, who was operated on for an ear ailment in the Allegheny General Hospital yesterday, and John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne University, who has been confined to his home for several days because of illness, were reported on the mend today.

KAPLAN QUITS BOXING

The veteran boxer, who has met the best men in the featherweight, junior-lightweight and lightweight ranks over a period of 16 years, said he was convinced he was no longer physically fit to carry on. A decisive defeat at the hands of the Cocoa Kid in New Haven last Monday night is believed to have influenced Kaplan's decision to quit the ring.

Miss Kight After New Swim Record

Lenore Kight, of Homestead, a member of the U. S. Olympic women's swimming team, will attempt to set a new record for the A. M. A. 100-yard senior free style event and win the title at the same time tonight in the Keystone A. C. pool. The occasion will be the A. M. A. swimming and diving championship meet for women, with two titles to be decided.

The present record for the 100-yard race is 1:08, held jointly by Miss Kight and Josephine McKim, former Homestead star, now of Los Angeles. The other championship event will be the junior low board diving test.

Quinn Again Denies Red Sox to Be Sold

But—only to anyone who has "color of real money," according to Bob Quinn, president and owner. The price is said to be in the neighborhood of a million and a half dollars.

Quinn laughed today when asked concerning the latest report that he was "planning" to sell the Red Sox. He said:

"Everybody's been selling the Sox for the past three years, that is, everybody but me."

Chet Miller Sets Two Speed Marks

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Two new world speed records for stock cars having a piston displacement of from 183 to 305 cubic inches, were established here yesterday by Chet Miller, of Detroit.

Driving an eight-cylinder machine, Miller set new standing start records of 67.969 miles an hour for one mile and 61.614 for one kilometer. There were no previous standing start records for these distances.

Canzoneri Wins Over Pete Nebo

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion of the world, won a 10-round decision here last night over Pete Nebo, of Key West. The champion weighed 133 and Nebo 136½.

Canzoneri, with a two-fisted attack, started in determined fashion that saw him sweep the Key West Indian into a straight defensive battle. Nebo, covering up most of the way, crouched and waited for the champion's rush in an effort to connect with his long sweeping left.

British Cricketers Trail Australians

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—With Australia all out in their first innings for the fine total of 435 runs, England today went to the wickets in the fifth and final test cricket match and had scored 159 runs for two wickets when stumps were pulled.

With the series and the "Ashes" already lost, Australia batted confidently to roll up their highest innings total of the tests, L. S. Darling, the new test match player, missing a century by only 15 runs.

PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

—By CHARLES J. DOYLE—
Staff Correspondent

No. 2.—Harold Finney, Catcher

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 24.

Stand up, Hal.

Yes, Suh.

Hal, the players say you are one of the fastest catchers in the game. Where did you get all of that speed?

Well, suh, Ah plowed a fast mule from Monday mawnin' 'til Saturday noon every week and then traveled 25 miles to catch a ball game for 2 dollahs and 50 cents. Ah reckon that would make anybody fast on his feet. And if you Ah'm fast you'd ought to see mah brother, Louis, who is with Connie Mack.

Hal Finney

Where were you born, and when?

On mah dad's farm in Northern Alabama, suh, on July 30, 1907.

Farming is not such a lucrative position now, is it?

We were going along fairly well with our cotton until that last hurricane out of Florida blew nearly all the buildings off the place.

Bettern' Ah like corn pones, and Ah loves them. Somethin's else ah loves is mules, but I was mighty sore at that mean mule that put his trademark on mah face when I was shoein' him.

Where did you first play baseball?

At Five Points (Ala.) High School, suh. We toughed it in overalls until we could scull up enough funds for our suits.

Well, after finishing with high school, Ah was asked to play with a mill team 25 miles from home. That was where Ah got the $2.50 a game and transportation. The other boys were older, but in mah first game Ah was lucky enough to make a homer with two on and that thrill stayed with me a long time. Ah ended the season with a batting average of .320.

The next year was 1927 and Ah caught for the Southern Conference team. It was made up of star collegians of the South. Then came an offer from the Talladega club, of the Georgia-Alabama League. Ah batted .307 for my first season and the next year was purchased by Gadsen, of the same league. Ah was batting .336 late in the season of 1929 when a Pirate agent bought me.

What do you think of the big league?

Well, suh, when Ah landed in New Yawk Ah was like that other kid from the South who thought the elevated was a pretty long bridge not to have any water underneath, but Ah was a willing listener and learned some nice things.

Where did you catch in the next two seasons?

The Pirates took me to camp in 1930, but Ah was plenty raw and they sent me to their Columbia farm in South Carolina. Ah caught a lot of games and was recalled. While spoiling for work in 1931, Ah was sent to the Hazelton club, of the NYP League. Ah caught every day there and sometimes in doubleheaders and was happy.

You met with a bad misfortune in your first real try for a major berth, didn't you?

Yes, suh. In my first time at bat Ah was crowdin' the plate too much on Pat Malone and one of his fast balls broke my left arm. But Ah's a rearin' to go again, jes' like on of them mules on our farm.

DEAF PASSERS IN UPSETS

The New York Institute quintet, generally regarded as having the best chance of wresting the crown from Edgewood, was eliminated by Rhode Island, 31 to 29, in the opening game. Kendall, of Washington, D. C., installed as a favorite because of its triumph over New Jersey earlier in the season, was erased from the picture as New Jersey turned the tables and won, 32 to 16.

The third upset was recorded in the final morning game when Virginia defeated Maryland, 32 to 21. Maryland was figured as one of the strongest teams in the tourney. The lineup:s

Wrestler Injured In Bout on Mend

MUNCIE, Ind., Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Dr. Ralph Wilson, physician and professional wrestler, was reported "greatly improved" at Ball Memorial Hospital today from an intra-cranial hemorrhage and concussion he suffered in a match with Wee Willie Davies last night.

Dr. R. A. Beeson, attending physician, said the hemorrhage was "slight" and that "we expect recovery." He said Wilson, former 175-pound champion of the Western Conference, was "fairly clear mentally."

Referee Walter Fisher, teammate of Dr. Wilson at Indiana University in 1924, awarded the bout to him on a foul after fans clambered into the ring protesting the tactics of Davies, a Virginian. Fisher, ringsiders said, knocked Davies down when the Virginia grappler placed Wilson's head in a sort of noose he made by crossing the upper and lower ring ropes, and applied pressure to the ropes.

SQUASH TITLE PLAY TO OPEN TOMORROW

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The second annual Class B city squash racquets championship tourney will get under way on the courts of the Keystone Athletic Club tomorrow, according to announcement of Secretary W. McCook Reed, of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association. The competition will run throughout the coming week with the wind-up scheduled Saturday, March 4.

More than 30 contestants, representing P. A. A., Pittsburgh Golf Club, Keystone A. C., Allegheny Country Club and Edgeworth Club, will go forth in quest of the crown currently worn by Chip Kennedy, crack K. A. C. performer, who downed G. W. Kepler, Jr., P. A. A. contender, in the 1932 final. The Class B milling is open to all local racqueters with the exception of those formally listed as Class A aspirants by P. S. R. A. authorities, the topflighters being in general the first two or three ranking stars of each team entered in the upper division of the inter-club loop here.

First round action in the class B event will take up tomorrow and Sunday. Among those who may do battle are Jack Beatty, Dr. John O'Loughlin, Rod Flannery, George Kepler, Bill Hutchins, Dr. C. F. Brand, Mabon Bovard, Ed Kelly, Bill Spindler, George Henderson and Dr. George Booth, of the Winged Head; Charley and George Lockhart, Graham McCargo, McCook Miller, Alan Humphries and Barney Wolfe, of Pittsburgh Golf Club; Chip Kennedy, Herb Lytle, Jim Fulton and Theos Manos, of Keystone A. C.; Bill Robinson and Stan Quay, of Allegheny Country Club, and Bill Gordon, Charley Woods and Don Mattern, of Edgeworth.

Ben Pope, crack K. A. C. pro, will have immediate charge of hostilities, with the P. S. R. A. tournament committee, composed of Frank McClintock, Frank White, Dave Gilmore and McCook Reed, exercising general supervision.

The city class A titular affair will probably be begun on March 4. It, too, will be held at the Keystone.

PITT FRESHMAN MERMEN WIN

The University of Pittsburgh freshman swimming team served the crack Turtle Creek High School tankers their second defeat of the season in the Trees gym pool yesterday afternoon, winning, 38 to 17, in a dual meet.

In other scholastic meets, Westinghouse defeated Connelley, 39 to 25; the Westinghouse junior team downed the Connelley juniors, 25 to 10, and South Hills upset Allegheny, 33 to 31.

County Parks Golf Courses Altered

Most of the changes have been made at South Park, where the holes have been renumbered, so that old No. 17 now is No. 1, and where a new green is to be in use on the seventh hole. Improvements in the South Park fairways and the North Park greens and fairways have been made. Six tournaments will be staged at each park, as follows:

Team championship for men, team championship for women, individual tourney for men, individual tourney for women, mixed foursome tourney and caddie tourney. The caddie tourney winners will be entered in the West Penn caddie event. The new South Park card:

CHICAGO GETS MEET

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—As a curtain-raiser to the World's Fair, the finals of the national indoor polo championships have been awarded to Chicago, to follow a comprehensive series of district and sectional elimination tournaments throughout the East and Middle West.

Although the exact playing dates have not been set, the tentative schedule calls for the finals, bringing together the four sectional winners in classes A, B, C and D in the open division, to be played at the 124th Field Artillery Armory in Chicago the last two weeks in April. The sectional tournaments will be held the first two weeks in April following upon the district eliminations in March.

By BARRY KECK

A card of three 10-round bouts and a six-rounder make up the most imposing boxing program in the history of the Arena, on the North Side, tonight.

Paulie Walker

The windup, for instance, presents Tiger Joe Randall, Elizabeth Negro welterweight, against Paulie Walker, of Trenton, N. J., who has boxed Young Corbett III, the new world champion, Young Terry, Bucky Lawless and many of the other leading 147-pounders.

The six-round opener brings back Joe Rugguzzoni, of Detroit against Anson Green, Negro middleweight, of Homestead. Rugguzzoni registered a hit in his battle with Frankie Goosby at the Moose Temple recently.

Between Rounds

Ray Foutts, manager of Ted Yarosz, has a hunch that his man will knock out Eddie (Kid) Wolfe in their fourth and rubber meeting at Motor Square Garden, Monday night. He bases his belief on the fact that Yarosz has had Wolfe in trouble from right hande punches in each of their previous battles, and he is shortening up his blows in his workouts. He has been working out with short sparring partners of the Wolfe type to perfect his judgment of distance. Foutts believes Ted's wildness with his right in the bout in which Wolfe won the decision at the Garden recently was due to the fact that he had trained with 6-foot spar mates and thus was repeatedly overshooting the mark.

STOCKS RALLY ON COVERING BY SHORTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—A better tone in United States Government bonds prompted short coverings in the share market today, and many issues recovered 1 to 2 points in quiet trading.

Financial markets generally acted better, and with abatement of pressure against shares, prices came back rather easily, there was a little further selling in the first half hour, but it was readily absorbed.

Corporate news included a wide assortment of earnings statements for 1932, among which Westinghouse's was notable. Despite a loss of $8,903,540, as increased from the deficit of $3,655,660 in the previous year, the company's cash account actually was slightly above a year previously. Union Carbide appeared fully to have discounted the cut in its quarterly dividend to 25 cents from 30, after the close of the market yesterday. Mack Truck made a somewhat better showing than in the previous year, with a net loss of only $1,479,598, against a loss of $3,032,410 in 1931, in which some especially heavy depreciation charges were absorbed. Continental Can's 1932 report, showing net equal to $2.78 a share, against $3.27 in the previous year, was well received.

In the commodity shares, bar silver fell back ⅝ of a cent, as the latest speculative flurry in that metal showed signs of abating. Copper futures turned reactionary in London, and it was learned that the big Katanga Mine in the Belgian Congo was planning to increase production. Stocks of sugar producers again displayed some firmness, reflecting the recent improvement in that staple, but were not active. Steel prices were reported a little firmer.

The weekly mercantile reviews noted several encouraging aspects in the business situation, although Bradstreet's reported warmer weather was resulting in a slower cleanup of winter merchandise, and that retail trade volume in key cities was somewhat disappointing. Dun's again noted that business was interrupted but slightly by adverse news, maintaining a distinctly eucouraging degree of stability.

COTTON PRICES RULE STEADY

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Cotton futures opened steady, ½ higher on steady Liverpool cables and trade buying. March, 5.95; May, 6.07; July, 6.20; October, 6.37; December, 6.48; January, 6.54.

A little southern selling was reported as well as some scattering liquidation, but the light offerings were absorbed within a point or two of the opening quotations by continued trade buying. May contracts after selling off from 6.07 to 6.05, were ruling around 6.07 at the end of the first half hour with the more active months showing net advances of 2 to 4 points.

The market remained quiet but held generally steady later in the morning. Little selling was in evidence and a moderate demand from the trade was sufficient to hold prices. At midday May was ruling around 6.07 and October 6.39, or about 2 to 4 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 24.—Cotton—Receipts, 15,000 bales, including 14,400 American. Spot small business done; prices 4 to 9 points lower. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.70; good middling, 5.40; strict middling, 5.10; middling, 4.95; strict low middling, 4.80; low middling, 4.65; strict good ordinary, 4.45; good ordinary, 4.15. Futures closed quiet, March, 4.77; May, 4.79; July, 4.82; October, 4.87; December, 4.90; January, 4.92.

MAGNATE SEES JOBS REAL SLUMP CURE

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—To an increasing extent men in responsible positions are associating the breakdown of trade with unemployment and underconsumption.

H. W. A. Deterding, director general of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company and an outstanding figure in world business, in his latest diagnosis says:

Mr. Rukeyser

"All solutions are simple; the complicated ones belong to politicians, 'would-be economists,' and are no solutions but lead further into the mire.

"First of all there never was, and never need be, an over-production crisis.

"There are millions of good people who would like to work in order to have automobiles, radios, better homes and, last but not least, enough to eat.

"Put these millions in the position to consume, and the crisis is solved."

The Ottawa pact seems to have placed Great Britain in a position where it seeks favors from other countries without granting offsetting benefits. Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain, in connection with war debt revision, gave the impression that there was no necessity of offering quid pro quos. Argentina has appointed a commission to discuss improved trade relationships with Great Britain, but the commercial editor of the Manchester Guardian frankly says:

"If Argentine opinion is to be won over to the British point of view, and Argentina is to openwide her gates to British exports, she will rightly expect practical benefits in the British market, and with our hands tied by Ottawa the problem is going to be to discover something adequate to offer her."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Some support was forthcoming today for various hard-pressed issues in the bond market, but prices generally continued to display sagging tendencies. Best gains in the Government division were recorded by Liberty fourth 4¼s, up around 25-32nds. German obligations were unable to rally to any great extent. Italian 7s lost a point and issues of Japan, France, Great Britain, Australia, Austria and Chile were slightly easier.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

TRADE ACTIVITY BROADENING

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—The weekly mercantile reviews said today that developments, making for increased confidence and slowly broadening activity in trade continued to outweigh adverse factors.

As evidence of this trend, Bradstreet's pointed to the more favorable comparison of bank clearings with a year ago, the less than seasonal decline in business failures, signs of stability in the wholesale food price index and industry's evident satisfaction over prohibition repeal action.

On the less favorable side the agency lists a slower cleanup of winter goods, due to warmer weather, and a somewhat disappointing retail trade volume in key cities.

Dun's said trade progress was interrupted but slightly by "disquieting events which, in less calloused times, might have been fraught with overwhelming retardative influences."

The process of distribution has not been halted despite the curtailed buying power, said the agency, and persistent efforts to sell goods in a regular way are being rewarded.

Reduced inventories with further curtailment of production have placed manufacturers in a more advantageous position.

CITY BASEBALL LOOP MAY LOSE HOMEWOOD

By TOM BIRKS

With Acting President Everett Sweeney, of the City Baseball League, considering calling the first meeting of the circuit in the near future, President J. Scott Morgan, of the Homewood-Brushton Boosters' Association, announced today that the sponsors of the Homewood - Brushton team would hold a meeting Saturday, March 4, and at that time decide whether Homewood, three times City League champion, would be back on the diamond this season. The chances appear to be against Homewood coming back this year.

Scott Morgan

The Boosters' organization, founded six years ago by Scott Morgan, primarily came into existence to sponsor the Homewood team, then a member of the County League. Last season the club struck rocky going due to the depression, and as a safeguarding measure, the payroll was eliminated.

DALY TO QUIT

Hank Daly, long-time Homewood pilot, already has gone on record as being through with managerial troubles and is letting the mantle of leadership fall where it may, unless Scott Morgan and Jack Herron use their persuasive powers to get the popular Hank back into line.

Daly last year found few players of the class needed to win a City League championship willing to play on a split basis. President Morgan made it very plain today that that is the manner in which the club will run this season, if a club exists.

The organization will hold its sixth annual boxing show on April 11. In previous years the boxing show and dance usually provided enough revenue to finance the team for a season. The dance this season realized $1,300 and of this $1,200 was given to the relief fund.

If someone wishes to run the club on a self-supporting basis, without the Booster Club being responsible for the debts, then Homewood will have a club in semi-professional baseball, but not otherwise.

MORGANS IN FIELD

There is another factor entering into the East End situation. The J. Scott Morgan club, a light first-class team of Homewood boys, has entered the Greater Pittsburgh League. This team will bring to the Homewood playgrounds some of the best teams in the district, and whether this club and a team in the City League can exist under present economical conditions is the big question to be considered.

All of which seems to indicate that for the first time since the inception of the City League Homewood will not be represented.

AMATEUR CHAMP K. O. VICTOR

Tony DeMore, hard-hitting Willow Club junior A. M. A. bantamweight champion, and Leo Sweeney, of the Pittsburgh Boys' Club, recorded knockout victories last night in the amateur boxing show staged for the benefit of the unemployed of St. Anthony's Church, of Millvale.

DeMore won by a technical knockout over Johnny Wukets and Sweeney stopped Buddy Reinders, of St. Anthony's Lyceum, both in the second round. The summary:

THREE KNOCKOUTS SCORED

Arthur Broga, of the Forty and Eight Club, stopped Claude Titus, unattached, in the second round. In the 126-pound class, Alvin Wellington, Forty and Eight, stopped Roger Smith, Pleasant Valley, in the first round, and George Bittner, 175-pounder, of the Pleasant Valley A. C., knocked out Andy Grogan, of Point Breeze, in the second round.

In the main bout William Elly, Pleasant Valley, won a three-round decision over Mickey Todd. Todd A. C., at 135 pounds. Other results follow:

Harris Honored By Notre Dame Teammates

The honor was voted at the annual varsity-freshman banquet last night. Harris received a full size silver football and his name will be put on the first monogram blanket won by the late Knute Rockne, in 1913. The blanket was presented to the university by Rockne's family and will be kept in the trophy room. The name of the trophy winner will be added each year.

The Rev. Father Michael Mulcaire, chairman of the athletic board of control, said Notre Dame will not abandon the custom of electing a captain, but the election will be held at the end of the season, and the office will be honorary. Game captains will be appointed by Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson.

Playgirls in Love

"You'll be at our opening, of course?" proceeded Loranda, going to a mirror and powdering a tip-tilted little nose that already carried its full quota of powder. "We're going to make whoopee—and how! If you've any rich boy friends fond of spending, trot 'em along, you know."

"I'm afraid I don't know anybody suitable to bring," Judith said rather stiffly.

But Miss Loranda had disappeared into the tiny office that was just a desk set in a little alcove halfway between the front and rear of the shop, and she could be heard telephoning.

Shortly thereafter, a long, low racing car drew up at the curb with a handsome, rather dissipated-looking man at the wheel who smoked a cigaret and wore his fedora hat at a rakish angle above his high fur collar. Judith had a glimpse of dark bold eyes staring admiringly at her through the uncurtained windows of the little shop. He had been about to toot his horn, but on sighting Judith he quickly withdrew his hand from the button on the steering-wheel, opened the door of the car and swung himself out. He strolled over the sidewalk and into the little shop with a sort of graceful slouch.

"What do you mean by keeping me waiting?" exclaimed Loranda, coming forward immediately and chirping up into his face.

"I'm a hard-working fellow! It isn't easy to get time off, even to take pretty ladies to lunch, you know," he said—but his eyes were on Judith.

"Nonsence, big boy. I took the precaution of booking a table in the Ritz Tower grill. Come on, let's be off."

INTRODUCED

He was still looking at Judith with a look which plainly said: "I think you're a very pretty girl. I want to know you——"

But the nonchalant Loranda ignored this. She took him by the arm and made as though to go. The newcomer stood his ground with a: "Hold on, impatient female. There's something we've got to do first," and from a capacious pocket in his overcoat he produced a flat gold flask, unscrewed a cap from the top, pulled out a cork and proceeded to use the cap as a cup.

"Let's drink to the health of the enterprise. And won't you introduce me to your girl-friend, Loranda? You're not really very polite."

With an impatient shrug of her shoulders, and preceded by a sound like "tch!", Loranda announced that this was Jack Ordway and this was a friend of Zella's, her manageress—she didn't know the name, quite.

"I'm Judith Brian," said Judith in a stiff little voice.

She flatly refused Jack Ordway's offer of a cocktail. He declared it had a marvelous kick in it—he'd mixed it himself as a kind of benediction on Loranda's new place.

"Well, we don't have to drink it here. Come on, let's go," Loranda said tartly.

REFUSES TO MODEL

"That one of your mannequins? Lord, but she's pretty!" Judith heard him say before the door closed behind them.

Some way she did not feel annoyed at that. She'd hated his staring—but what girl resents a tribute to her beauty?

"You'll be a model for me at the opening, won't you, Judith dear?" Zella coaxed her friend, several times, before the formal opening of the little shop.

But Judith wouldn't listen to her. "Me mix with all those society cats and have them patronize me? No fear!"

"But you'll come anyway, won't you, Judith? I shall really want your help with the tea and service, and to keep an eye on things. You wouldn't fail me?"

"Oh, I'll be there. But nothing doing on the mannequin business, Zella, old thing. Loranda's got her own gang lined up for that. Let them promenade to slow music, wiggling their luscious figures!"

* * *

The opening day arrived. The debutantes came in droves, with as many "stags" as they could rope in for the occasion. There were banks of flowers everywhere, and soft lights, and the tinkle of a little orchestra, and a professional singer or two, and tea and cocktails.

Judith had bought a new dress in a bright rose crepe, with a long draped skirt, and fur at the elbows. She looked very pretty and very young, and quite a number of the debutantes' young men wanted to meet her.

But always her eyes turned to the door that was half hidden by tall potted palms, and as time slipped away she grew more and more disappointed.

"He" wasn't coming, after all? She'd thought—because of knowing Loranda—that he would be here! Perhaps she was all wrong, and he hadn't even been invited to the opening?

Or he despised this sort of thing? He wasn't the "tame cat" sort. He wasn't a lounge-lizard!

"Pull the screen in front of the door and then open the door an inch or two for air, like a good child, Judith. It's simply stifling in here," Zella said to her. "Did you ever see such crowds?"

Judith moved to do what she was asked, placing the screen so there would be no direct draught. She opened the door and came face to face with a young man who was coming in . . . at sight of him her heart leaped into her throat.

"Why, Miss Brian, it's you? Wherever have you been? I've missed you," said the charming voice she longed to hear, as Barry Deane swept his hat from his head, and took her hand into his warm, strong clasp, and smiled into her eyes with a look of utter gladness.

FRIEND FOLLOWS

"How do you do? Come in. Just leave the door ajar—for air, you know. I'm helping Zella to entertain. Zella's my friend, the manageress here," Judith stammered all in a breath.

The lacquered screen of black and gold made a delightful background for her slim young figure in the rose-pink dress that represented weeks of saving, and that transformed Judith from a pale and fragile prettiness into a glowing loveliness that was like an American Beauty rose.

Barry Deane thought: "How beautiful she looks! And shy! Not many girls are that, these days." He said again: "I've missed you!" and it was like sweetest music in Judith's ears.

"They transferred me to the uptown branch of the bank. I hated it at first, being so happy downtown and all—" But she got no further, for at that moment a dark-haired, rather stockily-built girl in a chinchilla wrap which bulged with packages pushed in through the open door.

"Why, Barry Deane, so you got here ahead of me! I know this isn't in your line, but Loranda fairly insisted I drag you here even if I had to yank you by the back of your coat collar! Now, grab those bottles of bacardi, quick! And don't you dare forget the gang meets at my house for dinner after this show's over!"

BARRY EMBARRASSED

"I'll be there, Betty," Barry said, with an indulgent smile, and taking her parcels from her. He turned to Judith. "Because this young lady's father is head of the bank where I'm a humble slave, that makes her a kind of Simon Legree over me. Cruel, isn't it? Betty, may I present Miss Judith Brian? Miss Brian, I assure you Miss Graves doesn't show me the slightest mercy."

"Oh, it isn't me, it's Loranda who's the precious little slave-driver where you're concerned, Barry old thing," Betty Graves said, carelessly winking. "I'll admit I'd put in a good word for you with Dad at a pinch, but it's Loranda who finds you so darn fascinating."

"I'm sure I'm honored," Barry laughed—but Judith saw he had reddened.

"You ought to be," Betty said bluntly, "for Loranda's not only a rarin' beauty, but a darned good scout." She pushed the screen aside, and Judith and Barry followed her into the crowded little shop.

Immediately Loranda swooped down on them. Loranda looked like some rare orchid in a lavender chiffon frock with a great bouquet of orchids on one shoulder.

They disappeared into a little screened-off serving pantry with the bottles of bacardi, and Judith recommenced her job of pouring cups of tea for those that wanted them—by now a very small minority.

Today's story concerning the activities of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club appears on another page.

Synopsis

Judith Brian, a secretary in the Knickerbocker Bank, and Barry Deane, young executive, are secretly attracted to one another. Judith, however, feels that Barry is above her socially. Zella, Judith's friend, receives an attractive offer from Loranda Tewson, society girl, to manage a dress shop for her. Zella and Judith leave their drab boarding house and rent an apartment. Judith is unhappy when she is transferred to the bank's uptown office where she will not be able to see Barry.

Squint Through Rose-Colored Glasses

We have always claimed the White House oval would make a perfect stadium. And that the Army-Navy game would furnish a sinking fund to buy mustache wax for retired admirals.

This game alone would mean an annual million dollars. Provided it wasn't counted too often. That's the trouble with all our cash reserves. The boys like to check it over by candle light.

It's amazing to learn that the cemented states once had a huge cash balance. But the Republicans got in between Cleveland's two terms and bought chuckles for laughing hyenas. They spent it every way they could. When Grover arrived the golden goose was a very lumpy feather pillow.

Since then we have skipped on round heels until we can't see daylight with a spyglass. We owe twenty-one billions of hard-edged dollars. That ain't hay.

It means that our children and their children are born hocked to the ears. We could even take in more future generations, but we couldn't collect at the present time.

Now we know what's wrong with the picture. But for the last 12 years we swallowed that Republican prosperity guffle. Like the baby who ate the alphabetical blocks we were educated in the wrong place.

Of course, a lot of those billions are in long term bonds that don't fuse until 1945 and 1960. The whole thing is like being on a slow boat to Egypt with a perforated hull. All the passengers and crew at the pumps. And no stalling if you want to get there.

When the Republicans are forced to sublease the White House they never decorate to suit the next tennant.

They fix it nice for the next guy. If the Democrats get us out of this financial tangle in four years we will give 'em one of Houdini's autographs. The best they can do with the works is to hold a porcelain sale after the bull has been in the China shop.

Dark outlook? You should be happy we ain't a bird who knows what he is talking about.

It Meets a Local Need

The "Buy American" Movement Is Popular in Pittsburgh Because Prosperity Depends Upon It.

The "Buy American" movement started in the Pittsburgh district by the Sun-Telegraph has become remarkably popular.

If there is any district in the United States which requires, more than other districts, protection from foreign competition, it is the Pittsburgh area, with its iron and steel, glass and pottery, electrical equipment and numerous other manufactures.

William L. Monro, president of the American Window Glass Company, writes in the current number of "Greater Pittsburgh," the Chamber of Commerce magazine, that until a month ago the country generally did not appreciate the menace of unfair foreign competition in our markets.

"But," adds Mr. Monro, "the last 30 days has brought a development on this score of tremendous importance. About a month ago, the Hearst newspaper chain, impressed by the seriousness of depreciated-currency imports to our industries and our workers, started a popular campaign of truly heroic proportions in support of Congressional action against these ruinous importations. This campaign by the Hearst newspapers is, in my opinion, a great public service to the American people. Here is a power that can educate and arouse the people to the seriousness of this unfair foreign competition in our markets, and the Congress never met that dares remain adamant to the demands of an aroused people."

Mr. Monro is a manufacturer, a capitalist, an employer; but labor is equally cordial in its appreciation of the "Buy American" movement, as was exemplified at the Washington's Birthday dinner of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters at East Liverpool.

The fact is that there is no one in this territory who will not suffer, directly or indirectly, if the "Buy American" movement should fail.

The Power Trust Probe

The Federal Trade Commission's Investigation of the Public Utilities Should Be Continued.

Altogether wise is the action of the Senate Committee on Appropriations in stipulating that $280,000 shall be available for completing the investigation of public utilities which the Federal Trade Commission has been conducting since 1928.

If the Senate sustains its committee and insists that the House agree to appropriating this sum, the most useful inquiry which the Federal Trade Commission has yet made will be pressed until completed.

The Federal Trade Commission is practically the only governmental agency with the power to protect the public from exploitation at the hands of dishonest business.

By the law creating the commission, it is given two main functions, one, regulatory, and the other investigational.

The commission is charged with the responsibility of suppressing monopolies and unfair competition in interstate commerce where the public interest is menaced.

The commission is also given the duty of acting as a fact-finding body for the Congress or the President.

Already the public utilities investigation, which the commission has pressed with fidelity and vigor, "has exposed the vicious propaganda of the utility corporations through colleges, schools, governmental agencies and the press."

It has also laid bare the use of inaccurate forms of accounting which resulted in "an extensive padding of costs to operating companies through exorbitant fees charged for alleged services by holding companies."

But for the commission's inquiry, the country would not yet know that there has been an inflation of capitalization by a deliberate "write-up" of assets of more than one thousand million dollars in the companies already probed.

If the Senate will appropriate the comparatively small sum required to complete the public utilities investigation, public sentiment will compel the House to support the leadership of the Senate.

It would be false economy of the most flagrant sort to hamstring the Federal Trade Commission by refusing it a sufficient appropriation to keep its searchlight on our public utility companies until their every trangression against statutory law and public morals is dragged into the light and written into the record.

Camps for Jobless Boys

It Is the Duty of the House to Co-operate in Rescuing Youths Now Wandering Over the Country.

Upon the House of Representatives devolves the imperative duty of accepting that provision in the Army appropriation bill as it passed the Senate which appropriates $22,000,000 to establish emergency citizens' military training camps for the rescuing and rehabilitation of some of the many jobless youth now hitch-hiking the highways of the nation, ragged and homeless, and unable to find work.

The same argument by which the sponsors of this amendment convinced the Senate of its merits should prove equally convincing to the intelligent and patriotic members of the House.

This is the first, and, as Senator Johnson, of California, said, almost the only measure "dealing with human misery and the want and suffering and destitution that has come before the Senate in this whole session."

And the peculiar value of this measure is that it deals with the human problem created by the depression in such a feasible way that the character of our national citizenship will be safeguarded and strengthened.

These emergency training camps will offer to 88,000 young men of good character, who have been jobless for six months, training with the colors for 12 months in the responsibilities for citizenship.

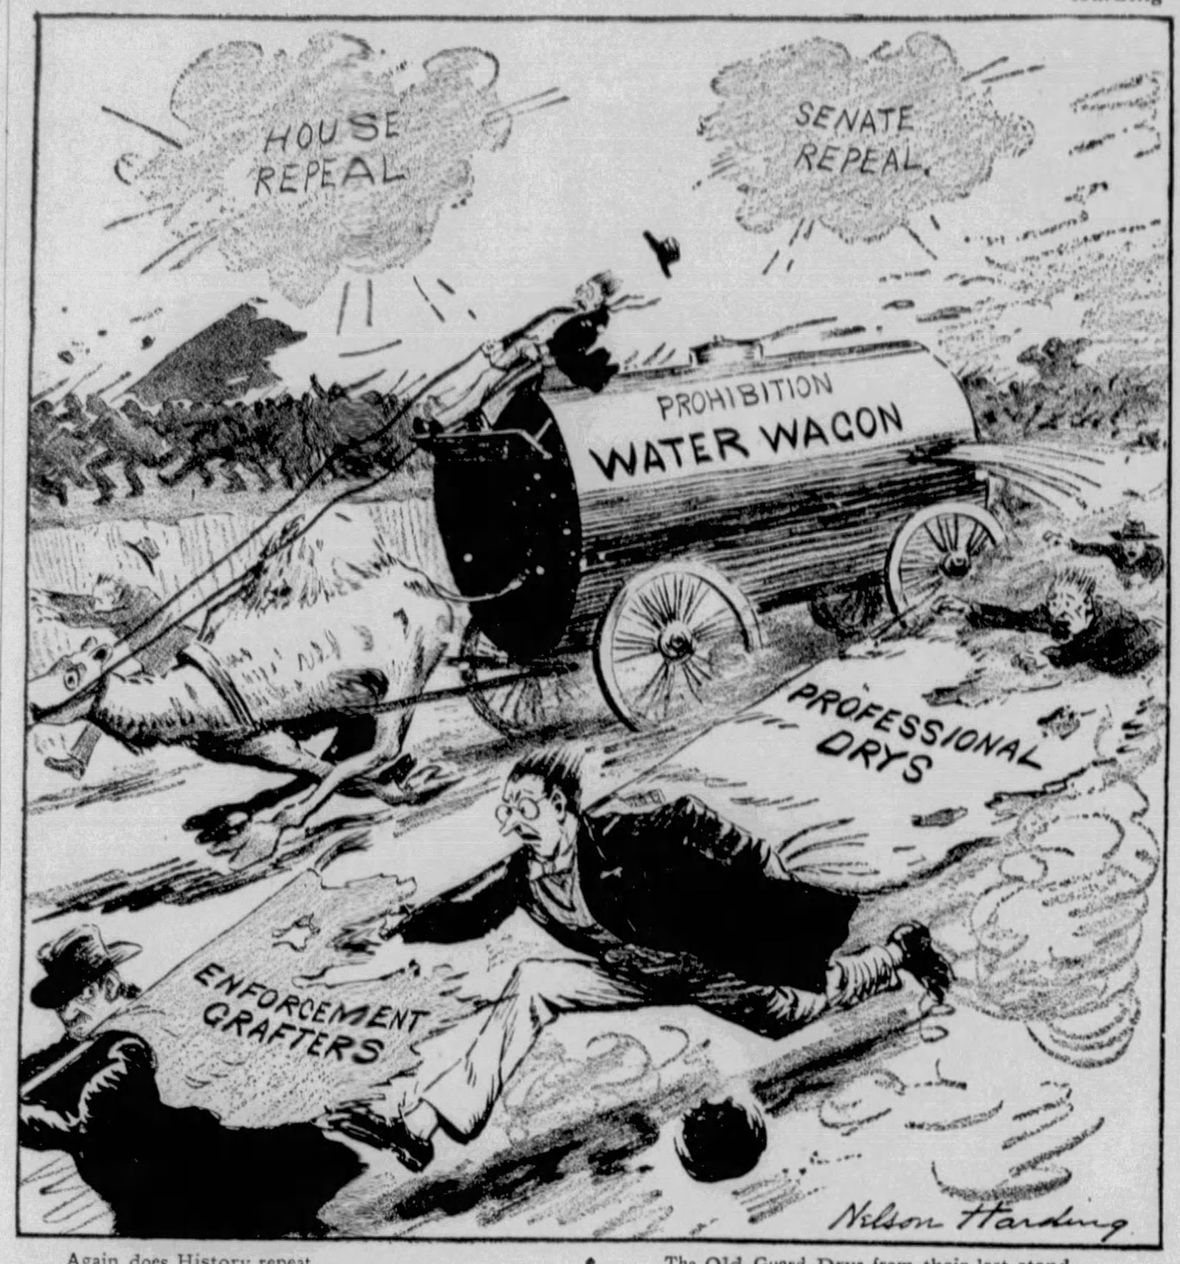
Each trainee will be instructed in the fundamentals of our government and in all the duties that responsible citizenship imposes on the sovereign members of our national family.

If the federal government takes the lead in establishing these emergency camps for 88,000 jobless and wandering youth, they will provide a model for other camps in which additional young men in similar circumstances can be rescued from the roving bands of hitch-hikers and admitted to a national school for citizenship.

As the House has already gone on record in favor of continuing the regular system of citizens' military training camps for young men who are not hitch-hiking for charity, it ought to welcome the opportunity offered by the Senate to extend the same sort of relief to the homeless, wandering, ragged youth who are so much more in need of the training which the emergency camps will provide.

Waterloo!

By Nelson Harding



Again does History repeat,
Itself in one more great defeat.
The Camel Corps retreats pell mell
Before a rain of bursting shell.
And in this utter rout we view
The Water Wagon's Waterloo.

The Old Guard Drys from their last stand
Are in full flight on every hand;
All their Napoleons have tried
And only those Die Hards will rue
The Water Wagon's Waterloo.

Unity Is Banking Need

We have Too Many Banking Systems, Which Makes for Harmful Competition.

By JULIUS G. BERENS
Financial Editor, New York American.

WE speak of the American commercial banking system when actually there is none.

In reality, there are 49 "systems": the national banking organization constituting the backbone of the Federal Reserve system, and the 48 state "systems."

Thus is presented the spectacle of 49 individual and distinct commercial banking systems within our borders!

Keen, open and harmful competition exists between the national organization and the various state "systems." Instead of fostering conservatism, this competition expresses itself in greater liberality toward the banks. As one of the nation's foremost bankers aptly remarked:

"A promotion not of better banking but of poorer banking has been the inevitable result."

NOT until there is effected a SINGLE UNIFIED COMMERCIAL BANKING SYSTEM AND CONTROL will the United States have the means intelligently to resist or stimulate economic tides which might be influenced by financial policies or maneuvers.

The Federal Reserve, tested through war and post-war emergencies, has demonstrated its mettle and resourcefulness, and has earned the right to demand that the entire country's commercial banking be conducted under its supervision.

Non-member banks which closed in that decade outnumbered member institutions almost four and one-half to one, or SEVENTY-FIVE HUNDRED to seventeen hundred.

EVEN today 60 per cent in number of the country's banks are outside the Federal Reserve fold.

Qualifications for membership in the Federal Reserve are more stringent than state banking requirements. Many non-member institutions are therefore unwilling to join the Federal Reserve system.

Objection to a national unified banking system comes mainly from those bankers who enjoy special privileges in their respective communities or states. They object to being placed on a par with the whole country's banks as to privileges, rights and obligations.

The country's advantage, however, lies in a scientific, efficient and mobile banking instrumentality, which will function for the common weal, and for the common protection of the entire population.

Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, epitomized the condition of affairs when he said:

"It should be recognized that effective supervision of banking in this country has been seriously hampered by the competition between member and non-member banks, and that the establishment of a unified system of banking under national supervision is essential to fundamental banking reform."

Exactly how this end can be attained will be set forth in a concluding article.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

My Mother

She waits, I know in a little house
Set high on the slope of a hill;
In a little house that is shining white
With rooms all fragrant and neat and light,
I know she waits for me still!

O, friends may grow weary and love may forget
The vows that were once so dear;
But she changes not, though the whole world change,
Her faith will not falter, her heart not grow strange

She waits, I know, in a little house
That is white against the sky;
Though I wander afar on willful feet,
Her love is God's rose that is always sweet
And a star for steering by!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—Thoughts while strolling: Comical how the younger generation thinks it's so wild. What became of the Six Brown Brothers? Fifi Widener's name suggests a sudden cart wheel. Dean Cornwell is back after three years in Los Angeles, painting those library murals.

One word description of Lupe Velez—raspy. No one suggests a benign English curate like Oscar of the Waldorf. That noonday collection of theatrical press agents at Sardi's—coring apples for apple sauce. Somehow, the town seems happier when Charles and Kathleen Norris come to visit.

Ellis Parker Butler, a Muscatine, Iowa, boy, who made good in the city. Wonder why they varnish the top of rye bread? Louis Sobol has Gandhi's profile and H. I. Phillips and Arthur Somers Roche could pass for twins. Frank McIntyre uses my father's favorite expression, "Golly," too.

Back home, a "shakedown" was a night's lodging. On Broadway, it's a living. Charles Dana Gibson's signature is like the shore line of a map. Listening to Morris Gest imitate a Chinese wood chopper is about as much fun as anyone can have. With Cobbie as the solemn feeder.

One of my favorite people—Mary Garden. Grandma used to employ that Noel Coward simile: "Comes up suddenly like a hiccup." The Pompeiian glow of a Jersey sunset. I think of driving cows from pasture. The blast from the 5:15 as she screamed round Fox's Cut. Filmy dreams off boyhood's loom!

* * *

At a Lambs' gambol, a high spot was a tottering quartet from the veranda rockers of ar actors' home, the youngest is 72, the oldest, 83. Each was a puckish old trouper with the ingratiating air, somehow lost in the modern whirl. They harmonized in "Sweet Adeline," "On the Banks of the Wabash" and "Annie Laurie." And completely ran off with the show.

* * *

I have been watching the brave struggle of a harried married couple, with five small children, to open a fruit store in an abandoned Chinese laundry in the neighborhood. Today a curtain dropped on the forlorn experiment. The children with bitten faces and running noses were following a baby carriage into which the entire stock had been piled. The mother fighting back tears.

* * *

Outside of that sudden plunge in the Empire Tower elevator, no sinking sensation touches that felt in a speeding auto in sudden skid. I saw one this morning near the Ritz Tower execute—what every motorist will say has happened to him—a complete spin and go blithely on as though nothing had happened. It somehow suggested Joey Ray letting go a hiccup in fight.

But alcoholic liars are more accomplished than the motoristic variety. Most every drinker enjoys a swollen pride in recalling exploits of his freehand Spencerian days. I was, myself, quite a beer guzzler in my own name, but in telling of it I stretch a pint to a quart and a quart often to a jeroboam. Roscoe Peacock observes, there are three things about which otherwise truthful men will lie: The women they have won, the fish they have caught and the liquor they have drunk.

Among current dubiosities is that fabulous fellow, T. E. Shaw—Lawrence, of Arabia. He took, alone and unaided, Arabia for the British during the war. All done with Old Cap Collier gusto. Then he passes up honors to bury himself as an army private. And to give credulity another strain, he has just made a translation of Homer's Odyssey. I can't shake off the notion he's literature's George Spelvin.

New York's most indefatigable patroler of pavements is the tall educator, Dr. John H. Finley. At 68, he walks six miles, through the city's streets, daily.

Noel Coward, writing in the Robert Garland's visitors' book, quoted a line from his play: "I cannot change my life because of a couple of garlands."

But the best—and I neglected to jot down who inscribed it—was: "Imagine my embarrassment. I can't think of a thing."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

When do you think?

"Why, I think all the time," you say, "I can't stop thinking."

That's a pleasant delusion most of us entertain. As a matter of fact, we rarely think. We receive impressions—a process which we loosely call "thinking"—But we actually think only under stimulus or by sustained effort.

Have you ever watched a sea anemone? Hold your face close to the surface of the shallow tide. There, clinging to a rock, with thousands of its kind, is the pulpy, flower-like growth, its gummy cup open to the ocean's ebb and flow. In and out goes the tide and the sea anemone lies in the current, accepting whatever the tide may bring.

Many people live sea anemone lives. They spend their days attached to the social formation in which they were born, accepting whatever opinions and impressions the tide of life may bring their way. Their reactions are sluggish as the sea anemone's.

These people do not realize that they are living like sea anemones. They believe that they are living independent original lives. They are sure that they are "thinking all the time." But, in truth, they hardly ever think.

Thought isn't merely "noticing things." Vaguely speculating. Drifting from one impression to another. Thought is doing something with impressions after you have received them. Putting them in order. Making combinations of them. Building with them. Using them to conquer life.

For example—you are riding along the street. You say to yourself: "That is a tall building. That is a pretty girl. My tooth aches. I wonder if my mother-in-law will pull another row tonight."

But suppose the car in which you are riding is suddenly wrecked. Instantly your mind leaps into action. You can no longer move sluggishly with the tide. You must do something for yourself and do it quickly. Your mind darts about, checking up every means of escape, rallying your resources, making a plan. In those furious seconds, you do more real thinking than you ordinarily do in a week of placid, passive experience.

We only think when we are prodded into action.

Many things besides actual danger may prod us. The competition and conflict of business life may prod us, the pride of creative work, the lure of romance, the bitter lash of grief. Any one of the stimuli may arouse our minds to action. Without some stimulus, we merely function and are little better than the gummy, vegetable animals of the sea.

That is why happiness and safety usually raise Cain with us and why success and money are often the worst things that can happen to a human being. Life no longer prods. Our minds grow flabby. They drift sluggishly in the creamy tide of wellbeing.

Don't pray for a comfortable life. Pray rather for a difficult life—a life full of change and conflicts and the need of adjustments—a life that will make you THINK.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

As a middle-aged person, now more or less settled, it may give you some pleasure to recount the pranks of your younger years.

You often do this at the home of your friends who have young boys and girls, but not always are your stories received with as much enthusiasm among the parents as among the youngsters.

The fact that you are now a respected citizen and more or less prominent in your city or your locality naturally gives the impression that these indiscretions did not prove detrimental to your career.

Youth loves adventure, and your experiences might lead them to think that they must have similar episodes to be worldly wise.

As a matter of fact you want to stand in a little better with the younger folk and so you think if you can sound a bit "devilish" as to your past it may attract them to you.

It is very often just such indiscreet talk with braggadocio that results in eventual trouble for those who listened and admired.
